MYRTLE POINT ITEMS.

L. M. Suplee has been seriously ill the past week, and is under Dr. Johnson's care. We hope to hear he is improving soon.

The banquet and entertainment given by the high school scholars last Saturday evening was a decided success. In the afternoon one hundred and eighty tickets had been sold. The supper was donated by ladies around town. The proceeds are to go toward paying for the piano which the school purchased.

Russell Dement, who has just returned from a business trip to Roseburg, reports the roads as almost impassable.

Miss Dora Williams, who has been teaching near Bandon, spent a couple of days in town on her way to her parents' home at Rock Creek, where she will teach school for the present term.

Snow on Sugar Loaf mountain can be plainly seen, and a little fell on the North Fork this (Monday) morning.

WOMAN.

(Read twice, first entirely through, second time first and third lines; then second and fourth. Contributed by Myrtle Point correspondent.)

That man must lead a happy life Who is directed by a wife; Who's freed from matrimonial claims Is sure to suffer for his pains.

Adam could find no solid peace Till he beheld a human face; When Eve was given for mate, Adam was in a happy state.

In all the female race appears, Truth, darling of the heart sincere. Hypocrisy, deceit and pride In woman never did reside.

What tongue is able to unfold The worth in woman we behold. The failings that in women dwell Are almost imperceptible.

Confusion take the men, I say, Who no regard to woman pay; Who make the women their delight Keep always reason in their sight.

THE SPEED MANIA.

Sensations That Come With a Ride in a Racing Motor.

Imagine yourself in a big racing machine plunging over a course at eighty miles an hour. For the average man the sensation is awful, but the speed kings revel in it. Down the road streaks the car. Lashed into a typhoon by the appalling speed, the still air roars in your ears. You think you will never regain your hearing. The resistance of the atmosphere is fearful. The slightest forward movement is an effort. Distant objects loom up suddenly before you and jump by. The landscape is a streaky line of green, blotted here and there as a house is passed. The gale seems to cut your face, and you feel yourself being gradually flattened out against the back of the seat. It seems that the glass in your auto goggles is on the point of breaking. Particles of dust are driven back in your eyes. You may become blinded. The vibration of the engine is terrific. Mysterious indicators fluctuate alarmingly. It may mean that the engine is on the point of exploding. What makes the floor tremble so? Surely something will happen now!

And then you hear explosions booming from the exhausts as the drivers "shut off." A sharp turn is ahead. The noise is deafening. The terrible speed does not seem to have been checked. The outline of the turn grows more distinct. It is sheer folly—maybe death—to rush at it such a pace. You dare not breathe as the car tears into the bend. It skids and a wall of dirt is thrown up alongside you as the driver, with a sharp twist of the wheel, sends the car once more back in the middle of the road. You are safe—until another turn is encountered—Hampton's Magazine.

A Painful inference.

A teacher was instructing a class of boys and had spent half an hour trying to drive into their heads the difference between man and the lower animals, but apparently with little success.

"Tommy," he said coaxingly to a little chap, "do you know the difference between, say, me and a pig or any other brute?"

"No," replied Tommy innocently, but another teacher standing by laughed.—London Answers.

THE FORERUNNER.

I've talked awhile with the engineer. The chap who's doing my old time trick. Except that he runs on a track that's clear. While I drove the Overland coach and six—A coach and six—across that plain. This chap has a throat in his hand, And there's never a ticklish turn to I held the shotgun, understand. And a shotgun always rested near. No headlight gleamed on the faint rough trail. When I was the one who carried mail. This engineer sits as warm as toast. As he perches high on his iron horse, But Tommy's the time I've looked the ghost. When neither swept the plains across. That endless, pitiless, frozen plain That whizzes past through the window pane.

—Arthur Chapman.

THE GOSPIERS.

In his hour of pain and shame, In his prison house of flame, When revenges the devil sought Little tongues of fire he wrought; Tongues to his twist and turn, Tongues to scorch and sear and burn. Tongues to sting and smart and smarten, Tongues to slay the poor and lowly; Then to earth the tongues he sent, There to work his foul intent, To whisper, hint and smirch and sneeze, And to fill the world with fear. Foul with gossip that can kill, Eversore to work his will.

In cases of rheumatism relief from pain makes sleep and rest possible. This may be obtained by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

POLK'S DIRECTORY.

Just issued for 1911 is the most complete work of the kind published. It contains an accurate business directory of every city, town and village in Oregon and Washington, and the names and addresses of county merchants and professional men, lumbermen, etc., who are located adjacent to villages; also lists of government and county offices, commissioners of deeds, state boards, statutory provisions, terms of courts, names of the postmasters, post offices, express, telephone and telegraph offices, justices of the peace, hotels, dry and weekly newspapers; besides such other information useful to classes of business and professional men. A descriptive sketch of each place is given, embracing various items of interest, such as the location, population, distances to different points, the most convenient shipping stations, the products that are marketed, stage communication, trade statistics, the nearest bank location, mineral interests, churches, schools, libraries and societies. An important feature is the classified directory, giving every business arranged under its special heading, thus enabling subscribers to obtain at a glance a list of all the houses manufacturing or dealing in any particular line of goods. The work generally is compiled to meet the wants of the business community and is so thorough as to deserve their liberal patronage. Price $3.00.
