A Great Company.

If you want to hear music that you will whistle for days and listen to comedy that you will revive itself in your mind for days afterwards, just see "The Pride of New York" which comes to the Opera House on Jan. 9th. It is among the reigning successes in the farcical line and wins unstinted applause where ever presented. The story deals of show life and its many humorous tribulations in connection with a contemplated production. The characters are all true to life and have been met by thousands who have met actor folks in any condition. There is a speculating Hebrew, the directing German, the legitimate Shakespearian devotee, the tough soubrette, the love sick tenor and prima donna who acts for the love of it, together with a coterie of others and the chorus. During the action of the play there are no less than 14 musical numbers interwoven that never fail to delight the auditor. This company is now playing Marshfield to the biggest business in the history of their house and is pronounced by all to be the greatest organization that has ever visited this part of the state. The second night will be "Girl from Frisco" which is another screaming comedy with plenty of catch specialties and lots of pretty wardrobe. The marshfield Times pronounce this the greatest Company that has visited this part of the state. The prices will be 25, 50 and 75 cents.

Wave Hits Breakwater.

The Breakwater returned to the harbor this afternoon with her port damaged from the effects of a huge wave which swept the decks of the boat near the whistling buoy. Three men are at the hospital in North Bend seriously hurt and another suffered minor injuries, all of them being members of the crew. Only one of the passengers in the steerage was injured and immediately after the accident the steamer put back into the harbor and is now tied up at her dock at North Bend. Beyond the bruising of the seamen pretty badly it is not thought the damage is serious enough to interfere with the boat continuing her trip tomorrow.

According to the report of a passenger who arrived in Marshfield, four seamen were badly injured. Two are not expected to recover, a third had both legs and collar bone broken, and the fourth is badly bruised. The steerage was washed clear of the decks, and baggage was sent all over the ship, some of it going overboard after the breaking of the guard.

The accident happened as the ship was going out. She had dipped forward in the hollow of a wave, when an immense comber swept the ship from end to end, coming in on the port side. A window in the pilot house was broken, and only the absence of steerage passengers prevented other casualties. The seamen were inside the when the crash came. The boat went out to sea four miles before returning. The accident happened at noon and the boat returned to North Bend at 3:30 o'clock. She may be laid up several days for repairs, and meanwhile every effort is being to save the injured man.

LATER.

A. M. Ollavia, seaman—dead from result of broken jaw, collar bone, legs and badly mangled generally.
J. Abbersath, seaman—jaw broken, scalp badly cut, collar bone and ribs broken.
O. Simpson, seaman—badly bruised about the head and body.
K. Hern, seaman—bruised about the body.—Coos Bay Times.

A rare opportunity is now presented to those who want advanced instruction on the piano. Mrs. D. W. Bourn, late of Chicago, who is making her home with Dr. Wetmore's family this winter, whose ad appears in this issue will take a class preferring those who are advanced. All who have heard her play have no hesitancy in pronouncing her an artist. Her recommendations could be no higher than Dr. Ziegfeld's Musical college of Chicago, of which she is a graduate.

Woman's Study Club.

The Club meeting of Saturday last, held with Mrs. Figg, was well attended. Reviews of Chas Kingsley's Hypatia and Westward Ho, were given and a few of his short poems read; The balance of the work selected from this another to be finished next Sat. The hour devoted to Domestic Science work was occupied with the reading and discussion of articles, bearing upon the chosen subject, "Laboratory Tests," it being treated from a "pure food" point of view. All present entered heartily into the work, and at its conclusion enjoyed the cake and chocolate served by the hostess.

The next meeting of the club will be held with Mrs. Sperry.

He is feeling much better now than he did through the summer months and he is of the opinion that a dry climate would not suit him.
