Our New County Agent

Announcement has been made by the board of regents of the Oregon Agricultural College, of the appointment of Chester C. Farr as County Agricultural Agent for Coos County. Mr. Farr succeeds Mr. J. L. Smith, who resigned from the county agent position September 16th. Mr. Farr will report for duty on November 16.

In order to secure a man well qualified to carry on county agent work in Coos county, a long and painstaking search has been made and Mr. Farr has been selected from a large number of applicants. Mr. Farr's training and experience indicate that he is very well qualified to fill the position of county agent. He is a married man, 29 years of age, and was raised upon a 260 acre farm near Spokane. Dairying and the raising of wheat, hogs and sheep, were the principal industries on his father's place. In 1913 he was graduated from the Washington State College, where he took a course in agriculture, specializing in dairy husbandry and animal husbandry. From 1913 to 1916 Mr. Farr served as District Agricultural Agent in the Yakima Valley. Here he taught agriculture in the high school and at the same time did agricultural extension work among the farmers of the valley. He left the Yakima Valley in 1916 to accept the position of county agricultural agent in Snohomish County, Washington. This county has 20,000 dairy cows and at the time Mr. Farr left the county early in the year 1919, there were three cow-esting associations in operation which he had organized.

In addition Mr. Farr, in his period of service in Snohomish county, was very active in the organization of drainage and diking districts and was successful in completing three such districts, with the co-operation of local farmers. Mr. Farr left Snohomish county to accept a lucrative position with the state distributors of the Fordson tractor. He later worked with the St. John Motor company of Chehalis, Washington, the largest retail distributors of the Fordson tractor in the state. He comes to Coos county from his position.

Mr. Farr is very highly recommended by Farm Bureau officials in Snohomish county and by other farmers with whom he was associated in this county. The County Agent Leader of Washington is also very high in his praise of Mr. Farr's ability as a county agent. Similar commendable recommendations have been given Mr. Farr's work by various people with whom he has come in contact.

A desire to re-enter county agent work, combined with the excellent dairying conditions and possibilities found in Coos county, are the factors which have led Mr. Farr to accept the appointment. Mr. Paul V. Maris, State Leader of County Agents, is confident that Mr. Farr is exceptionally well qualified to carry on the work left by J. L. Smith.

Before putting forward an appointment request Mr. Maris consulted with the members of the Coos County Court and a number of dairymen in the county.

Do You Want a Fortune?

A man with a few acres of land, a few dollars and some sense can make a fortune right here in the Coquille Valley in the next ten years—not merely a good income for a few years, but absolute independence for life. The opportunity is here and, if you have the nerve to grasp it, you will be the fortunate man. The proposition is as simple as A. B. C.—it is just elementary arithmetic—a knowledge that two and two are four, that 3 times 6 is 18. Here it is:

The Coquille Valley is the best berry land in the State. A ten-year contract will insure the grower a guarantee equal to $350 per acre, and more if the market price is higher—and there you are. An average crop of 4 tons to the acre on twenty acres will produce $7,000 per year at guaranteed prices—if present prices prevail, 80 acres will produce $10,000 to $15,000 per year. It might be more "conservative" to cut these estimates in two, but it would not be true. Twenty times $350 is $7,000 and you can't make it anything else—that is what the guaranteed prices will give you with average crops; the market price this year was nearly double the guaranteed price, and you would get all the difference, less an eighth of a cent a pound. Think this over and then get a contract that will insure you big profits for ten years.

Lively Halloween Party

Mrs. Owen H. Knowlton gave one of the most delightful parties of the season at her home on East First street last Friday evening. A little Japanese lady and a brownie, afterwards revealed as Jerome Low and Frankie True, received the guests at the door. It being Halloween the guests were bidden to come masked and in costume. These instructions were well heeded for there were sailor lads and soldier boys, clowns, farmers, old-fashioned dames, Japanese and Indian maidens, summer girls, Topsy twins dwarfs and a little girl of long ago. At the guessing contest as to the identity of those present Mrs. H. C. Gets carried off high honors. Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mrs. G. E. Low won in other contests in which the rivalry ran high. The witch who could relate the past and foretell the future was in great demand and all had their palms read. Although the guests had been refreshed with doughnuts and cider at the midnight hour five darky waiters filed in and soon the thirty guests were served with a delectable luncheon, and were regaled with music by the minstrel band while they ate. It was an occasion that will long be remembered by all present.

