Jane Addams on the Ballot for Working Women.

"No one in touch with the lives of our working people can be satisfied with existing conditions, either industrial or domestic," says Jane Addams in an article of absorbing interest in the April Woman's Home Companion. "Very much of this undesirable state of affairs has come about through the fact that industrial and domestic activities have so largely slipped out of the control of women with her home-building instincts, her love for order and her passion for details.

"The old division of labor, which defined man's work as that lying outside the home and woman's inside had much to recommend it. The trouble with us is that we have enlarged the boundaries of the home and have not enlarged the home maker's powers with it.

For what is the modern factory, from the cotton mill to the steam laundry, from the flour mill to the canning works, but a place where an assemblage of workers do on a large scale for the whole community what each individual housekeeper used to do on a small scale for her own household? What are all these new social efforts—our public-school system, our municipal playgrounds, our public baths and libraries, our systems of street cleaning and transportation, our hospitals and asylums—but modern efforts to meet in modern ways the old needs of humanity? Are women to have no direction in these matters because the innate desire to help others, to feed, to clothe, to nurse, to teach and to train the race has taken on new forms

New York, April 2.—In discussing business conditions, James J. Hill who just arrived from Washington expressed himself as unable to predict an early revival of business. He believes that the revival will be gradual.

Local police say that recently he purchased a lively stable here and pawned $500 worth of jewelry. He will be returned to Spokane with a requisition.

Rankin will leave today to install immigration stations at fourteen different points on the international boundary line between the Pacific coast and the Great Lakes. "One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin."

When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy for sale by R. S. Knowlton.

Neither history nor fiction has given to the world a more marvelous record of women's patriotic devotion and daring than Kellogg Durland's thrilling story of one of the Russian women of the Revolution in the April WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION.

"Babushka" she is called. She is a noble-born Russian woman, who has given her life to the cause of freeing the people of Russia. After she had spent three years in prison, four years more in the mines of Siberia, and fourteen years more in exile, she exclaimed to an American who visited her, "We may die in exile, and our children may die in exile, and our children's children may die in exile, but something will come of it at last."

The story of this wonderful woman is dramatically and sympathetically told by Kellogg Durland, who visited her in her hiding place in Russia for the WOMAN'S HOME COMPANION.
