Not What it Looked Like

It was a very hot day, and the fat drummer who wanted the twelve-twenty train got through the gate at just twelve-twenty-one. The ensuing handicap was watched with absorbed interest both from the train and the station platform. At its conclusion the breathless and perspiring man wearily took his way back and a vacant-faced "porter" came out to relieve him of his grip. "Mister," he inquired, "was you tyin' to ketch that Pennsylvania train?" "No, my son," replied the patient man. "No, I was merely chasing it out of the yard."

Apples to Siberia.

Oregon apples are finding a market in far-away Siberia and the call for stock this year is unusually heavy. A shipment some time ago of 125 boxes of Hood River apples to Vladivostok was received in excellent condition and met with ready demand from the natives. Within the last few days other shipments have gone forward, being routed by way of Puget Sound from which point they will go by steamer to Japan, thence to Siberia. No advice has been received as to the prices at which these apples are sold to the ultimate consumer.

Carlyle said This:

No man oppresses thee, O free and independent franchiser! but does not this stupid pewter pot oppress thee? No son of Adam can bid thee come, or go, but this absurd pot of heavy-wet can and does. Thou art the thrall not of Cedric the Saxon, but of thine own brutal appetites, and this accursed dish of liquor.

And thou pratest of thy liberty, thou entire blockhead!

"That Air"

Miss Rosy Nohall had just returned from a finishing school, and had evidently fulfilled all that was required of her in the scholastic line.

She and her father were sitting in the dining room.

"That air—" remarked her relative.

"Father, dear," interrupted Rosy, "it's vulgar to say, 'that air.' You should say 'that something there,' or, preferably, just 'that.'"

"Well, this air—" commenced her father; but he was cut off again.

"No, father," smirked the dutiful daughter. "That's just as vulgar. You must avoid such expressions as 'this ere!'"

Father became irate.

"Look here, my girl," said he, "I'm going to say what I mean. That air is bad for this ear of mine, and I'm going to shut the window."

After that Rosy said no more.

Who Wanted Him

Senator Tillman sees more with his one eye than many men do with two; nevertheless those who see him cannot help noticing his misfortune. Some time ago he clapped his hands for a page from the cloakroom, and a new one responded.

"Tell Senator Clay," he said, "that I want to see him in the cloakroom."

The page ran on the errand, stopping to ask the head usher where Senator Clay sat. Then he asked: "Who is it that has only one eye?"

The usher, thinking it is a question in mythology, replied: "Why, Cyclops, of course."

The page delivered his message in this astounding way: "Senator Cyclops wants to see you in the cloakroom."

Driving a Bargain.

Old Mr. Beeman was decidedly penurious, but as his premises were becoming overrun with rats he decided to engage a professional rat catcher, when the following conversation took place:

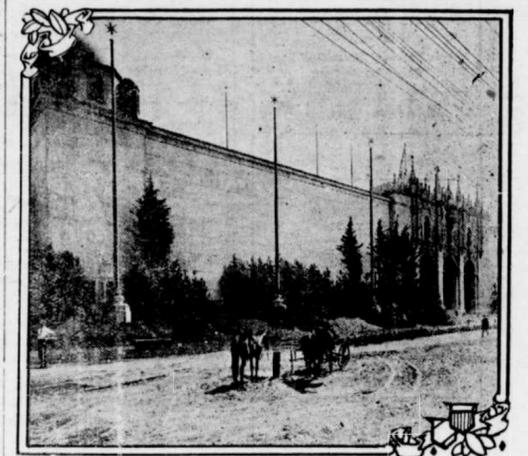

"There, Mr. Beeman," said the rat catcher, "I've cleared your premises of the varmints, and I take 'em all away with me. You'll have no further trouble with rats. I assure you, and you won't have to bother about the dead ones either. I'll put 'em right in this box. The bill is $5."

Mr. Beeman peered anxiously over the rims of his silver rimmed spectacles. "Don't I get anything for the rats?" he inquired.—Denver Republican.

Reduced Him.

A London advertising expert was praising in New York the change that has come over the advertisement. "In advertising, as in other things," he said, "it has been found that honest pays, and today, throughout the world, the successful advertiser is modest and conservative in his statements. Advertising is no longer mistrusted. Things are no longer as they were in Phat's day. He weighed over 400 pounds. Well, he saw an ad in the paper—'Fat folks reduced, $5—and he answered it.' 'Did he get any reply?' asked a listener. 'Oh, yes; it was just as advertised.' 'That's good. How much was he reduced?' 'Why, just as the advertisement said—$5.'"

World's Greatest Agricultural Display to Be Made In Vast Palace of Agriculture at Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, 1915

THE accompanying photograph was taken of the Palace of Agriculture before the Esplanade was given the asphalt pavement which it now has. This facade of the Palace of Agriculture looks out upon the Marina and the waters of San Francisco bay. The outside height of this building is ninety-six feet. It is 579 by 639 feet and was erected at a cost of $425,610. The opening at the left opens on the Court of the Universe, which is to be one of the architectural wonders of the entire Exposition. The portals shown at the right are beautifully wrought and rich in color. The central niche is occupied by a sculptured figure of the Conquistadora. On either side of this in slightly lower niches are figures of the Pirate, which stand eleven feet high. The wall surface is of imitation Travertine and present a pinkish ochre tint. At the eaves other tones are used, and the dome shown here is of orange, while the base of the dome bears a blending of pinks, copper green and blue. This palace is directly opposite the yacht harbor, which is to be the scene of thrilling events in 1915.
