

Mental Training for Good Citizenship

The mental and the moral training for good citizenship are so very closely allied that it is somewhat difficult to know just where to draw the line, for we seldom have the one without the other.

When our Missionaries go out to convert the heathen, they find their work greatly handicapped by the illiterate condition of the people where they are working, and before they can accomplish anything at all must go down to the very lowest round of the ladder and establish schools and classes where both children and grown people may be taught something aside from the lessons and morals found in the Bible.

As the citizens are, so is the nation; thus in our most highly civilized countries we find the best educated people. Indeed we need not go out of our own country to find this true. In some of our Southern states, the education of the children is not compulsory, consequently, a great many are not able to read and write.

We are glad to say that we do not find such conditions prevailing in our own state. While our high schools are not yet up with those of many other states, we are making rapid strides of advancement in that direction, and our public school system, complete and thorough, is one of which we are justly proud.

The mental training is begun when the child is quite young. It has been said that a child has half his education when he is five years old, while the Catholics say, "Give me a child until he is five years old and you may have him if you can get him."

Then how very essential that children should have proper training when small. As many of our schools are not yet supplied with the kinder-garten department, this training must be done in the home.

one of the most important on election day. I heard him say that he had voted the Republican ticket for forty years, and expected to vote that thicket as long as he lived.

As the child gets much of his training in school, a large responsibility rests upon the teacher. But how much easier it is when she has the hearty co-operation of the parents and school board.

Let us strive to do what is in our power to educate the boys and girls, and thus bring about an even better state of civilization.

Myrtle Point Items.

EDITOR HERALD—Items are scarce this week—Mr and Mrs. S. B. Hermann's little three-year-old daughter Dorothy met with a serious accident Sunday afternoon. In some way the little one got hold of some matches and set fire to her clothing.

Her hair was burned on one side, and her face also, both arms and her stomach. But for the fact that she had on a woolen dress and skirt her burns would have been much more serious. Mrs Hermann had just left the children and gone into the house when the catastrophe occurred.

Dr. Stemmler is in charge but cannot tell yet how badly she is injured, as she was immediately put under an anesthetic.

Mrs. E. E. Bender has been much worse since last issue, and has been obliged to give up her intention of teaching. The North Bend ladies may have started their Club before we did, but the first Improvement Club was organized 15 years ago and at that time the fence was built and pavilion erected. The present club is not a resurrection of the old one, however.

Big Strike in Greenhorn.

Sumpter, Or., March 27.—Big excitement reigns here today over a wonderful strike in the Greenhorn district, made by Edward Gilkey and Samuel Kershaw, on the Belmont group, near the Morning mine. They have cleaned up $3,000 in four days. The gold is on exhibit here today.

The Belmont group consists of seven claims, and the strike was made from surface work. The ledge is eight feet wide, as far as proven, with pay streaks one foot wide coming in. The ledge was first opened March 19.

The ore consists of quartz with wire gold thickly sprinkled all through. The clean-up will be sent to Portland for display at the Lewis and Clark Fair.

Norman Williams and George W. Lauth are to hang. The Supreme Court has confirmed the judgment of the trial courts in their respective cases.

Both of these men are slayers of women, and therefore cowardly as well as brutal murderers. Both, previous to the commission of the crimes for which they are to hang, lived lives of vicious debauchery. Both had sinned grievously against the women whom they slew.

Growing Aches and Pains

Mrs. Josie Sumner, Bremond, Tex. writes, April 15, 1902 "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in the house. I have used it on my little girl for growing pains and aches in her knees. It cured her right away. I have also used it for frost bitten feet, with good success. It is the best liniment I ever used." 25c, 50c and $1.00. R. S. Knowlton.
