In the Marshfield case, it seems that in the annexation proceedings only the voters of the City of Marshfield voted on the proposition to have that city annex Eastside. Mr. Jordan, an Eastside resident, contested the annexation on the ground that the residents of the annexed district had something to say in the matter. The Oregon law is not explicit on the point, it is said, Judge Hamilton's decision upholds Mr. Jordan's contention. The case probably will not be appealed. Coke and Goss prosecuted the case, while resented that city.

Advertising Farms

Advertising combined with intelligence and enterprise, will do more to elevate the farmer and give deserved prominence to his occupation than any other factor. In fact many advantages are enjoyed at the present time by the most progressive farmers who may be recognized by the advertising which they do in one way or another.

The great majority of farmers have not awakened to the necessity of applying anything more to their occupation than hard manual labor, which to be sure, is necessary and indespensable, but which alone classes the farmer with the man E.
