Thursday evening on learning that the stuff could be gotten to the Bay in time to catch the Breakwater, Mayor Stanley called a meeting at the courthouse for the purpose of starting the work to do something for the San Francisco sufferers. Potatoes seemed to be the most accessible product that could be handled to advantage, so a committee to take the lead was appointed and in a very short time the work was under way. There being no great quantity of potatoes in town the steamer Favorite took a number of men and boys to Ed Johnson's place, and another crew went down to Chas. Dye's wharf they sacked spuds till about 3 a. m. A train was sent over, leaving here about four in the morning, taking 325 sacks of potatoes from this place and about the same amount from Myrtle Point.

Obituary.
William Colvin was born January 6, 1829, in Boone county, Missouri, and died at his home on Rineck creek near Coquille, Oregon, April 20, 1906, age 77 years, 3 months and 14 days.
Mr. Colvin crossed the plains with ox teams, coming to Portland, Oregon, in 1850. The year following he went to the mines in California, and from there to Idaho in 1859, and came to Coos county in 1865, and settled on the place where he lived until death came and took him into the world beyond.
He was married to Elizabeth Stillwell in 1867, and to this union was born nine children, four boys and five girls, all of whom are living, and were all present at the funeral services. Mr. Colvin was a good father, and an honorable citizen. He died in the christian faith, expressing a desire to go to that home where there is no sickness, sorrow or death. The funeral services were held at his home, conducted by Rev. H. M. Branham, assisted by the Adventist choir who sang appropriate and beautiful songs. His body was laid to rest on the farm in the place selected by himself 36 years ago. He leaves a wife and nine children to mourn. May God comfort and bless the bereaved family and bring them all at last to that beautiful home above.
