INTOLERANCE A POOR WEAPON

(S. F. Bulletin)

There is room for wide differences of opinion on the subject of national defense, and most of the room is occupied. One must necessarily have strong convictions if he is to be anything but a reed shaken by the wind. But there are so many opinions as to make intolerance a burden and an absurdity.

Unfortunately the parties at the more war-like end of the line are as much distinguished by intolerance as by militarism. They are as impatient of opposition, as irritated by rejoinders, as contemptuous of divergent opinions as an intoxicated stage cowboy with his belt full of revolvers. They speak a language in which certain belligerent words and phrases occur and recur with little variation.

In looking through a recent magazine article coming from a martial-minded Cabinet member one reads, at least, was smitten with the absolute truculence that was manifested. The arguments swarmed in like troopers, and there was audible the faint rattle of metaphorical sabres.

The first statement was that the failure to agree on the problem of national defense was "largely due to inattention and neglect"—naturally on the part of those persons not agreeing with the writer of the article.

Later the reader stumbled over "righteousness"—an evasive and intolerant word. Righteousness is what the first person thinks is right; unrighteousness is what the second or third person thinks is right. If there is an absolute righteousness, good everywhere without discount, there is no evidence that a nation under arms will have a larger share of it than a nation unarmed, or vice-versa.

Such haughty and intolerant creatures as the "right-thinking man," the "sensible mind," "the strong, sound, virile man, pledged in word and in deed to righteousness," "the proper spirit," are as thick as blackberries in Mr. Garrison's pages—for his they are.

It may be that Mr. Garrison and Theodore Roosevelt, whose vocabulary he has borrowed, are right and that the opposition to armament is mistaken. It is possible, however, that such opposition is represented by men every bit as right-thinking, as sensible and as sound and strong and virile as Garrison, Gardner or Colonel Roosevelt himself.

But has the peace party never assailed personalities among its opponents? Certainly it has done so—in a number of cases where the militarism of individuals could be traced to a desire to unload munition of war upon the United States government. But in the majority of cases, where honesty of purpose could be taken for granted, the peace movement has made its way on such merits as it has, quite irrespective of the merits of other people. Surely the militaristic brethren will not hurt their cause if they do the same, or come out openly in favor of intolerance as the logical hand maiden of military force.

His Gum Shoes

For genuine gum shoe operations in the way of making a deal, commend us to Chas. Walker. He engineered the trade by which Mrs. Bledsoe sold the Grand Theater to P. C. Levar, bringing the principals together only after a complete understanding had been arrived at and after all difficulties that arose had been removed. And while the trade was under way for a couple of weeks, its consummation came as a complete surprise to everyone but the parties concerned. It may be said that Mr. Walker also acted as intermediary when Mrs. Bledsoe bought the Scenic last fall, and that deal also was so quietly conducted that no one on the outside knew of it until the closing of the Scenic was announced.

Moving Picture Man Establishes Studio

A real moving picture manufacturing plant is being established in Bandon by K. B. Wesleder, the young man who recently came here from Portland, where he has been in the employ of the Mutual Weekly Service people, says the Western World. Mr. Wesleder is fitting up the room in the Perkins building on Cleveland avenue, formerly occupied by Joe Hattus' plumbing shop. A large dark room is being arranged and equipped with specially constructed cedar vats to contain the fluids used in developing the films. A cylinder on which to wind the films is also under construction.

Mr. Wesleder's first pictures taken in Coos county were of the recent county track meet held at Marshfield. Although the day was dark and conditions for camera work not very favorable, he had splendid success. The pictures were shown at the Grand here Sunday night and pleased a large audience, they being especially interesting because of the large number of Bandon boys who participated.

On the third and fourth of July he expects to operate his camera at Marshfield where a big celebration is to be held. In August he will take the county Moose day celebration in Bandon. Other events in view are the race meet and fair at Myrtle Point and a big beach day that is contemplated for Bandon sometime in the near future. Any event of county interest that transpires in the future will find its way into the movies if present plans materialize, and the pictures will be shown in one theatre in each city and town in the county. It is necessary that the pictures be attractive to the entire county in order to make their manufacture a paying proposition.

Fine Pictures Coming

The near future holds some rich treats for the patrons of the Grand, as the Paramount picture service is expected to start next week, giving two feature pictures each week. The Paramount is undoubtedly one of the best services in the picture line, and includes pictures from the very best feature companies. While the service costs much more than some of the cheaper concerns ask, the pictures are enough better to make the difference, and if the people of Coquille show the proper appreciation of the quality of the pictures by patronizing the show they will be amply repaid, by the continuance of the service.