Mrs. Barton Entertains

Mrs. J. S. Barton entertained the junior "600" club Wednesday evening at her home on South Coulter street. The living rooms were bright with autumn foliage and the rainy evening outside did not dampen the spirits of those within, but rather emphasized the pleasures of the evening.

Mrs. A. O. Walker and Mrs. J. A. Collier made the high scores in the games, while Mrs. Chas. Harlocker was consoled. After the cards the hostess served delicious refreshments, to which all present did justice.

The guests present were: Mesdames T. B. Currie, H. C. Gets, Chas. Harlocker, M. J. Hartson, Earl Leslie, Hal Piece, J. L. Smith, A. O. Walker, J. A. Collier, Ray Jeub and Stanley Bartlett and Misses Ines Bunch, Edna Harlocker, Minnie Kalbus, Geneva Robinson, Eva Schroeder and Marian Young.

Calls It a Waste of Fuel

Henry Sengstacken was over from Marshfield and dropped in at the Sentinel office to remark that it didn't look much like a fuel famine here in Coquille when we were making a bonfire of such a mass of wood as there was in the big juniper tree just cut down a couple of doors north of the Sentinel office. We have always admired those juniper trees between here and the Bledsoe, but shade is not at a premium in this country and they were monopolizing lots of good light and air. Mr. Moon is finding it a tedious job, though, even with Marshal Miller's assistance, to keep the home fires burning in the trunk and foliage of the fallen monarch. It doesn't burn as well as spruce or fir or Port Orford cedar and it's slow work getting it to "mingle with the elements," though time and patience may accomplish that work, even with incessant rains to hinder.

Monday's Rainstorm

It was, we believe McGuffey's readers, though it may have been those of an earlier vintage, which had that long tinkling jingle telling how the water came down at Ladore, but Ladore had nothing on Coos county in the way the water came down here last Monday. The rain came in if it had lots of lost time to make up and never stopped to bat an eye or to breathe. Over three inches fell here on that day and the rainy season struck its gait in a way that promises a record year. The result was a rise in the river that brought it over the lower wharf at the laundry here. Whether the oldest settler can remember as heavy a fall so early in the season we don't know. Somebody tell us.

Made a Long Day of It.

In order to get H. A. Walker of the advisory road committee over here from Larson Inlet last Wednesday evening the people of Road district No. 3 not only dug down into their pockets to pay his car fare and hotel bills but they chartered a boat to leave the inlet at 2 p. m. on account of the tides, to take him over and make connections with the train at the Bay. To get to Coquille from all parts of the county, as 25 of the committee members did last week, means strenuous effort these times, and no men better understand how much good roads are needed than those who live in isolated sections as Mr. Walker does.

The Oregon Farmer is still furnished for $2.15 in connection with the Sentinel, and why its publishers shouldn't ask a dollar or a dollar and a half a year for a paper as good as they furnish, we don't understand.

Verdict Against the Cow

An important point of law was decided in the Circuit Court here Wednesday morning when a jury found that a cow dashes in front of an automobile at her own risk. The case of Howell vs. Blake was brought to secure damages for the death of a cow under such circumstances and honors were so easy between the plaintiff and defendant when the jury retired that they stood seven for the auto and five for the cow. They went out at 8 o'clock Tuesday night and it was not until 1:30 the following morning that the auto won the case, and a verdict was given for the defendant. This doesn't mean, however, that an auto is privileged to run amuck among cows on the highway and lay them out right and left, but that a cow must use some discretion about dashing in front of a rapidly moving vehicle.

Big Onions on Bench Land

The big Yellow Danvers onions M. O. Hooton brought in show the possibilities of our bench land. He says with a little fertilizer and some more water than Nature supplies during the growing season it is possible to raise almost anything. We can bear witness, however, that without irrigation in mid summer upland gardening is time wasted.
