Coos County's Showing at the Lewis and Clark Fair.

The Portland Telegram speaking of the Coos county exhibit at the Fair and reciting the benefits that this section will receive thereby, says:

"To say that Coos county is jubilant would be putting it mildly. With a separate exhibit building—the only one of the kind on the grounds—and with an excellent showing of the county's resources, the people of Coos county feel that in the part that they have played at the Lewis and Clark Fair they have achieved a triumph—and they are exultant.

"We have scored an unqualified success," said W. Haydon, who with F. H. Bingham, the architect who designed the Coos County building, has had charge of the county's exhibit at the Fair. "And our success is distinctive," he continued, "for Coos county was the only one in the state to put up an individual building and make an individual exhibit therein.

"Had the other counties done as we did—and there is not one but could have done so—the result in the advertising of the state would have been quite different. As a result of the enterprise of Coos county the county has been given more effective advertising than any part of the state, and with the visitors to the Fair from the East, on their return home, Coos county stands out prominently as one of the richest in resources in Oregon. In the Easterner's estimate of Oregon Coos county now has a distinctive place. We are sure of this, and all because of an effective stroke at the right moment.

"Mr. Brigham, the architect who drew the plans for the Coos county building, says the structure will be sold and the exhibits for the most part returned to the county. He could give no accurate estimate of the cost of the building, but, in view of the fact that practically all of the lumber used in its construction was picked lumber, its cost must have been a considerable item to the county. But Coos county counts the cost of the building and the expense of maintaining its exhibit during the Fair as a small price to pay for the advertising it has received."

Gauging American Territory.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 1—The United States stands a chance of losing millions of valuable property if congress at the coming session ratifies the surveys of the boundary made by British and American engineers now engaged in marking the international line, as the United States will lose a strip fourteen miles wide and between two and three hundred miles long, northward from Portland canal. The strip possesses untold mineral wealth in gold, silver and copper, that remaining for the States being only valuable for timber.

As a result of an indignation meeting held at Ketchikan, Chas. H. Cosgrove was appointed to attend the Alaskan convention to be held at Seattle on Nov. 15th and insist on a protest to congress against the negligence of the American engineers.

The United States is feeling a great deal of sympathy and admiration for Japan but will she be so enthusiastic about the little yellow man when she meets him in business? The Japanese have learned the art of modern warfare but people who have business dealings with them say they have yet to learn the first principles of the assumption that a man's word should be as good as his bond. In short they do not know or practice common honesty.

Constipation.

Health is absolutely impossible, if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable condition is unnecessary. There is a cure for it. Herbine will speedily remedy matters. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla., writes, Feb. 12, 1902: "Having used Herbine, I find it a fine medicine for constipation." 50 cents a bottle. Sold by R. S. Knowlton.

Surveyors on Coos Bay Line.

Southern Pacific engineers, under the direction of Chief Engineer Hood, of San Francisco, are busy at work surveying for the line of the Oregon Western Railroad to be built from Drain to Marshfield, the Coos Bay line, and if their efforts are not hampered by too much adverse weather conditions and natural obstacles the actual construction work will be commenced in a short time.

Large forces of engineers are now in the field, surveying the grades between the two terminals of the line. The road will run from Drain along Elk Creek and the Umpqua River to the Coast at Gardiner, from there along the Coast to the head of Coos Bay and around that body of water to Marshfield. The entire distance will be about 81 miles, and the cost of the road will be approximately $3,500,000.

In addition to the surveyors, the company also has a number of men employed securing the rights of way through the country, and it is upon the work of these men in large part that the commencement of the construction depends. If they are able to secure the rights along the entire length of the line easily and rapidly the construction work will be commenced that much sooner than if the task proves difficult.

The Harriman lines of Oregon have placed an order for 27,000 tons of rails with Eastern rolling mills and 10,000 tons of this order is for use on the Oregon Western. The remaining larger part will be used in the relaying of the Oregon lines of the Southern Pacific and of the O. R. & N.

But little is known in Portland of the progress of the work on the new line, as the entire scheme is under the direction of the San Francisco offices, but from what is known it is assured that the actual building operations will be commenced as soon as the engineering corps can finish its work and get out of the way.

Drain, Or., Oct. 25.—(Special.) The surveying crew which began work here about August 1 on the proposed Drain-Marshfield railroad line is now within a few miles of Scottsburg, at which place the survey reaches tidewater. A very easy grade has been found thus far. Right-of-Way Agent J. W. Nier, who has been on the ground for the past two months, has secured the right of way for a considerable portion of the distance surveyed and is paying cash for the same.

Actual construction work has not yet begun, but is expected to soon and certainly will not be deferred longer than early the coming Spring.

A Narrow Escape.

Thomas Contes, the night watch for Mr. Jacobson, had an experience yesterday morning that was not to his liking and which gave him a tussle for his life.

He watches the wharves that Mr. Jacobson has put in for the purpose of transporting rock across the river, and had been looking after boats and other paraphernalia at the South wharf from which he crossed to the North side of the river. He climbed out of his boat onto the wharf and seems to have been blinded by the light of his lantern, and desiring to see how things were on the other side of the wharf he started for that point and walked off into the river. On coming to the surface he saw a rope a short distance away, and succeeded in reaching it, making his way on to some piling that was tied near by.

Having succeeded in getting on to the piling, a few lusty shouts brought a couple of the life saving boys to the rescue, who took him away from his uncomfortable position. The accident occurred about five o'clock in the morning.—Bandon Recorder.

The anarchists never dreamed that they would have the mosquito as an ally. On the present trip through South the Secret service is enlisted as much against the mosquito as the assassin's bullet.

County Court Proceedings.

In re petition for a County Road from Myrtle Point to Rowland Prairie:
Final order: Report of the viewers be accepted; profiles and plats be recorded in the county records, and the supervisor of said district open said road for the use of the public; that, that portion of the old road embraced in the new road be vacated.

In re the petition for a county bridge across South Slough on the Bandon and Empire county road:
This matter coming on at this time to be heard, and the same after being duly considered: It is ordered that the County Court cause to be prepared plans and specifications and advertise for bids for the construction of said bridge, to be passed upon at the January, 1906, term.

In re payment for the balance due for constructing Lee bridge:
Order: When said bridge is accepted by two of the members of this court, L. Harlocker, county judge, be authorized to make an order directing the county clerk to draw an order on the county treasurer in favor of J. D. Bennett for the balance due on said contract.

Taxes and Taxation.

In re rebate on taxes paid by A. Vanzile:
