No doubt many readers of the HERALD will be shocked to learn of the death of Prof. Milton Edmunds who died at The Dalles, this State, on December 26th, aged 58 years, 8 months and 20 days. Heart failure was cause of Mr. Edmunds' sudden taking off. The deceased moved from this county to The Dalles months ago, where he leaves a wife and four children to mourn this great loss. Mr. Edmund was one of Coos county's successful and popular teachers, having taught in a number of districts in the county where many children will read this mention with deep regrets.

CO. TREASURER DULLEY DEAD.

On Monday last, at near the meridian hour, death put a period to the earthly career of John B. Dulley, Coos county's venerable and trusted Treasurer. The end came at his home in this city, and was not unexpected during the past several days, the throat affliction which long had assailed him, and which months ago destroyed his power of speech, finally completing its deadly work. Until quite recently the sufferer retained his active faculties and ability to attend to office duty.

John B. Dulley was one of Coos county's earliest pioneers, and, as well, one of her best and most honored citizens. Since 1900 he had successively been chosen County Treasurer, and he never betrayed his trust. A native of Pittsburgh, Penn., where he was born June 30, 1834, he died at the ripe age of 74 years 5 months and 28 days. A widow is left to mourn his demise; also six grown sons and three daughters by a former marriage.

The funeral is announced for two o'clock this afternoon from Christ Church, Coquille, interment to be made in Masonic Cemetery.

Until Wednesday next the office of County Treasurer will be closed, or until such a time as the County Court can name a person to fill the unexpired term, and the appointee has filed his official bond.

Mr. Axtel spent a couple of days in town last week, and made the Tribune a friendly call, leaving with us two large fine specimens of ore from his ledge on Elk river. The ore assays well for surface ore in gold and silver, and experts say he has a well defined fissure vein. Mr. Marvin, the expert here, has located extensions on the lead, and has a high opinion of the ore, and is making arrangements for the proper development of the mine. Assays as high as $30 have been reported, and paying averages have been obtained from surface ore. This ledge is on the west boundary of a mineral region whose width reaches beyond the eastern boundary of the Coast Range Mountains, and whose length reaches north and south for hundreds of miles. Scientists have said that not only is this mineral belt widest here, but higher values are obtained in the surface ores here than in any other region in America.—Port Orford Tribune.
