AROUND THE WORLD WITH THE AMERICAN RED CROSS.

Repatriating Prisoners.

When hostilities ceased there were in the hands of their Teuton captors millions of prisoners of war of all Allied countries, the terrible plight of whom is well known to all the world. Red Cross workers, carrying relief supplies of clothing, medicines and supplementary foodstuffs, penetrated the Central Powers as soon after the armistice as the military authorities would permit, and the work of getting the prisoners started back to their own countries was soon begun. In this photograph a group of these men are seen packed up and restored to something like normal health, awaiting the train that will carry them out of bondage.

Meat Wasn't Fit to Eat

The testimony in the murder case last Monday morning and afternoon was principally in regard to guns and shells, these being three guns in evidence beside that with which it was claimed Lillian Louthold was killed, Harold Howell's rebored 22, which takes a 25 shell.

The three other guns introduced were:

Another rebored 22 was introduced and was variously denominated by Attorney Kendall as "the Smith gun" and "the Shultz gun."

Then there was the Eaton gun from the Prosper neighborhood, a standard 25.

The third was the Griffin gun, also a 25.

Various experiments were performed with these guns during the trial and detailed to the jury, the shells and bullets being carefully marked as exhibits in the case.

County Clerk Oddy told of recent experiments with the Howell gun in the basement of the court house at 9 to 10 o'clock at night. They had shot six bullets into a beef's head at a distance of three feet. It appeared that the bullets were so thoroughly imbedded in the bone of the beef's head that it had to be sent down to Bock's market to have them extracted and they were a good deal mused up by that time.

Mr. Oddy testified that the exhibits of shells and bullets from the Howell gun made at the former trial had been in his possession ever since.

Hark Dunham identified a gun shown him as one that had been used down at his woodshed where they had placed a piece of meat on slats in a bucket half full of water and fired shots into the meat. He said they afterward got the shells out of the water in the bucket. He knew nothing about where this gun was on the day of the murder.

At the same time some experiments were made with another gun, called the Lewis gun, and the court directed that a subpoena be issued for its owner.

On request Mr. Dunham produced the hunk of beef that had been used as a target in these experiments and laid it down at his feet where he sat in the witness chair.

"Is that meat in a putrid condition?" asked Judge Coke, who seemed to have begun to smell something.

"Well I wouldn't want to eat it," answered Hark.

The court ordered the meat removed and Hark went out with it.

Just here the court changed the subject by asking Hark if Juror Raymond, who was boarding at his house was a brother-in-law of his. Dunham answered that he was not. The next question was whether the matter of making these experiments had been discussed in the presence of Juror Raymond. He said it had not; that the shots had been fired in the woodshed at 9 or 10 o'clock after court had convened.

John C. Kendall was sworn and testified the gun was not his but that on Dec. 1 it had been given to him by Mr. Howell.

As to the Griffin gun he had found it in the grand jury room on Wednesday of last week.

Farther on Mr. Kendall spoke of the first gun mentioned in the woodshed experiments as the Shultz gun. Asked by Mr. Sherwood why he had called it the "Smith gun" when he knew just as much about it as he did now, Mr. Kendall seemed a little confused and failed to explain.

Mr. Sherwood asked for a subpoena for C. H. Howell, and later he was brought into court and testified that he was looking for a rebored 22 and heard that a man named Shultz out in the valley had one, found the man at Pleasant Home, fifteen miles south of Albany and bought the gun for $10. Shultz didn't tell him how long it had been out there.

One might have thought from what was said about rebored 22's by the defendant's counsel that they were as thick as blackberries in Coos county, but it seems they were unable to find one much short of Albany.

The Griffin gun has another story entirely. James Griffin and his wife both testified that it had been brought up from California last summer early in July by a brother and that it had been in their possession ever since. On the 27th of July last they went up to Lampa to visit F. H. Strain, Mrs. Griffin's father. They got back about 7 o'clock bringing the gun home

WE take this opportunity of thanking the good people of the community for their splendid patronage extended to us the last nine months which has made our business more than double of our proud-est hopes when we opened up on our new plan last April first—of course we attribute a share of this to friendliness and a large share to the following:

We have reduced the price of canned goods
Selling at 30c down to 20c to 25c
Selling at 25c down to 18c
Selling at 20c down to 15c

Flour from $12.75 per bbl. down to $12.25, or from $3.25 per sack down to $3.10 per sack and the wholesale price has advanced $1.50 per bbl. or 37 1-2 per sk.
Whole Hams and Bacon from 50c per lb. down to 42 1-2c and the wholesale price has raised.

We have been the means of holding the price down on many different articles, and that is not all—Our prices are still AWAY BELOW all other stores, excepting Cash & Carry Stores, on hundreds of articles in the food line. These facts are what are making these stores the most popular all over the country.

We have our second price list just off the press, and if you have not received one, call in and get one or send us your name and address and we will mail you one. It should be in the hands of every householder in the county—if you are interested in keeping down your living costs. It contains 357 different articles—most every one a money saver.

Remember our guarantee is to save you on any ordinary grocery order from 5 to 25 per cent—many things you can save 20 to 25 per cent on—give us a trial. Start the New Year right.

Wishing you a Happy and Prosperous New Year with them. It had been in their house all night unless some one came and took it away after they went to sleep and brought it back before they woke up. All this testimony about these various guns seemed very far from any connection with the Howell case, and merely made it evident that the defense had a drag net out for guns. And yet to bring all the bullets and shells from experiments with these guns into the case for examination by the jury could have had no other result than to confuse them.

Church of Christ Notes

On last Sunday morning there was a large audience to listen to the story of the Christ Child, which was so vividly drawn by Mrs. Dallas. She finished by leaving the thought that it is more blessed to give than to receive. The evening subject, "Watch," was certainly fine and well delivered.

With special music by the choir and 84 in Sunday School, on time; also a good Endeavor meeting, with Mr. Kelley as leader; we feel that the Master is with us in our earnest efforts to please Him. The prayer meetings are fine and well attended. Everyone welcome. Come hear Mrs. Dallas next Lord's Day, morning and evening.—Church Correspondent.
