R. A. Easton, the East fork philosopher who mixes ideas with his news items, has something to say this week about the schools. While the Herald is not ready to endorse all he says, yet in his remarks touching the reading of the pupils there can be but one opinion among those who know the situation. And it is not in their reading alone that the pupils show a lack of training. It would seem that with the advent of "new ideas" in education most of the old ones have been discarded. It no longer seems necessary that the pupil should be well founded in the commoner branches before he takes up the frills. The three R's have scant consideration, and the branches for which every person has constant use in his every-day life are neglected for other things which will be forgotten for lack of use, as soon as the school days are over.

Mr. Easton has touched on the "reading," and what he says is true. Yet pupils are studying foreign languages in our high schools who cannot read a paragraph in English clearly and intelligently. They are fooling away their time on a language which not one in a hundred of them will use once a year, when they do not understand the language in which all their communications with their fellow beings will be couched.

As for writing—and this covers penmanship, spelling and punctuation, as well as diction and command of language—there is little to be said in defense of the system followed in the Oregon schools. The matter of penmanship seems to be entirely neglected. If a pupil leaves school as a good, legible writer it is a case of natural talent and in no wise a matter of training. The writer has been told by a graduate of the public schools that the writing of the pupils was spoiled by the necessity of haste in writing, the lessons; that they did not have time to take any care for their writing but must "scratch" as rapidly as possible. This is a beautiful commentary on a system which entirely loses sight of an essential of education. That such deplorable conditions do not universally obtain elsewhere, was recently brought to the attention of the editor. A young girl who had attended the Marshfield schools all her life and whose penmanship was hopelessly bad, removed with her people to a California town where she entered the public school. The first letters she wrote to friends here were worse than ever, and she explained that her old style of writing had been broken up and she hadn't learned the new. But a letter received within the past week shows an improvement that is simply amazing, and her penmanship now is not only legible but beautiful and most pleasing to the eye. Our educators might well take a leaf from California's book. When the "vertical" craze went out there seemed to be hope for better things, but it is only hanging on by the eyebrows and the ability to spell common words correctly is surprisingly rare among the graduates of the schools.

As for punctuation, it is a dead issue, a lost art. In some years' experience in the newspaper business in another town than Coquille, the writer had occasion to employ at different times quite a number of graduates of the public schools, and if one of them came from the school to the office with anything more than the most rudimentary ideas of punctuation, he or she kept them well concealed. Yet it will be conceded that punctuation is a very important part of composition. Any one doomed to see the manuscript that comes to our newspaper offices, including that from persons who have had the best school advantages, will know that the matter of punctuation must have been sorely neglected for many years; but this is no reason why such a condition should still obtain in these days of improvement.

These remarks on punctuation may not apply to the Coquille schools. We don't know. We are willing to find out. To that end, we will offer a small prize of $2.00 to any pupil of the Coquille schools, or any one who has graduated in the past two years who will come to this office and write two hundred words, taken from some newspaper of that day, and punctuate the composition correctly. We will give $2.00 to the first one and $1.00 each to any other who may follow, and this offer is open for one week from the date of this paper.

"The Record makes the assertion, fortified with figures, that in any one year within the past ten years the insurance companies have taken out of Marshfield in the nature of premiums on policies more money than they have paid in ten years in claims." Couldn't the same assertion be made of Coquille or any other town on the coast? If business men and property owners had their wits about them, they would take a leaf from the book of the "unthinking masses," and would be working state insurance against fire, getting their insurance at cost and shutting off the stream of gold that flows from this state to Eastern and foreign insurance companies. But business men and property owners must not be "socialistic," and that settles it.

If business keeps up, the young fellows of this section would better form a rifle club for the reception of marriageable young men from California.

Murder Suspected

What gives promise of being a murder case has developed in connection with the death of a farmer named Russell, who died near Myrtle Point about two years ago. It seems that he died suddenly with symptoms of stomach trouble, but no investigation was made at the time. Recently a man named Penlon, who has been working around Myrtle Point made an affidavit as to information that had come to him, indicating that Russell was poisoned. The same day that the affidavit was made Penlon disappeared while Dist. Atty. Liljeqvist was busy in court, and he has not yet been located. Russell's body has been exhumed and part of the intestines have been forwarded to the state chemist for examination, to see if the presence of poison can be detected.

A warrant was issued out of Justice Stanley's court last Friday for Gus Pederson, an Empire saloon keeper, who is charged with selling liquor on Sunday. The Bay papers state that he appeared before Justice Penlock in Marshfield and waived examination, giving bonds for his appearance before the circuit court.

In Justice Stanley's court last Friday complaint was made against May and Alice Doe, charging them with selling liquor without a license at their joint in Marshfield. They were arrested and gave cash bonds before the Marshfield justice for their appearance here next Thursday when their cases has been by Justice Stanley.

Another criminal case has just been started before Justice Stanley which may probably be regarded as the latest development in the Treadgold-Coch fight. S. Brownstone has sworn to a complaint on behalf of the wholesale liquor dealers, charging Joe Coch with perjury. It is alleged that when selling his saloon in Bandon Coch made affidavit that there was no indebtedness against the business, whereas he owed certain bills to the wholesale liquor dealers.