It Was Nuts for His

S. V. Epperson unwittingly played a trick on himself recently, and at the same time deprived himself of a nice lunch. Mrs. Epperson's sister, who is visiting at their home had prepared a nice lunch for the water supervisor; putting some nuts in a paper bag, the lady turned to the pantry for some article, when Mr. Epperson picked up what he supposed was the rest of the lunch, deposited it in the bag on top of the nuts, and departed for the woods. When he was ready for his lunch he found a nice assortment of nuts and a roll of butter. He made his lunch on nuts.

Licenses Restored

Captains Geo. Leneve and Dave Perkins, whose licenses were revoked for six months, were returned to them today. Just forty-five days have expired since their licenses were taken from them. The two captains took an appeal to the high officials with the result that the time was cut down to 45 days.

Roseburg Enthusiasts

Yesterday a party of campers from Roseburg, who have been camped in Brewster valley for the past three weeks, journeyed to Bandon in one of J. D. Laird's autos. The party consisted of Dr. J. B. Beresford of Ind., who is visiting this country for the first time, Misses Ellenburg and Tester, and Dr. Brumfield and wife and three sons. It was the first glimpse of the ocean

Hogwallow News

DUNK BOTTS, Regular Correspondent (George Bingham)

Sile Kildew mounted his mule Thursday morning and rode down the Gander Creek road, rendering sweet strains on a hand organ he had just become the owner of. He would like to have an automobile, but as he can't find that this will scare just as many mules and horses as anything else.

Tobe Mosely had such a hard chill Tuesday it started his watch to running.

Miss Flutie Belcher is trying to develop a double chin by sleeping with three pillows under her head.

Since the nights have grown warm Isaac Hellwanger has begun to sleep with his whiskers out from under the cover.

Sim Flinders has rheumatism in his right wrist so bad that he can barely lift a jug off the floor.

A gentleman whose name we cannot at present remember has opened a store at Musket Ridge. It is not believed that he will get enough business to justify his continuance, as he is a Baptist and argues a great deal, while most of his prospective customers belong to some other denomination.

Prof. Sap Spradlen, the Wild Onion school teacher, went squirrel hunting Tuesday of this week. He has got the children to believing that he has eyes in the back of his head and sees every move they make, but he cannot convince the squirrels of this.

The Hogwallow Improvement Association, which acts in the same capacity as the Board of Trade in other towns, has started a movement to stop the frogs from hollering after nine o'clock every night. Columbus Alsop has been named as a committee of one to see about it.

A book agent passed through several days ago and entered several for some of the party and they were greatly pleased with the sight.

Bergmann Wins Gold Medal

The Theo. Bergmann Shoe Mfg Co., 621 Thurman St., Portland, Oregon, in competition with other shoe manufacturers from all over the United States, were awarded the Gold Medal at the Panama Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, Cal., for the best Logger, Cruiser, Minor and Sporting Shoes and Mens and Boys Comfort Dress Shoes. Mr. Bergmann's Shoes won many praises for their quality and workmanship and the medal was given by a unanimous vote.

Nerva Hatcher Convicted

The second trial of Nerva Hatcher, charged with contributing to the delinquency of the young Stillwell girl, took place yesterday and the jury returned a verdict of guilty, after nearly three hours' deliberation. No sentence has as yet been imposed. The law provides for from three to twenty years in the state penitentiary.

Following the trial the judge dismissed the jury as they were not required in the cases still to come up.

Helping His Temper

The sun was blinding, clouds of dust were blowing everywhere, and Jones was most decidedly off his game. It really "put the lid on it" when, just as he was struggling to play his ball out of a quarry, a benevolent old lady passed by with a companion. She halted in evident surprise and pointed with her umbrella at the earnest golfer. "Dear me, my love," she remarked in audible tones, "what a very respectably dressed man that is breaking stones!"—Argonaut.

of the homes of our best people before it was discovered what he was up to. He was introducing some of the old books Roosevelt wrote before the public tried to retire him to private life.

Frisby Hancock passed down the road yesterday with a jug, and was followed for some distance by several of his friends. However, the jug contained only sorghum molasses.

Ellick Hellwanger went fishing Sunday and cast his luck at a point on Gander Creek near the Hog Ford church. Ellick says unfortunately preaching was going on, and the noise scared all the fish away.

Washington Hocks started to mill over on the west fork of Gander creek Monday morning with a turn of corn, but failed to reach there, on account of the peculiar action of the mule, which turned off at the first line it came to, arriving at Bounding Billows late in the evening. Washington was unable to explain why the mule acted so, but finally solved it upon their arrival at Bounding Billows. Then he investigated his sack of corn and found that he had not divided it equally, having more on the west side of the animal than on the east side. This naturally accounted for the leaning of the mule in that direction.

Miss Cordelia Hellwanger, who has been using an umbrella during the wet weather of the past winter, will call it a parasol during the summer.

