W. L. Kistner informs us that the plans for bringing the Ferndale (California) baseball nine to Coos county for a game at Marshfield during the fair and another at this place subsequently fell through last Saturday. The Ferndale team, which is a crackerjack local aggregation, was eager to come for expense money, and Coquille would have borne her share of the cost but Marshfield concluded she had attractions sufficient already for the fair. Hence a negative telegram was sent the would-be victors on the eve of their departure for Coos Bay. The failure to carry out the plan is to be greatly regretted, as the ball players would have certainly brought a goodly number of admirers with them, some of whom would have likely been captivated by our wonderful country and climate.