New Catholic Church Plans

The plans for the new Catholic church to be built in this city have been completed by Architect P. M. Hall-Lewis, and bids for its construction are now being received by the committee. The building will be 26 by 54 feet and will be erected at the corner of Third and Coulter streets, where the tennis court is now located. It is expected that the building will be completed in six or eight weeks after the contract is let.

May Own Part of Marshfield

J. A. Fox returned this week from a short trip to Marshfield on business connected with the settlement of his deceased wife's estate.

Speaking of the Bay city Mr. Fox said: "At times I feel like giving some good lawyer a job investigating the records to about a hundred acres of valuable land now situated in the heart of Marshfield's water front, for I believe my father never disposed of the property." It appears the elder Mr. Fox and Mr. Nasburg, a former old resident of the Bay, purchased a big section of what was then tide lands lying on the water front of Marshfield along, it is said, about where the Ocean dock and oil warehouse are located. The property was purchased from the state under the tide land acts.

About 20 years ago the elder Mr. Fox disappeared, leaving no information as to whether or not he had ever disposed of his interests in the property in question. Every effort was made to locate him at the time, but has so far been unsuccessful. If still living, it is said he would not be a man much past the fifty mark.

Revival Meetings

A series of revival meetings commenced at the Methodist church Sunday evening. Rev. C. H. Bryan will be assisted for four evenings this week, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, by Rev. Joseph Knotts of Marshfield, and Rev. W. H. Sellick, of Portland, will be here for two weeks commencing next Sunday evening.

East Fork Items

Two four-horse teams loaded with passengers went out over the Coos Bay wagon road last week.

Ed Abernethy is home from his Portland trip.

The 8th grade pupils took the examinations at the Dora school.

Wm. Thomas is in poor health.

Judging from the way the propositions that made extra expense for the state were turned down in the last election, the people will not stand any nonsense from the present legislature. If the reducing program can be carried out as outlined in the Herald of the 5th inst. it will cause some to hunt new range, and possibly poorer picking.

There are too many bunting the under: entirely out of proportion to the condition and the amount of milk the cow gives; so the thing to do is to choke the useless ones off. And while we are getting rid of these unnecessary bunters in the form of commissions, there are others that need to be choked off. That unnecessary evil the "School Supervisor" law is a thing that should be knocked out, for that law is simply a job maker, a chance for a few more to bunt the under. I think that I know that a large majority of the people of the state are opposed to that law. The state superintendent's office had enough influence in the senate two years ago to defeat the Dimmick bill to repeal the "School Supervisor" law. Let the same bill come up again this year. These Standard Educator men are a good deal like the standard chicken men; they run to feathers; and while they are loading the schools down with this, that and the other, the children can't read. If any one thinks that the children can read let him go into a young people's meeting and try listening to the reading; he will hear mumbled, but little reading.

The Monmouth Normal School is a thing that needs to be watched. When the Monmouth outfit was working to be voted into existence their advertisements said "we only want 4 cents on a thousand dollars." They were going to be good, would not try to graft any more. I voted to keep that thing closed because I did not believe them. Two years ago they worked this old game. It has been stated that they will try to renew the old game this year. What has become of the "4 cents on each $1000"?

CURRY COUNTY CULLINGS

(Gold Beach Globe)

Phil McMannus suffered a severe attack of indigestion Sunday evening. We are glad to state, however, that he is all O. K. once more.

(From the Port Orford Tribune)

We are glad to be able to state that E. J. Baker, who suffered a stroke of paralysis last week, is so much improved as to be able to be about the house again.

There was an irregularity concerning the petition for a survey of a wagon road up Sixes river to Eckley, which caused the county court to defer the matter to the April term. That the survey will be granted at that time is highly probable.

The postoffice department has advertised for applicants for the position as postmaster at Port Orford. Applications should be mailed to the department before Jan. 21st and unless some such applications be received the department threatens to discontinue the office.

The acorn crop throughout the oak woods of Curry County was almost a failure this winter, and many of the ranchers who depend upon this most to fatten their hogs have been disappointed. L. E. Miller, who has a large band of hogs on the headwaters of Eucree Creek, was fortunate in this matter, as there was a heavy crop of myrtle nuts along the creek and after cleaning up the acorns, his hogs moved down upon these nuts and rounded out in fine condition. The myrtle nut acts much the same as corn upon a hog, making the meat and lard firmer and more saleable than where the animal has been fattened on acorns alone. Mr. Miller has just killed some forty or fifty head of as fine hogs as one would care to see.

Clint Malehorn accompanied Commissioner Sypher to County Court last week in an endeavor to sell to the county a Buick traction engine to be used in graveling the roads. It is claimed that one of these tractors, hauling three or four wagons, will put gravel on the road for 30 or 40 cents per cubic yard that under the present system of horses and wagons costs from $2.50 to $3 per cubic yard. One of these engines costs close to $3,000 but as the gravel hauls are getting longer and longer Mr. Malehorn contends that it would easily pay for itself in two years work.
