Patronize the merchants and business men of your home town on every occasion that you can. Stretch a point and leave your money where it will do the most good. When you send it away for something that you could procure here in your town. But if you send your money to the cities it will do no one any good, but will in a degree help to build up outside business and do an injury to the business men of your own city. Of course, the mail orderhouses and department stores are large advertisers and keep eternally at it, and that is where they make their money on the outside business. People that are fools enough to send away their hard earned dollars and buy something unsight and unseen as the kids say when they "swap" jackknives, should never complain about gotten up to sell the goods, they give the prices of everything they have for sale, which is the only right way, because the good housewife in reading the papers'will always look, read and study the ads that have the prices to the goods, and the same without the prices they would not look at. If the merchants want thousands of miles for everything they want on account of the prices being in print, all they have to do is to advertise their prices and show the people what they have and the bargains they have right at home, to obtain without the extra price of a letter and postage stamp and then the express charges that will more department store price and the prices of the home merchants. A p roon might be able to save a few cents on their purchases, but in the end they would find that they were not as they were represented in the catalogue. Another thing is almost impossible to change a purchase after it has been taken out of the express office. But when you buy your goods of the home merchant, you can have all mistakes rectified. A merchant of this city was relating an incident that happened to him a few years ago in connection with mail order houses, it was this: a lady sent to Chicago to one of the lady sent to Chicago to one of the mail order houses for a watch and it came with the privilege of examination, and she called on the merchant to go over and make an examination of the article, and on his resend to the city for her goods, be. increase.' cause the price of the goods at_ tracts her attention and if our local merchants would use the same attractions and with a little more printer's ink judiciously applied installed pastor of the Christian and print the price of the goods church on Sunday evening last in in large black type they would see the presence of a large congregation. the benefits accruing from it on The several ministers of the city as every day of the year.
