Additional Myrtle Point Home

Gale Abbot, who has been making his home with his wife, Mrs. Broadbent, the past year, returned home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emery, nee Mona Ray, left for San Francisco Tuesday.

Thomas Root, one of the clerks of the Peterson's store, who, with the Brewer family, has been spending his vacation in San Francisco, will return home shortly. Please congratulate him.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lee made a business trip to Coquille Tuesday evening.

Fred Spiras, one of our home boys who has been doing his "big bit" "over there," landed in New York a short time ago and after a few days' visit with his brother in Wisconsin, hurried westward where everyone was waiting to receive him with a hearty handshake and a welcome smile.

Harold Adams, another of our boys, is expected home Friday and will receive a hearty welcome from all. Myrtle Point is indeed proud of her many brave boys.

Miss June Willey, of Fairview, visited over Sunday at Fairy Davis' home in this city and accompanied her to her school on Floras Creek where she spent the fore part of the week, returning home Wednesday.

Will Billings, who has been fighting for Uncle Sam over seas, has returned home, where he finds a hearty welcome from all.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bryant and daughter, Isabelle, motored to Gold Beach Wednesday returning home Thursday.

C. C. Carter motored to McKinley Wednesday on business. He was accompanied by his daughter, Hilda, who spent the day visiting friends.

There has been some extensive repair work done on the roof of the Carter and Davis market, evidently preparing for the rainy season.

An auto accident occurred near the Harrison place on the Myrtle Point-Powers road Tuesday. One man is reported badly injured. No particulars have been learned.

Mrs. Chas. Adams and her sister, Mrs. Jennie McKickle, of Stockton, Calif., spent Wednesday visiting at the Knight home on Catching creek.

Counting the dogs, we think Myrtle Point has the largest population of any town in Coos county. We wonder why they can not be successfully eliminated? If we had more water and less dogs our city could be made much more beautiful. "Awake Ye Dry Bones."

W. C. T. U. Convention

The Coos county W. C. T. U. isn't suited with the way the law is being enforced, or rather is not being enforced, in Coos county now, and at its annual meeting in North Bend passed the following among other resolutions:

"Resolved that this convention goes on record as much opposed to the present enforcement of the law in Coos county."

"Resolved that the W. C. T. U. will investigate the character of every man running for office."

"Resolved that this convention tender its thanks to the W. C. T. U. members and ladies of North Bend for their hospitality."

There was another resolution favoring the selection of women as members of city councils.

Myrtle Point was selected as the place for next year's meeting.

NO ANARCHY IN FORD'S VIEWS

BISHOP WILLIAMS TESTIFIES IN THE $1,000,000 LIBEL CASE AGAINST TRIBUNE.

WONT TELL "HALF-TRUTHS"

Noted Divine Says if Manufacturer's Theories Are Anarchistic Then He is in Danger Of Becoming Anarchist Himself.

Mt. Clemens, Mich.—The Chicago Tribune rested its defense in the $1,000,000 libel suit which Henry Ford has brought against it after spending seven weeks and two days in attempting to prove that it was justified in calling the manufacturer an "anarchist." The 12th week of the trial opened with Ford counsel offering rebuttal testimony against The Tribune's defense.

The first witness for Mr. Ford was the Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, D. D., Episcopal bishop of Michigan, who appeared on the stand in rebuttal of the testimony of Prof. J. S. Reeves, professor of political science in the University of Michigan who had previously testified that Henry Ford's views were distinctly anarchistic.

Bishop Williams said that Mr. Ford's views were far from being anarchistic and were, in fact, Christian, common and often commonplace.

The bishop refused to be led by Tribune counsel in his answers and insisted on telling "the whole truth." Asked whether he thought Henry Ford's declaration that all armaments should be disbanded, all navies destroyed and all material of war converted into commercial implements was anarchistic, the witness answered:

Would Be Good World.

"I could quote a half-dozen passages from Scripture that express almost that idea. I should say that the main theme of these statements by Henry Ford are distinctly Christian, commonly preached in Christian pulpits and that if they were lived up to this would be a pretty good Christian world."

"Bishop," asked Tribune counsel, "do you believe that Mr. Ford has quoted, 'patriotism is the last resort of a scoundrel.'"

"I have often said so," responded the witness. "I have often seen it so."

Concerning the doctrine of non-resistance Bishop Williams declared he did not believe in such a theory but that many Christians did.

"It is the belief of anarchists," said Tribune counsel.

"Yes and the belief of Christians."

"Will you be good enough to answer the question," retorted counsel.

"Anarchists say that and Christians say that. I am afraid I am going to tell the whole truth."

"Now Bishop—"

Would Tell Whole Truth.

"I am going to tell the whole truth."

"You are telling something I have not asked you to tell."

"You have not asked me for the whole truth. I have to follow my conscience. I am a simple man."

"I am afraid," continued the Bishop, "that if this is anarchy I agree with it mostly."

Ford counsel then called William A. Dunning, professor of history and political philosophy in Columbia University, to testify concerning Mr. Ford's theories and utterances.

"When Henry Ford," said counsel, "said that we should stop talking about one factory, one state and one country and begin to talk about the world, was he preaching the doctrine of anarchy?"

"No that is the general thought of cosmopolitanism—human inclusiveness; it has permeated all speculation on political philosophy ever since there was such a philosophy."

"Is there anything peculiarly anarchistic about it?"

"No."

"Is it in any way essential to anarchism?"

"No."

"Mr. Ford also said that he believed humanity could make mistakes but could do nothing worse; he said he believed everything tended toward the good, and that even the terrible world war would result in blessing to the world. Is there anything anarchistic about those ideas?"

"They were commonplace before an anarchist was ever heard of. The idea that man is naturally good is the basis of Plato's morals. It has permeated moral philosophy ever since."

Prof. Dunning was then asked to run through the articles and interviews sponsored by Henry Ford and indicate the portions which would convince a critical examiner that Mr. Ford was not an anarchist.

The witness promptly pointed out numerous references to the government and to the use of the ballot which showed, he said; that Mr. Ford believed in the orderly processes of government and therefore could not be an anarchist. In no writing or interview, he said, could he find a single indication that Mr. Ford was an anarchist, either in the common or philosophical conception of that term.
