12 People Burned to Death

Probably the worst fire that ever occurred in Southern Oregon was the one that destroyed the Huston House, an old rambling hotel, at Klamath Falls Sunday night with the loss of probably a dozen lives. The actual number may never be known as the register was burned and there were about 180 people there that night, many having come in for the Labor Day celebration Monday. The hotel was built back against a hill so that the people in the third story had only to jump 12 feet to reach the ground; but the building was a fire trap and the flames spread so fast that many were suffocated before they could escape.

A man and wife with son and daughter had just arrived from the east. The mother and daughter were in the upper story and the father and son in a lower one. When the father found his wife and daughter were still in the flaming building he had to be held by the bystanders to prevent his rushing into the fire to try to rescue them.

One woman had a child three days old which she threw into an outstretched basket, held by firemen, where it was caught without injury, but she was badly hurt.

The flames spread to adjoining blocks besides the one in which the hotel was located, the opera house being destroyed. The loss of property by the fire is estimated at $150,000.

A refuse heap in the yard is supposed to have been the origin of the fire.

Reading of the heartrending scenes there, we recall very vividly the warning fire films shown at the Liberty Theatre here early this year; and it is well to recall what the deplorable who made a survey of Coquille then said about the fire hazards here.

A fire survey of Klamath Falls was made last year and in that report it was pointed out that that city had no ordinance regulating the construction of buildings, and the prediction made that unless this condition was corrected immediately "Klamath Falls will be known as a conflagration town. It would be well for the people of Coquille to take heed right now of the warnings the same deputy wardens have since given us.

Death of H. T. McClellan

H. T. McClellan, who made his home with his daughter, Mrs. T. F. Lane in the Roy district, a mile and a half above here died Sunday morning Aug. 29, following a second stroke of paralysis. He came from Pendleton, Oregon, and had been here only three months. He had been a partial invalid for seven and a half years, following his first stroke, but his last illness was only of a months duration. He was born in Virginia, and was one of a family of ten children, of whom only one or two survive him. Two daughters, alone survive him, Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Myers.

A very appropriate funeral sermon was preached by Rex Dallas, our Christian minister.

Card of Thanks

We desire to thank the many friends for their sympathy in our recent bereavement, for the flowers and especially for the singing.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Lane.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Myers and family.

Don't Want to Prescribe It

Speaking of the rule which allows doctors to prescribe booze, Dr. Karl Meyer, of Chicago, says:

"Why make saloon keepers out of doctors? Bartenders would be more direct for those members of the profession who indulge in the practice."

Dr. Meyer who is superintendent of the Cook County hospital at Chicago, stated that prohibition has decreased the number of patients in that hospital from 2000 daily to 1200.

Former Teacher Married

Those who knew Mr. Douglass when he was an instructor in our city high school will be interested in reading the following notice of his marriage to Miss Gladys Carson, of Salem, which we clip from last Saturday's Eugene Guard.

"A lovely home wedding was observed on Wednesday of this week when Miss Gladys Carson, of Salem, became the bride of L. C. Douglass, of this city, at the home of the bride's parents in Salem. Dr. Edwin Sherwood, of the Kimball College of Theology, read the services in the presence of thirty-five relatives and intimate friends of the young couple. The bride was lovely in a girlish gown of white crepe de chine, and she carried a bouquet of daisy pink Caroline Test-out roses. The double ring ceremony was used. Both Mr. and Mrs. Douglass are graduates of Willamette University with the class of 1917, the bride being an instructor in the Normal school at Monmouth since that time. She will now be principal of the Condon school at Eugene. The groom is connected with the extension division of the University, and during the past year took graduate work at the University. Mr. and Mrs. Douglass are at home at 1658 Thirtieth avenue east, in this city."

Plant the Evergreens

All the rural inhabitants of Western Oregon know what the evergreen blackberry is, how abundantly it produces and how like a weed it grows and spreads. In view of the fine quality of the fruit and the rapidly growing demands for it, the Oregon Journal suggests:

"Why wouldn't it be a good idea to plant evergreen blackberries on thousands of acres of logged-off lands in Oregon and Washington, letting the stumps furnish supports for the vines? Then organize canneries to handle the fruit. It would solve, profitably, and almost immediately, the problem of lending productivity to vast areas now not only waste but hideous."

Court in Curry Next Week

Judge John S. Coke and the court stenographer Mrs. Scott, are going down to Curry county Sunday for the September term of the Circuit Court, which will open there Monday. Suits for damages against the C. & O. logging company, sparks from whose engines it is claimed last year destroyed the town of Harbor, are the most important cases to come before the court.

"I do not think much of a man who is not wiser to-day than he was yesterday," said Abraham Lincoln.

To this you might add Beethoven's, "Every day that we spend without learning something is a day lost."

Have you learned that the De Laval Cream Separators and milking machines are money makers for their owners and can not be surpassed for clean skimming, ease of operation and cleaning and long life? If not, you are losing not only days but dollars.

Come in and see them the first time you are in town. Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL.
