SHE WAS NOT AFRAID.

There Was No Reason Why She Should Dread the Indians.

Among the frontiersmen who closely followed the footsteps of Lewis and Clark across the Rockies was Colonel Joseph L. Meek. He settled in Oregon, and like all the earliest pioneers, he was obliged to choose his helpmate, so the Portland Oregonian says, from among the dusky maidens of the forest.

During the early settlement of the territory the Cayuse Indians were quite menacing in their demonstrations of hostility to the little band of pioneers, so much so indeed that a meeting of the settlers assembled to take counsel about the safety of the community resolved to send two of their number across the mountains to implore aid from the government at Washington.

Colonel Meek and Squire Eberts were appointed, and they set out across the mountains and the deserts, and in due time reached their destination. While there the colonel was invited to a levee given by some one of the political notables. He was introduced to a lady who naturally enough made inquiries about Oregon, the hostile Indians, and so forth.

"But your wife," began the lady in a hush between thrilling narratives, "or haven't you a wife?"
"Yes," replied the colonel, "I have a wife."
"Why," said the lady, "I should think she would be so afraid of the Indians."
"My wife afraid of Indians!" exclaimed the colonel. "Why, madam, she is herself a squaw!"

HEROIC MUSICIANS.

Conductors For Whom the Orchestra Is Merely a Pedestal.
Dr. Max Nordau has an amusing article in the Paris Revue on the evolution of the orchestra conductor. Formerly the conductor was a modest man who took little pains with the rehearsals and effaced himself on the great day of the public concert.

Nowadays he is a hero. You only see him. The orchestra is merely a pedestal for him. In the French army of former days there was a personage who could be compared with him—the drum major. He had the same prestige without the aid of the drum major's stature, lace and stick. He must be a finished actor. He must play the part of the lion which shoots the water into the fountain.

There was Gustav Mahler, the most astounding artist in dumb show. All the muscles of his clean shaven face were contracted into the furious mask of a samurai when he let loose the heroic sonorities and relaxed into ecstasy during the pianissimo.

Arthur Nikisch also "reflects" tragedies and idylls, but grace suits him best. In the pastoral symphony (Beethoven) he is the rocco shepherd tinkling with the outstretched finger of his left hand the fair neck of a pretty shepherdess.

The President and War.

According to the constitution of the United States, article 1, section 8, clause 11, the power to declare war belongs to the congress. The president, as the chief executive, when war is declared becomes commander in chief of the army and navy, but he cannot take the initiative in bringing on the war. The president who should have the temerity to declare the country at war with another people would be instantaneously removed from his high office. The men who made the constitution know how fatal to human rights and happiness the monarchical principle had been, and therefore they saw to it that the nation's head should have nothing to do with declaring war with another nation.—New York American.

His Bluff.

Mr. Montgomery was calling on a young woman to whom he wished to appear extremely well.
"Are you familiar with Dante's 'Divine Comedy,' Mr. Montgomery?" asked the young woman.
"No. I've never seen it," replied the man. "The fact is, Miss Tindler, I think this comedy business is being overdone. The sooner the stage returns to the legitimate drama the better it will be."—Lippincott's.

Jimmie's Wisdom.

Myrtle, who is studying physical geography, likes to flaunt her superior knowledge.
"Jimmie," she said to her little brother, "I bet you don't know what germination produces."
"I don't know what it produces," replied Jimmie, "but I know the German nation consumes lots of sauerkraut and wieners."—Youngstown Telegram.

Her Choice.

Ethel—Strange that Kitty should have married Tom. She told me positively that she liked Jack better. Marie—Well, she felt more sure of being able to boss Tom.—Boston Transcript.

Not Appreciated.

"I've just been telling my daughter it is wrong to play the piano Sunday. Don't you agree with me?"
"But why Sunday especially?"—Lippincott's.

Explained.

"I heard her praising the conduct of a little boy just a few minutes ago. Whose boy is it?"
"Hers."—Detroit Free Press.

Industry pays debts, while despair increaseth them.—Benjamin Franklin.

laying the building the Canal. The North American Indians have been repeatedly chased from their own fields, their forests and streams, back to the reservation; and likely the present agitation will determine whether the Colombians are open to opportunity, in which event they will not shy from the pathway of progress, but may even outdistance the people of the United States in reaping the harvest of the achievement of Panama.

WASHINGTON POLITICS

Senator La Follette's denunciation of the Progressive party was not unexpected, but the return of Senator Bristow to the Republican party was a disappointment to the Progressives. The latter organization finds cold comfort in the attitude of Senators Clapp and Cummings, whom it has been thought might be "coaxed away" and induced to rejoin the march of "Christian Soldiers," whose leaders declare they will reach Armageddon in the next presidential election.

Meanwhile, Washington being Democratic—for the simple reason that the administration is of that political party, finds comfort in the division of its opponents.

NEARLY A MILLION A DAY

Congress will provide $310,000,000 for its postoffice business the coming year. The parcel post is proving a great money maker, but it is designed to make extensions in rates, in order to keep the Department down to merely a self-supporting basis.

CURRY COUNTY COLLINGS

(Port Orford Tribune)
J. E. Miller, representing the Buckingham & Hecht Shoe company of San Francisco, has been sick in Port Orford with appendicitis for the past several days.

A. A. Jamieson, of Port Orford has let it become known among his friends that his announcement as Republican candidate for nomination as County Commissioner may be expected later.

The stores at this place have not been able to stock up since the wharf went down, and as a consequence they are short on many staple articles.

A subscription has been raised for the purpose of extending the sidewalk along Jackson street from Gillings' store to the Masterson corner on 6th street. Enough money and donation work has been secured to guarantee the improvement being made in the near future.

Dr. J. R. Weatherbe of the Starr ranch at Langlois, is fitting up one of the finest dairy farms in this part of the state. He has recently built two 300 ton silos, together with other up-to-date improvements. He expects to milk 180 cows this season, and is substituting Holsteins in place of the Jerseys that have formerly been on the place.

Atty. Kendall, of Marshfield, after spending several days in town departed by stage this morning for Gold Beach, where he will spend a week or ten days. Mr. Kendall is associated with Judge Goss in the practice of law, and among other things is looking up timber that is on the market in this section, presumably in the interest of C. A. Smith.

N. C. Divilbiss of Sixes, who suffered a stroke of paralysis last fall, has so far recovered as to be able to get around the house with the assistance of crutches. The disease, which has kept Mr. Divilbiss in bed for several months, affected him mostly in the muscles about the knees. "Newt's" many friends will be glad to learn that he is recovering.
