ROAD TO ALLEGANY IS PLANNED BY NORTH BEND

A committee of members of the Commercial Club has plans well under way to attempt a project that will if successful prove of value to all concerned. It is planned to build a road connecting Kentuck inlet with the North Fork of the West Fork of Coos River, where a terminal from Drain is already decided upon. A new road across the Loon lake country will be ready for travel soon and a company has been formed to operate an automobile line that far. The committee is convinced that by building about five miles of new road across a comparatively easily surmountable pass the auto line could be brought right up to Coos Bay. It is also planned to connect up the inlets mentioned above and bring all traffic across the bay by ferry. It they must combine for their own good.

The American farmer, until lately, has thought himself absolutely self-sufficient; he has stood upon the theory of every "American being a king," overlooked the way in which big and little business and city men organize to enforce their "kingship," and continued to let wealth drift from the farm to the city, when the drift should, in the nature of things, be in the other direction.

I have been frank about these things, because we must face them in order to perfect our organization, and to bring into it every farmer in the county with the intelligence to know that organization is the keynote to his own salvation—California Homestead.

MYRTLE POINT.

Lloyd, the eldest son of Mr. Ed Llewellyn, had his arm badly fractured at the elbow one day last week, the result of a fall. Drs. Johnson, Forest (of Beaver Hill), and Stemmeler were in attendance. It was a very serious break, some of the bones having to be wired together.

A man came in from Roseburg last night, a stranger from British Columbia. When asked how he liked it through here he replied that it was paradise to what he had left. We ought to be thankful here in Coos county when we can pick roses and other flowers the year around.

Watt Guerin came up from San Francisco on the last steamer to visit with his family.

Jas. Whittaker has purchased the Walker house on the hill, and Geo. Rackliff has bought a lot, also on the hill east of town, on which he will erect a dwelling house in the near future.

Max Dement will move his family out to his ranch in a few days. He reports cattle as doing fairly well in the hills.

It looks as if farmers will be short of hay, if these storms continue.

All the shares for the new cannery have been sold. A site for the buildings has not been chosen yet, though several are under consideration. The cannery will be a fine thing for the vegetable and fruit producers as it will enable a good many to dispose of articles which have no market at present.

We are having regular eastern weather here—hail, rain, and now as I write, a fine snow storm.

Hammond at Marshfield

A. S. Hammond, of this city, attended the first annual Lincoln banquet of the Marshfield Republican club, and responded to the toast, "Buncombe." Concerning the same the Times said: "He roundly criticized Senators Chamberlain and Bourne and U'ren. He also denounced the Initiative and Referendum because it made law-making too easy and criticized the amendments to the constitution under it. He suggested as a means of providing 'jokers' slipping through under the initiative that merely the questions as to whether new measures be adopted be submitted to the voters and that it be left to the legislature to enact the law."

R. R. Pounder, of Portland, arrived in Coquille Wednesday, coming in by the Drain route. Mr. Pounder is here on a business visit and will not remain long.

WELL PROTECTION TO PREVENT TYPHOID FEVER

The menace of typhoid fever in country districts—a menace arising from polluted drinking water—is thoroughly considered in a report by Myron L. Fuller, of the United States Geological Survey, in which the sources of pollution are indicated and suggestions are given for means of protection.

Typhoid-fever rates are usually greater in the country than in cities, despite the prevailing belief that farms, isolated as they are from areas of congested population, are ideally situated for obtaining pure and wholesome water.

Failure to protect adequately the wells in farming districts is given in the Survey's report as the most common reason for their pollution, and ignorance of the manner in which ground water circulates is the cause of the faulty protection. Chemical analysis is not rated high by Mr. Fuller as a means of detecting polluted water, for he asserts that a careful common-sense inspection of the district is usually much more to the point.

Sources of pollution in the vicinity of a well or spring should be noted wherever possible, and drinking water should not be drawn except at a safe distance from them. The distance required for absolute safety varies greatly with the character of the rock. For wells sunk in sandstone, slate, and shale, 100 feet may be sufficient; where the surface stratum is composed of fine sand 200 feet should be allowed; and where it is limestone or granite much greater distances will be necessary. Water may run polluted in limestone for miles, so that wells in regions where limestone makes up the greater part of the surface rock should be carefully examined after rains for mud and loating matter, for these are pretty sure indications of pollution.

For protecting wells, springs, and cisterns Mr. Fuller advocates, first of all, a water-tight lining to keep out surface water. Wells and springs should always be covered and protected from animals, dust, and falling leaves. Watering troughs should always be located a safe distance away, though the custom prevails in country districts of having well and trough side by side.

Mr. Fuller's report is printed as Water-Supply Paper 255, which may be obtained free by applying to the Director, U. S. Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

FISHTRAP.

This seems to be a very backward spring. The farmers of this locality have nothing done, so far, toward preparing the ground for planting.

Ben Knife has moved his family down on the Johnson place.

Geo. Henninger made a business trip to Bandon, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell, of Norway, and some friends from Texas took dinner with Mr. and Mrs. John Hale Sunday.

The Lyceum, at the school house, was well attended Saturday night, standing room being at a premium. A Lincoln memorial program was given. They also had some very lively times during the debate and the judges decided it was best to bond the county for road improvements. Mr. Price Robison, of Norway, gave a very interesting talk, on the good of the order.

A Good Show.

The theatre-goers of this city were treated to another pleasant evening's entertainment Tuesday night, when the Berrnell Stock company appeared in "B-som Friend of Bowser." Mr. Hollingsworth and Miss Stewart, with their support, gave a very satisfactory interpretation of the play, and that the company is taking well with the public is attested by the fact that the attendance was considerably increased over last week.

D. McNair was down from Myrtle Point Wednesday on business.
