A Bake Shop Test

It is made of every milling that Olympic Flour is made of. One of the best bake shops anywhere is run in connection with the mill that makes Olympic Flour. Every bunch of flour that goes through the mill is tested. It has to be up to the highest standard—has to make the best bread possible, else it doesn't go into the Olympic sacks.

That is the reason your bakings of bread, biscuit and pastry are always uniformly good when you use Olympic. Your bakings can't be expected to be the same always unless the flour is. Therein lies the beauty of using Olympic.

Three Vital Reasons

"I want to give every person not using electric light three vital reasons why the General Electric Mazda Lamp should make them have their house, store, office or factory wired.

First—
The G-E Mazda Lamp gives nearly three times the light of the ordinary carbon incandescent.

Second—
It costs no more to burn.

Third—
The quality of light is vastly superior—a clear white light like sun rays.

"The General Electric Mazda Lamp represents the high mark in the evolution of incandescent electric lighting. It blends inventive triumph and manufacturing skill—and you reap the benefit in the form of dollars and cents, and freedom from eye strain when using artificial light."

"I want the chance to prove to your entire satisfaction that this wonderful lamp is even better than represented. Come in today and see for yourself. Your call places you under no obligation, and is apt to be decidedly to your profit."

Be careful to see that every electric lamp you buy bears the G. E. monogram.

ALLEGANY ITEMS.

The Glenn Junction school began Monday, April 10, with Miss McDonald, of Lakeside, as teacher.

Mr. Anderson, the Salvation Army captain from the bay, spent Sunday in Allegany.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaver ate Sunday dinner with Mr. Grays' last Sunday.

Ray Whitted started to school last week.

Mrs. Alice Stemmerman went to Marshfield on the boat Tuesday morning of last week, and returned Wednesday.

Lee Roberts and Lonzo Stemmerman both received their new bicycles last Saturday which they had sent to Seattle for. The boys are expecting to have some fine "joy rides" on their bicycles this summer.

Mr. Krueger's nephew, C. J. Schroeder, from Illinois, has been visiting him the last few weeks. Last Thursday Mr. Krueger started out to Scottsburg with his nephew, as he intended going that way instead of taking the stage over the mountains. Mr. Krueger returned from his trip Saturday.

The school children of this place observed Arbor Day by planting flowers on the school premises. They made flower beds, which are to be the property of the ones making them, and taken care of by the same. Little Eddie Larson's flower bed is in the form of an apple tree, which his father planted on the school ground for him. The tree is just the height of its youthful owner.

Miss Peterson, of Marshfield, is stopping at Mrs. Pierce's, doing some dressmaking for her.

They were sluicing at Pierce's camp a couple of days last week. There were lots of logs that went down Coos river as a result of the sluicing.

The boat Millicoma, was rather late in getting to Allegany last Thursday as a result of so many logs going down the river from the camp.

The scholars in the fourth grade geography class have been putting in part of their time during the past week by drawing and coloring maps of North America.

Miss Jessie Gray had the misfortune to scald her foot last Saturday and was walking on crutches for a while.

Jack McDonald brought his auto up on the boat Saturday evening en route to Loon Lake, resuming his trip by auto Sunday. Mr. McDonald is going to Loon Lake to look after property interests there.

Mr. Salander, of Loon Lake, and Mr. Si Noah, the fire warden, stopped over night at Mr. Pierce's last Friday night. They went down on the boat Saturday.

The Millicoma made an extra run to Marshfield Saturday evening, and quite a number got on at this place. The boat left Allegany at 7 p. m. and returned during the night.

Mrs. Elmore, the timekeeper's wife at Power's camp, has been staying at Mr. Krueger's for some time.

M. W. Roberts, of Powers' camp, was in Marshfield Saturday.

Geo. Gould went to Marshfield Sunday morning and was going on to Coquille Monday to see his daughter, Mrs. Grace Woodruff, who is very low with typhoid fever at that place.

Remember, we are still selling the best bread in Coos county, two loaves for 5 cents. Coquille Bakery and Confectionery.

A large shipment of new wad paper has just been received at W. C. Laird's furniture store.

WHERE OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS FAIL

Editor Herald—We offer you for this week an article from the Westminster Teacher on the same lines as the article you published last week from the Educational Review. The Westminster Teacher says:

"The demand today is that all things shall be made easy. It is so in the homes. Nothing must be hard for children. They must be tenderly nurtured. Their burdens must not be made too heavy. Their tasks must not be made too exacting. Their wishes must never be refused. Even their whims must be gratified. There is in homes a great deal of this spirit of indulgence which moves along the line of least resistance in home government.

"The same is true also in many schools. Everything must be made pleasant. The teacher must always make the lessons so interesting that it will not tax the pupils to listen to them and so simple that it will not require any effort to understand them. It is thought to be unreasonable to expect pupils to do any hard thinking for themselves. A distinguished teacher says that pupils of this dainty kind would like to lie in bed and have their studies sent up to them.

