A SERMON ON QUESTIONS

BY E. SUTTON MACE

The following sermon was delivered Sunday evening, March 19, in the Methodist Episcopal church by the pastor, E. Sutton Mace. The sermon is composed of the answers received by him from a series of questions published a couple of weeks ago in this paper:

1 Timothy 3:15: The house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of truth.

I desire first of all to thank all those who have contributed to these questions, time and thought.

It is much easier, as one correspondent says, to ask questions than it is to answer such. Another writer says he is not a church member and that his views may not be acceptable to my way of thinking, but it is possible they may be material for reflection.

I am seeking to know how men are looking at the church and their ideas on the questions of the day.

I believe there is as much hard common sense outside the church as there is in it. People as a rule know better than they do.

The church is not perfect, because composed of imperfect men and women who are fighting a battle for righteousness in themselves, and out in the world. But the church has never stood for immorality, injustice or war, except a war against some evil. It has stood for peace and justice and purity. It claims the book for its guide, that teaches peace on the earth, good will to men. It condemns evil thoughts.

Question 1. "Is the church a necessity?" one writer says no, because Christ, our Saviour, preached everywhere, and his sermons brought more people to hear him than any of your churches could hold.

Another one writes: "Assuredly yes, with a big 'Y,' all wool, a yard wide and a foot thick." You do not ask, is the sun a necessity? That is self evident. The world that is self evident. The world would die without it. The use of the churches may not be so self-evident; yet in my judgment make that the rule the rule the world over. And the world of humanity would die without them. As to our city, there are too many of them for the supporting power of their members.

Yes, says another, the world was barbarous before the church was organized. God organized the first church. Jesus loved the church. He always attended its services. Died to make it great and pure and good.

No, writes another, because the people have outgrown its superstitions and dogmas taught by the churches. The main tenet, or rather its most prominent feature, is teaching that men should do right through fear of punishment or hope of reward. If men are good for either or both of these reasons they are not good in any real sense of the word, but are cowards.

But another correspondent says yes, I believe the church is a necessity because it is the only institution that tells men that God is love, and that He loved men and will give me another chance, and that there is life and hope and reunion beyond this life. Destroy the churches, and you destroy the schools. Also saloons, lily, vicious men and misery would triumph. People would be taxed out of business for the suppression of crime and the feeding of paupers.

Men are naturally a religious being and also a social being. Both the craving for divine sympathy and human companionship are met in the church.

Question 2. "Are the churches so necessary?"

One writer says, there being no necessity to meet, it necessarily follows that the churches are not meeting it.

Undoubtedly they are making every effort to do so, says another, but the multiplying of churches cripples the work. In my judgment every additional church weakens the power of all for the good they ought to do.

No, says some one, because they lack Christian love, unity and enthusiasm. They are too cold, formal, indifferent. When it really loves its Lord with all its heart and strength, it will meet the necessity.

I believe the church more nearly responds to the best in human nature than any other public organization.

Question 3. "Why are there so many unchurched people, or people who do not attend church, in our city?" Largely because what is preached in the churches is obsolete and contrary to reason and our common sense of justice. Instead of being an affirmation of God, it is a denial of God.

It is largely a matter of habit. The carelessness of parents and bad home influences. When the father goes hunting and fishing on Sunday, his boys play base ball and go to the devil. When the mother seldom goes to church or mentions Sunday school the girls roam the streets and go to the bad.

Another says, because they do not believe your creed or the doctrine you teach. Because churches and church members do not practice what they profess to believe. Because they had rather spend the time in social intercourse on topics of real interest and importance than to be confined in stuffy, ill-ventilated, poorly lighted churches, listening to that which does not interest them and which they do not consider will in any way effect their welfare either present or future.

There are many people who would gladly go to church if the word of the Lord would be preached sincerely, truly, such as Christ delivered. He came to help the poor. Your churches are gatherings of fashionable people who under no circumstances would tolerate poor and ragged persons to sit among them.

Stubbornness against the truth. Alleged criticism against the church because of some hypocrite or prude in the church.

COLONIST TOTAL IS PLACED AT NEAR 40,000

If the present procession of colonists and homesteaders headed for the northwest, and particularly for Portland and Oregon, keeps up, the former figures of 30,000 for the total movement will have to be very greatly revised. The newcomers have been arriving in just about as steady a stream as they did during the first week of the season, which opened two weeks ago. The aggregate will undoubtedly come close to 40,000.

Official estimates by railroad officials place the total number of new settlers and homesteaders who have come to Oregon in the first half of the season at over 15,000. From that on up to 18,000 is the estimated total for this state. The local officials have but occasional reports as the amount of equipment being used and the number of extra passengers each of the trains are carrying.

With this, a system of checking through a different gateway enables the railroads to get at the volume of immigration within a close margin.

The Northern Pacific is handling more than twice as many colonists into this territory as it brought out last season. This estimate is arrived at by General Passenger Agent A. M. Cleland, who wires to Portland that for the first ten days of the season they have had over twice as much equipment to handle colonist and homesteaders' business as was required for last season's business. Indications, he adds, point to a continuation of the heavy travel during the remainder of the season.

"People seem to have awakened to the advantages of the Northwest as never before," he continues. "There is a greater volume of inquiries, as well as actual business. Connecting lines into St. Paul are taxed to the utmost."

The Great Northern reports are almost as flattering for the westward trend, but much more so, so far as central Oregon is concerned. This line being the parent to the Oregon Trunk, is getting the larger portion of the business destined for the interior.

All through west-bound trains on the Harriman system are carrying scores of new settlers, the average for a train now being in the neighborhood of 200. Nearly all the incoming trains are being operated in two sections.—Telegram.