The Excelsior Fiddling Band called on the Horse Doctor of the Calf Ribs neighborhood a few nights ago and rendered among others that popular air, "The Tune the Old Cow Died On."

Yam Sims has concluded to turn out his mustache and will begin on the job early Monday morning.

Social Whirl

Wednesday of last week a shower was given by Mrs. Archie Walker in honor of the engagement of Ruth Woodford and I. Elrod. Miss Woodford received many beautiful presents. The room decorations were green and pink and were arranged in a charming fashion. Those present were Mesdames Jack Juns, Fred True, Paul Sterling, Ben Curry, Hal Pierce, Nathan Nieman and Misses Myrtle Lund, Bessie Maury, Dorothy Watson, Inez Bunch and Effie Houck.

Tuesday Miss Bessie Maury gave a party in honor of Miss Belle Thrift. A delightful time was enjoyed by all present. Sewing was the pastime and was followed by a delicious luncheon served on the summer porch. Miss Maury was assisted by Mrs. Hal Pierce in serving the luncheon. Those present were Mesdames Dave Perkins, Dane Lowe, M. O. Hawkins, T. J. Thrift, Frank Thrift, Hal Pierce, Nathan Nieman, Pike Maury, Misses Effie Houck, Myrtle Lund, Ruth Woodford, Dorothy Watson and Leta Mast.

ALUMNI BANQUET

The annual alumni banquet was held at the W. O. W. hall on the evening of June 24, 1915. Nineteen were gathered about the banquet board including five of the 1915 graduating class of the Coquille high school. Miss Alice Cullin presided and those responding to toasts were: Ray Miller, Edna Harlocker, Horace Hahskopf, and Messrs Anderson and Turnbull.

After the toasts a short business session was held at which Edna Harlocker was elected president, Roy Avery vice-president and Jancy Low secretary treasurer of the Alumni for the year 1915-16. Geneva Robinson was chosen to be the next toast mistress.

Wool Master is Off for China.

A congenial party of friends, all but one of whom were Knights, gathered around the banquet table in the K. of P. hall last night to bid farewell to one of Bandon's representative citizens, R. E. L. Bedillion, soon to leave for foreign parts.

Mr. Bedillion leaves on the Elizabeth tomorrow for San Francisco. From there he will sail for China, and in China he expects to have charge of fostering the wool and sheep industry. Also the establishment of a woolen mill. This industry is one of the new commercial enterprises being fostered by the committee representing the government of China, now in the United States. They are investigating industrial conditions in this country and have the authority to encourage new enterprises, a special bonus being provided for that purpose by the new Republican government.

Mr. Bedillion will be under a two year contract during which time he expects to instruct the Heathen Chinese how to raise sheep and make woolen cloth, beyond which time, however, his plans have not been made except that he will ultimately return to Bandon where he has lived for 25 years and which he considers home.

He will first go to China to prepare for the establishment of the new business and return to the United States for about sixty days and then return to carry out his two-year contract.—Bandon Recorder.

New Welding Process Discovered by McAdams

Sam McAdams has discovered a new process of welding and tempering auto springs which is a great improvement over any process heretofore known. It is a chemical process free from the unhealthy fumes and smoke and danger of fire involved in the oil process. The springs are infinitely better, and the results welded and tempered by the new process can be pressed out perfectly straight without breaking and will go right back to their original shape. Mr. McAdams has tested this many times by jumping up and down on the spring with his weight of nearly 200 pounds. Any one having broken springs would do well to see Mr. McAdams and find out about the new process.

Another Close One

Thursday night Alva Harry and a party of friends left here for Marshfield. The rain which began about 9:30 turned them back, however. The road was rather slick and as they were crossing the hill near Cunningham creek just outside of town, the lights suddenly went out on them. The car left the road and plunged under the high walk which borders the road. The car was not much damaged, only the wind shield being broken. Mr. Harry was the only one injured, the glass from the windshield severing a leader in his left hand.

East Fork Items

Hugh Goodman and family, of Myrtle Point, who were visiting relatives and friends at Lookingglass for several days, says that he never saw crops so promising in that valley as now.

Suppose any of those who were up the East Fork with automobiles Sunday, the 20th, had been away from home, in a strange place, lying by the roadside, sick, sick, and those who were caring for you were strangers in the neighborhood and could not leave you to hunt for someone to take you to the hospital, and there were automobiles passing, passing, passing, and not one in them would delay his pleasure, that he might take you to the hospital, what would have been your thought, how would you have sized up the souls of such? You could not have sized them up, for there was not enough soul to size up. A soul so small that it it were stuffed into the skin of a flea it would make a rattle lack size.

The men working on the road commence work in the morning so that they have their work done and get home soon after five at night. That is good sense on the part of the supervisor.

Wilson is president of the people of the United States of America, who are United States of America Americans, and they are back of him to a man.

R. A. EASTON.
