

Cletrac

TANK-TYPE TRACTOR

A COMPACT TRACK-LAYING MACHINE IS SUPERIOR TO THE LARGE-WHEEL TYPE TRACTOR

It is easy to mount an internal combustion engine on a frame on four wheels, throw together a transmission gear and a steering rod and call it a tractor, but that is not the method by which the Cletrac Tank-Type Tractor was designed.

A more beneficial idea was in the mind of its builder, Mr. Rollin H. White, the famous designer of motor cars and motor trucks.

It was to produce an economical and well-balanced power unit, simple, compact and sturdy, and embodying the qualities that would insure the greatest production for the user.

In Ease of Manipulation, in ability to go over plowed or unplowed ground, easily and satisfactorily, in working down into fence corners or among trees in an orchard, the Cletrac is superior to the large-wheel tractor. The large-wheel tractor, in plowed ground or soft earth, is always working under conditions where it is constantly climbing a hill. One-quarter to one-third the front half of its driving wheel is pushing against the mound of banked-up earth in front of it and packing the soil while doing so. Cletrac rides on top of the seed bed. It does not sink into it, therefore it does not have to wade or wallow through it. To even approach Cletrac operative conditions with a large-wheel tractor would require men constantly putting down and taking up planks upon which the tractor could travel.

Because it does not have to push the earth in front of it and pack it down in order to develop tractive effort, the greatest possible amount of the Cletrac's power is available for accomplishing the work it has to do. This constitutes one of the reasons for the Cletrac's remarkable fuel economy.

The Cletrac does more kinds of work more days in the year. It performs practically all the work formerly done with horses, mules and stationary power—and does it faster, better and cheaper. Call and see our latest type Cletrac.

McKinley Notes.

Homer Shepard died Tuesday, Oct. 28, of dropsy of the heart at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. K. Hansen. Mr. Bunch conducted the funeral services and the remains were laid to rest in the Dora cemetery beside those of his wife and their two children, who died when quite young. Rev. J. E. Walker preached at McKinley Sunday. There was a good crowd out even though it was quite stormy.

Mrs. George Glenn has been on the sick list but is better again now. W. H. Bunch and Walter had business at Coquille Monday.

McKinley is getting ready for an entertainment and Christmas tree at the McKinley Hall Christmas Eve. It is to be a school and Sunday School combined entertainment.

McCarthy Bros. started down the river Monday with their logs. The heavy rains Sunday and Monday brought the river up nearly bank full.

Mrs. Cardoza spent several days last week visiting her brother, Chas. Shepherd and family.

Henry Hansen has gone to the Lawhorn camp to work for a while.

A. L. Brown and wife started last Tuesday for Camas Valley for a ten weeks' visit.

The postoffice has been moved to the Hansen place, A. L. Brown having resigned in favor of H. K. Hansen.

Earl Endicott has sold his mail contract to T. Boon, who expects to take charge in the near future.

Elmer King expects to move his family to Dora next week.

Mrs. Lark Mast is visiting at Lee Mast's for a while.

Mr. and Mrs. Rat Lawhorn visited home folks last week.

At our Sunday School this week we had the largest attendance yet, there being thirty there.

Grant Wilcox is helping McCarthy's run logs.

Some of the McKinley farmers are prepared for the sugar shortage, having raised sugar cane and are now getting ready to make sorghum this year. They secured the use of a cane mill owned by some parties at Broadbent.

Grandpa Leonard, of Lee, who was reported much better a short time ago, is very low again and no hopes are had for his recovery.

Dennis McCarthy went to Marshfield Saturday to visit his family, returning Monday.

McKnight and Chenoweth

Some of those who heard the Howell murder trial here last week and saw Attorney McKnight in action as an attorney for the defense, may be interested in reading the following that occurred in the recent Chenoweth trial in Curry county, where McKnight did the cross-examining for the state.

In answer to a question about his sanity Chenoweth had said:

"Anyone who says I am insane is insane himself. I was suffering from extreme nervousness brought on by shell shock, but I was not insane."

"I quite agree with you," asserted McKnight with a trace of sarcasm in his voice. "I think you are just as sane as any of us."

Then, suddenly changing his method of attack, McKnight blandly inquired, "I presume you have read the Bible, have you not?"

"I have," replied the accused.

"You are, in fact, quite a student of the Bible, are you not?"

"I presume so."

"Then," thundered the attorney, "you know that when you shot down George Sydnam without a chance for his life you violated one of the Lord's commandments, that you committed deliberate murder. Is that not so?"

"He had sinned," answered the accused. "The Bible says the wages of sin is death."

"Your Bible also says," shot back McKnight, "Thou shalt not kill."

"Yes," came the instant reply, "and right alongside of that it says, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery.'"

Wrestler Buys a Farm

M. G. Lutsey, Coos county wrestler, and employed several years ago on the Star ranch south of Bandon and later at the Geo. P. Laird holdings at Riverton, has gone to the Willamette Valley where he and Dick Buell, another Coos county man, have purchased a 360 acre farm. Lutsey has been working at Coos Bay the past two years.—Western World.

Farming is a better job for a strong man than wrestling. It produces real wealth.

He Kills Five Bears

Charles Beckley, who resides 15 miles from Roseburg on the North Umpqua, is of the opinion that bears are becoming as common as deer, if not more so, says a Roseburg paper. During the past week, Mr. Beckley has killed four bears which he found wandering around his ranch. With the addition of one killed some time ago, he has killed five of the animals this season.

I Owe My Life to PE-RU-NA

Mr. McKinley's letter brings cheer to all who may be sufferers as he was. Read it:

"I can honestly say that I owe my life to Peruna. After some of the best doctors in the country gave me up and told me I could not live another month, Peruna saved me. Travelling from town to town, throughout the country and having to go into all kinds of badly heated stores and buildings, sometimes standing up for hours at a time while plying my trade as auctioneer, it is only natural that I had colds frequently so when this would occur I paid little attention to it, until last December when I contracted a severe case, which, through neglect on my part, settled on my lungs. When almost too late, I began doctoring, but, without result, until I bought of Peruna. It cured me; so I cannot praise it too highly."

Thirteen Deer in One Day
A. B. "Ace Boy" Carey, who has been employed at the Inman mines during the summer, has returned to his old home on the Carey range and will reside there for the present, says the Gold Beach Reporter. The Careys were among the early settlers of Curry county and at one time owned all the land along the coast north of Euchre creek for a distance of seven miles. Speaking of game conditions Mr. Carey says he recalls the day when deer, bear, elk and other wild animal abounded in the forests in great numbers. One occasion he cites in particular when he set out to break the record of twelve deer in one day. Leaving home (the place where he now resides) he went back into the hills and, circling south, came down the Corbin creek ravine to the ocean, thence up the beach to his starting point, so fatigued he could scarcely drag one foot after the other, but happy in the thought that he had accomplished his object for during the day he had killed thirteen deer, one bear and an elk. Mr. Carey says it took him a couple of weeks to pack out all of the meat.