"It may seem very pleasant for young people to have their work made so easy. But that is not the way for them to make the most of their lives. To evade effort is to fail of achievement. For the student to have his hard work done for him is to rob him of the results of faithful study. There are some things we can get done for us, but nobody can achieve our education for us. If we insist on never doing the things that are unpleasant we cannot receive the benefits and the rewards.

"This does not mean that the hard work of the student is not pleasant—it may be pleasant, yet not easy. The harder he works the more pleasure does he find in his studies. The student who is diligent grows enthusiastic. He 'burns the midnight oil' in the pursuit of knowledge. He becomes eager in his research. He finds joy in his work. On the other hand, when the pupil has no interest in his studies he makes no progress in them, gets nothing from them. He probably blames it on the teacher, saying that he does not make the lessons interesting. He does not make things so simple, so easy, that no thinking is necessary, no knitting of brows, no hard study. He is quite ready to teach, but the best teacher is not the one who leaves nothing for his pupil to do. Good teaching tells the least if it makes the pupil do the work.

The demand of many pupils is that the teacher shall always be interesting. He shall tell everything about the lesson in such bright, charming way that the pupils shall be made happy. There is the same demand in other lines where one man is set to guide others. The pupils do not want hard thinking, they want to be entertained, and if they are not entertained the fault is with the teacher. Books must be made interesting or people will not read them. They pronounce them dull if they do not sparkle in every sentence.

This demand to be entertained is of the spirit of indolence. Every one who insists that he must not be required to work hard in his search for knowledge will miss the attainments which can be won only through patient toil. Parents want to be kind to their children and sometimes they overdo their kindness by indulging their dislike of hard duty, their distaste for self-denials. 'To spare our children,' says one, 'only to make it more certain that we have failed to harden them for the battle of life; to make it more probable that they will go down in the struggle; to send them out only to suffer and bend and break under the ruthless pressure of the modern world—that is perhaps the worst crime that can be committed against the future of the race and the happiness of humanity.' Life is full of tragedies coming from such kindness. Perhaps no other failure in parental training in these days is so great or so ruinous as that which is produced by over-kindness, or what is thought to be kindness. All who danger of erring in the same way, are teachers of the young are in the popular sentiment today is that we should never cause anyone pain.

GOVERNMENT OPENS WOOD PULP MILL TO MAKE PAPER

Washington, D.C., April 17—With a view to gathering information as to the relative value of plants and woods for paper manufacture, the experimental ground wood pulp mill of the department of agriculture, located at Wausaw, Wis., has commenced operation. The mill was made available by an appropriation at the last session of congress, which authorized the secretary of agriculture to conduct tests along this line.

The department for some time has been testing various woods in the laboratory. Some have been found to be suitable for paper manufacture, and the forest service has actually made paper from several of them by chemical means. To ascertain their commercial value it was necessary to subject them to methods of manufacture comparable to those which are employed in business operations. With this end in view the mill was established.

The Wausaw mill is practically a paper-making establishment in miniature, being equipped with apparatus of the most up-to-date type. It will be in operation as long as the experiments require.

But pain is the way to the highest, truest life. We must love our children so well that we can let them meet and endure pain in order that the beauty of soul in them shall be perfected. If we would reach the highest, we must be willing to suffer, to pay any price of self-denial or restraint. There is no easy way, no royal road to the attainment of knowledge. Chief Justice Marshall said, 'It is not genius, it is the hardest kind of work.'

"There is a story of a sculptor who worked for years in poverty and obscurity to reach his ideal. At last the work was finished in clay. But sudden cold came upon the city that night and the old man knew that his model would freeze and be destroyed. He had no fire in his poor attic, which served both as a studio and sleeping room. In the morning they found the statue wrapped with the clothes from his bed, warm and unharmed. But the sculptor they found dead. He had given his life to save his masterpiece. The poor, old man was gone, but he had reached the goal of his ambition, and the world was enriched by his work and his knowledge. We should be ready to suffer even unto death that our ideal may be kept unmarred. Nothing of cost or sacrifice should be spared that our lives may reach the best."

There are many teachers reared in just such homes, and taught in just such schools, who are themselves too indolent and too ignorant to teach as teaching should be done. For our children we want the best, and the best is none too good. If our children lose their chance to obtain the best education during their school days, they have lost it forever. Time past can never be recalled. They have lost the opportunity to make their lives reach the best there is in them.

"This is the calamity that makes us pause, reflect, and speak."
We can furnish you numerous articles from the pens of such men as ex-President Elliott of Harvard, the present President of Harvard, Prof. Smith of Yale, one of the professors of Stanford, and many others, directly supporting the various positions taken in our circular address, but we will let this conclude.
C. R. BARROW.
