NEW LAW OFFERS PROTECTION

Advantage Given to Oregon Manufacturers.

In an effort to stimulate Oregon manufactured goods and Oregon labor, the Chamber of Commerce of Portland recently began a campaign through its bureau of industries and manufactures to take advantage of the Bingham bill, which becomes effective as a law this month, and which was passed at the last legislative session.

The Bingham bill gives a preferential of five per cent in favor of goods manufactured in Oregon, or in favor of Oregon labor, in the consideration of competitive bidding before county courts, boards of county commissioners, school boards, city councils, or other public officers authorized to purchase supplies or contract for labor.

"In plainer English, a purchasing officer is authorized to accept as the lowest bid for labor or supplies that offered by representatives of Oregon products, if the bid of the latter is not more than five per cent higher than the lowest bidder from any other state," said George D. Lee, secretary of the bureau. "It is intended to counterbalance the difference in the cost of production, as between local and foreign concerns. It somewhat adds to the handicap of the foreign manufacturer represented by freight rates, and it should prove an encouragement to the establishment of factories for the manufacture of those items needed in the building of roads and bridges, and materials consumed by municipal purchase."

"Senator Bingham introduced the bill after consultation with representatives of the organizations which have been struggling to enlarge the market for those factories already here and to pave the way for others yet to be secured.

"In the opinion of David H. Dunne, and other pioneer manufacturers, the Bingham measure will prove of great value."

Berry Boxes to be Larger.

Berry boxes left over from last year must go to the scrap heap, as a new law regulating the dimension of these containers will go into effect on May 22. The provisions of the law are causing some concern among growers of berries for market. The provisions in the new weights and measures law relating to berry boxes are as follows:

"The standard boxes or baskets used in the sale of strawberries, blackberries, loganberries, raspberries or similar berries shall be of the interior capacity of 67.2 cubic inches (dry quart) or 33.6 cubic inches (dry pint), and it shall be unlawful to offer or expose for sale or sell strawberries, blackberries, raspberries or similar berries in boxes or baskets other than standard size; provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as in any other way preventing the sale of strawberries, blackberries, loganberries, raspberries or similar berries by weight or in boxes or baskets of a greater interior capacity than 67.2 inches."

Buy High Grade Jerseys

Portland, Ore.—That the dairymen of the Willamette Valley are fully alive to the importance of improving their herds is indicated by the phenomenal success of the auction sale of registered and grade Jerseys at Independence last week. The total number of animals changing hands was 185, of which 135 were register of merit cattle. This is the largest number of Jerseys of this class ever offered at one sale in the United States. Congressman McArthur was one of the largest buyers, securing 10 animals at a total cost of $2,500, his highest price being $375. Other high bids were: H. H. Curtis, $500, W. L. Pate, $400 and W. B. Allen, $395. As many as 36 head of Jerseys were brought to this sale by a single breeder.

Jasper—Old Sylvester flouring mill sold to Leonard Lepley, will be rebuilt.

FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Events of Interest Reported For The Herald

(By J. E. Jones)

UNCLE SAM GOES TO THE CIRCUS

The sad Lusitania tragedy had shocked the whole world, and millions of eyes were turned on Washington. Voices of protests and barrels of ink made known the popular indignation. The capital of the United States seemed filled with a sort of tingling that threatened the annihilation of official nerves. Men calmly discussed the probability of war, and the whole political landscape was like a broad expanse of dry grass and reeds waiting for the man who might light the match. Evidently those who spoke the most were in hopes the President would apply the tiny flame, and let loose the conflagration. Washington fortunately did not expose itself, but in reality it gave forth the internal evidence that sits on the mob when it sallies forth to do unreasonable violence. The clamor of the nation rolled in on hundreds of wires demanding to know what our government proposed to do about the outrage that had destroyed so many lives of American citizens. The Evening Star came out that afternoon with one of Berryman's great cartoons. It showed President Wilson deep in the study of papers on his desk, and in the foreground stood Uncle Sam, with hand upraised in cautioning manner. Beneath the picture was the one word: "Steady!" It may have been the cartoon, or something else, but there was a return of reason and common sense, the result of which was a record attendance at the Ringling Brothers big circus, which quite fortunately had dropped into town.

