East Fork Notes

Monday morning the J. D. Laird family received a message that Earl Endicott died at 1:30. They had received a message Saturday that he was worse, so this last message was not unexpected. For four years, lacking a few days, Earl Endicott carried the mail from Sumner to Sitkum, tri-weekly trips. In all our dealings, without a single exception, we always found him accommodating and on the square.

Last week Thursday two big trucks of Gaskells brought up machinery for the new saw mill in Brewster Valley. They returned to Coquille Friday loaded with spuds and came back again Saturday loaded with more mill machinery.

James Benham hauled a load of road lumber Saturday and Alex Austin, Walter Laird, and William Culbertson laid the last of the split lid over the mud hole west of Culbertson's.

Albert-Christensen thought he would butcher a cow Sunday. In order that he might stick her easily he thought he would shoot her. He took a shot at her, the bullet grazed her neck, cut the bell strap and the cow struck out for new pastures without a bell to tell which way she was going. They did not find her until she came home at night. The next morning they made beef of her. Berta Laird, of Brewster Valley, passed the 8th grade examination.

Word has been received that the funeral of Earl Endicott is to be at the Dora cemetery Thursday at one o'clock.

The police of the Federation of Labor made Boston ashamed. The irresponsibles of Omaha put that city on a diet of sackcloth and ashes, but Milwaukee has made herself notorious as the place where the alien and the foreigner masquerade in the garb of the citizen, and show their contempt for their citizenship by voting for a criminal to represent them in Congress. Thank the Lord, that even if traitors vote for a traitor to represent them in Congress, there is no seat in Congress for the traitor, he is kicked out. "Cast not your pearls before swine lest they turn again and rend you," is a good precept to remember

The American Dollar

Has the purchasing power of about one half of what it had a few years ago.

The prudent person is buying none but the essentials and is "laying by" his money until it has a greater purchasing value.

Why not put part of your high wages and part of your high priced farm products in our savings department and let it draw interest, then later, use it when it has the purchasing ability of 100 cents.
