

THE GRANT LANDS

Wagon Road Lands Will Not Be A Great Bonanza For County

From the survey now being completed it is learned that fully 75 per cent of the Coos Bay wagon road grant lands is timber land, and but a very small percentage of the remainder is suitable for agricultural purposes.

We find the foregoing item going the rounds of the state press, and it is perhaps just as well that the hope of securing a bonanza in these lands shouldn't be raised too high; but the statement unquestionably does these lands an injustice. We quote again the official report on these lands furnished us by Assessor Thrift in 1915, at about the time Dennis McCarthy completed his cruise of them:

The assessed value of the Southern Oregon lands is $1,078,185, or at the rate of $15.42 per acre, but much of this value is in the timber they bear.

Of the 69,884 acres of the wagon road land grant the cruise of the county made by Dennis McCarthy shows the classification to be as follows:

Suitable for agricultural purposes after the timber and brush is removed, 33,870 acres.

Suitable for grazing after the timber is removed, 31,854 acres.

More or less rocky, 4, 100 acres.

We have often heard talk of the probable receipts of the government from the sale of these lands that appear to be altogether exaggerated and absurd. That it is possible for Coos county to receive as its one-fourth of the net amount these lands sell for an amount anything like the half a million we are to get for taxes is something of a pipe dream.

The 69,884 acres in this tract in Coos county, if it were all sold to settlers at the government price of $2.50 per acre would bring only $174,710, an amount only one-third of the taxes now due. But we are to get only one-fourth of the net sales, the government being reimbursed for its advance of the half million for taxes and the $32,000 it is to pay the Southern Oregon before there is anything to divide. And, of course, a good deal of this land is rocky and high pasture, which cannot be sold for $2.50 an acre and will most probably eventually be placed in a forest reserve.

Certainly the bulk of the money received from these lands will come from sales of timber, but, even so, Coos county's 25 per cent of the receipts after taxes and all expenses have been paid will, we imagine, prove a minor matter.

Kerosene Both Clean and Cheap

The muss and dirt of a coal or wood cook-stove add to the burden of the housewife. Coal dust seems to get everywhere and it means continual work to keep a kitchen clean when coal is used in the stove.

All this trouble is done away with when kerosene is used as a fuel. It is clean and convenient and makes far less work for the housewife. In addition to this, it is more economical than either coal or wood.

A good kerosene like the Standard Oil Company's Pearl Oil makes a distinct saving, not only in the household budget but also in the time and energy of the housewife. Pearl Oil gives excellent results as far as good cooking is concerned and when it is used the kitchen never becomes overheated. A good cookstove with Pearl Oil will bake, broil, roast, and toast economically.

Having been refined, and re-refined by a special process, the impurities are removed from Pearl Oil so that it burns up clean and produces no odor.

Wants Him to Support Child

The case of the state vs. Eugene Dummond, was filed Saturday in the court of Justice Joehnk, at Marshfield, starting proceedings in which Miss Clara Thornton sues Eugene Dummond, the alleged father of her illegitimate child, for its support.

The baby, a girl, is seven months of age. The mother alleges the father has never supported the child and this is substantiated by Mr. Dummond who refuses to do this, denying the parental relation.

Miss Thornton is 19 years of age, the alleged father of the child is about 25. Mr. Dummond is a lineman for the power company, employed in the city. Miss Thornton lives with her mother at Gardiner.

Coos County at the Head Again

The 26 exhibits representing the 29 sewing clubs of Coos county took the girls and boys of the club winners' short course at O. A. C. by storm. In quantity and quality they outranked the exhibits from all other parts of the state, and had the position of honor at the head of their class; says a college report just at hand.

Each of the 26 individual exhibits contains seven articles made by the exhibitor from materials selected by herself. All were designed, cut and sewed from instructions and patterns printed in the bulletins supplied by the college specialists in sewing, or from oral instruction. Individuality appears in the materials selected, the trimmings used, and the length and evenness of stitches.

The articles in each exhibit are needlecase, tea towel, sewing bag, stocking darn, canning cap, night gown and canning apron.

"Nothing but things needed for use and made of inexpensive materials," volunteered Miss Helen Cowgill, assistant state leader. "And the girls promised me they would not wear the dust caps to hide touselled, uncombed hair," she added.

The girls were encouraged to use bright colors but to use them with discrimination. The club leaders don't use "don'ts" to correct mistakes, but the silent passing by without an encouraging word is a more impressive disapproval.

The Coos sewing collection was prepared under the supervision of a man—E. R. Peterson, county club leader. Mr. Peterson gave verbal instructions for the first half of the work before the instructions issued by the club department were ready for distribution.

No Rock Ledge at Bandon Bar

That there is no ledge of rock extending across the entrance to Bandon harbor, as has been generally believed and chartered by government surveys in the past, was proven here last Friday by Wm. Mast, local diver, says the Bandon World.

Working from a scow, while the bar was perfectly smooth, Mr. Mast went down and made a careful examination of the bottom extending across the mouth of the river from the end of the south jetty. He found a field of boulders covering about an acre, the boulders ranging in size from 72 to probably 300 pound weights. He put in several blasts which gave further evidence of the condition and finally brought several of the smaller boulders to the surface.

What has always been held in later years to have been a ledge is, in Mr. Mast's belief, the result of some of the first jetty work. The first work was done by hand, the rock consisting of boulders of a size that could be conveniently handled. These boulders, when the jetty sank were washed by action of the breakers from the surf and freshets in the river into the channel and finally blocked it to such extent that engineers who later sounded it thought it to be a ledge rock.

The discovery is good news as it will mean the accomplishment of the new project will require much less money. These boulders it is believed can be taken out with a dredge.

Old timers, among them Chris. Rasmussen who years ago worked on the tug, state that they never believed the ledge theory as they remember the time when there was some 25 to 28 feet of water on the bar.

Cow Commits Suicide

Here's a story one of the big news associations sent out under a Pittsburgh, Pa., date line. The reader may believe it or not just as it strikes him:

A brown and speckled cow that was being driven through the streets of Tarentum on the way to the slaughter house suddenly decided to rob the butcher of a job by committing suicide. Leaving the herd, it calmly walked into the open doorway of an apartment house, climbed up 24 steps, turned at the landing and then went up another flight. Here it pushed itself through an open window onto a roof. Turning a last look along the way it came, the cow jumped to the ground and was killed almost instantly.

Will Cut Cedar on Sixes

W. C. Case of Portland, who, with one or two associates, owns several hundred acres of cedar timber on Sixes river, closed a deal last week for the Haagensen mill near Langlois. The mill will be moved in the near future to Sixes, where clear cedar will be cut for shipment. The demand for Port Orford cedar is growing, and many firms are willing to pay war prices for it.

The moving of this mill to Sixes is one of the first results of the creation of the Port of Port Orford, Mr. Case not hesitating to go into business when assured of a wharf and water transportation.—Port Orford Tribune.

Rattlesnakes in Douglas

The Roseburg Review says that two large rattlesnakes were found in the field surrounding the E. L. Parrott residence yesterday. One of the pair was killed by a resident of that part of town and was found to be two and one-half feet long and to have ten rattles and one button. The other snake escaped. This is a very unusual circumstance, as rattlesnakes are supposed not to inhabit this part of the county.

Mrs. Burns' Letter.

Here is a letter that is certain to prove of interest to people in this vicinity, as cases of this sort occur in almost every neighborhood, and people should know what to do in like circumstances:

Savannah, Mo., Oct., 12, 1916. "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint some three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy to dozens of people since I first used it."