At the ringside sat Joseph P. Tumulty, laughing heartily at the funny tricks of the elephants. Tumulty perhaps has more power than any man in the United States with the single exception of the President. For years he has been closer to President Wilson than anyone else; he is the confidant, advisor, friend and spokesman for Woodrow Wilson. He is private secretary because of his personal relations to the President, but this does not deter him from fitting into the cogs of the political machine, which usually run about the way Tumulty directs. And while Tumulty watched the elephants, in another group sat some of the Cabinet members, doing side-splitting stunts of laughter at the antics of the clowns. The Federal Trade Commissioners were there too, and there were lots of Congressmen and others of high degree. It is doubtful if any of them gave a thought to the Lusitania, the European war, or to the affairs of Uncle Sam and the White House. The circus with its bare-back riders jumping through hoops, its trapeze performers and athletes, contained the one great interest in life, and made the leaders of a great nation forget their griefs and insults as they beheld the fascinating spectacle. Enraged and excited men in a few hours passed to that happy state where they were "like boys again."

No matter how serious may be the turns in national or private life, one cannot but feel sure that it is a great thing to have the circus come along once in awhile. It made Tumulty, the Senators, Cabinet officers and the Federal Trade officials feel just a little more as they should feel, and perhaps the funny clowns and the girls in tights helped Berryman's cartoon to become effective. Likely the fact that the circus came to town may have much to do with shaping the destiny of our great nation. Anyhow, before the stakes were pulled, the people who wanted to fight Germany and the wildcats, had ceased to flout their views, and were lending ready ears to suggestions of more peaceful methods.

WAR HORSES

A Washington official recently returned from New York, says that he went down to the ships and saw hundreds of American horses loaded on board in order that they might be taken to Europe to take a part in the deadly conflict. This thing has been going on since August, and tens of thousands of horses have been sent from this country to be shot down. It shows how, unwittingly, our country is being used to add to the horrors of warfare.

WAR BRIDES

A vaudeville sketch called "War Brides," showing how young girls in Europe, caught by the enthusiasm of war, are marrying passing soldiers, in order that they may be the means of helping to repopulate their countries, has created a sensation in the national capital, where it has been staged by great actresses. The sufferings of womankind; of the war brides, the old mothers who give up their sons and daughters for their country, only to be called on each generation for the same sacrifices, is splendidly brought out in this little drama. Secretary Bryan applauded the play heartily, and Fola LaFollette, daughter of the Wisconsin Senator, made a speech to the audience from a box. A number of new companies have been organized to tour the country, and the play, which is likened to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will eventually be seen in every portion of the United States.

WAR CRAZY.

With war for breakfast, lunch, dinner, business hours, and leisure periods—with war monopolizing conversation, and running through every column of public print, it is little wonder that people are becoming war crazy. Even men of peace have apparently been carried away with the excitement. The most notable case is that of Honorable Richard Bartholdt, of St. Louis. Bartholdt has long been in Congress, and he asked his people, in 1912, to let him retire in order that he might give his attention to the world peace movement. His constituents insisted that he remain in Congress another two years, but during that period he never missed an opportunity to pose as a great peace advocate. A year ago, when talk was strongest in favor of the Nobel peace prize being awarded to Secretary Bryan, a counter movement was started in favor of Congressman Bartholdt, and a petition was circulated in Congress, and about one-half its members asked that the prize be given Bartholdt. Then came the war, and we find our illustrious peace advocate a bitter partisan of his native country. Bartholdt fairly bristles in his hostility to the Allies, and he even goes so far as to charge the country he represented for so many years in Congress as lacking in good faith in upholding its policy of neutrality. There have been many cases like that of Bartholdt, which indicate that we have too many hyphenated Americans in the public service.
