Impressions of Coquille Valley.

EDITOR HERALD:—Having traveled over different sections of California, and having now for the first time gotten a view of your fertile and picturesque valley, I would beg to say a few words through your valued columns with reference to the impressions I have formed.

To begin I would remark that nowhere have I encountered a more beautiful region where the hand of nature had lent better touch and paved the way for industrious endeavor than right here in Coquille Valley. With its marginal skirting of timber covered hills, its generous extent of rich grassy lands affording sustenance for countless herds, and with its winding deep-bottomed river, shaded recesses and attractive dwellings and towns, the valley at once presents a picture that is fascinating in the extreme. I am not astonished that this section is becoming more and more peopled, and that its wealth and prosperity are steadily enhancing. The justifying conditions are plentifully existent, and your settlers know the possibilities and have the means and disposition to forge ahead.

I note with pleasure that dairying has taken a conspicuous place in your column of industries, and is even now as well established as in some of the best favored regions of California. This didn't surprise me when I observed the excellent adaptability of your soil and climate, as well as the faces of some men whom I know achieved plentiful success in the pursuit of other climes. Dairying is admittedly a most remunerative calling when intelligently followed in adapted locality. It is a matter of history that the introduction of the industry in Humboldt county was followed by the lifting of long standing mortgages, the supplanting of old shacks with fine homes, and the rapid accumulation of bank accounts. Humboldt, while lumbering heads her list, is nevertheless the foremost butter-producer of California's counties, and the per capita wealth there is extraordinary. These erstwhile Humboldt dairymen and creamerymen who have transferred their labors to Coos county tell me that in many respects Coos possesses advantages over Humboldt for their business. One disadvantage, however, is the singular scarcity of milkers, and this fact is destined to lead to the purchase of the patent milking machine on some of your dairies, provided, of course, the permitted trial of the machine proves satisfactory.

With your butter second in quality to none, with your creameries as well equipped as the best, and with good marketing facilities and enlarging and improving dairy herds there is no reason why the dairying business in Coos should not be fraught with every promise for the future and prove a most formidable agency in the upbuilding of the county's prosperity.

Coos, however, has many and varied resources, I observe, and not of insignificant import is her lumbering and coal mining. But of these more has been written and is known, perhaps, than of her dairying which more recently became flourishing here and has the distinguishing feature of bringing not alone excellent but frequent financial returns. Your coal and lumber, I also ascertain, find production in large part in the country contiguous to your beautiful Valley of the Coquille, which fact gives added importance to southern Coos as a producing center.

Respectfully, A VISITOR.

Anti-Saloonists Indorse.

Following is the ticket as indorsed by the meeting called by the Law and Order League which convened at the court house yesterday: Ed Raeliff, Joint Representative; W. F. Disher, Representative; J. F. Hall, County Judge; C. E. Cleghorn, County Clerk; A. McNair, Commissioner; A. N. Gould, Surveyor.

Hon. J. D. Stevens of Portland will speak on the political issues from the standpoint of Socialism in Coquille on Sunday evening, May 27th; all, including ladies, invited. Mr. Stevens is said to be a gifted and logical speaker.

The Coos Bay Congress.

(Oregonian.)

The Farmers' and Shippers' Congress and Coos County Farmers' Institute, which will be held at North Bend, Oregon, May 23-24, is one of the most important meetings yet scheduled by the Willamette Valley Development League. It will be of especial interest to the people of Portland and the Willamette Valley, for the reason that it will be held in a very rich section of Oregon which up to this time has not received the exploitation to which it was entitled. The Coos Bay country will soon be given railroad connection with Portland and will be as easy of access as any of the Willamette Valley cities and towns. This will, of course, enable us to cultivate a closer social and business relation with our southern neighbors than is now possible. At the same time Portland and the other Willamette Valley cities and towns owe something to our enterprising friends in the southern part of the state.

Even when hampered by poor transportation facilities, they have stood loyally by Portland, so far as it was possible for them to do. Year after year they have joined with us on all enterprises of a public nature, even though their isolated position of the state. Their splendid exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Fair was a wonderful tribute to their enterprise, and it is now up to Portland to show, at least in a mild degree, our appreciation of their enterprise by sending a good delegation to the forthcoming convention. The San Francisco disaster has caused diversion to this city of a considerable amount of trade from the Coos Bay country, and this start, which will be increased as soon as the railroad is completed, makes it highly important that we should show due appreciation of the efforts of the developers of Southern Oregon.
