Failing Mentally

Dr. Hamilton's new Ford car begins to resemble some of the pictures of cars that are in active service on the battlefields in Europe. The doctor has forgotten how the car starts.

When a newspaper man he even forgets how his left hand got doubled back out of joint. It might have been anything from a telephone post to one of the cows which sleep in the roads at night. The doctor is silent as a clam on the subject and won't divulge one bit of information. If he would give a brief account of all the scratches and scars on his car we could evidently give the public some exciting, dramatic reading. But as it is at present we can only leave it to your imagination, for it would take a student of human nature to get anything out of "Doc" on the subject.

Going on Vacation

Mrs. W. G. Cleghorn, with her niece, Miss Leona Lane, who has been visiting her for some time, will leave on the Elizabeth for California. After spending some time at the exposition they will proceed to Fresno, where they will spend the winter with Mrs. Cleghorn's sister. Mr. Cleghorn is also planning a vacation trip, and after seeing his wife started on her journey he will leave overland for a visit at Willamette valley points. He expects to extend his trip to California, and will probably be away two months.

Academy Opens.

The Gravel Ford Academy will open Sept. 27, 1915, with W. H. Baugh as Principal, Miss Rachel Hall as Assistant and music teacher, and Mrs. A. E. Watkins as Matron.

Those desiring further information address the business manager, E. A. M'een, Gravel Ford, Oregon, Phone 38xx2.

And So He Walked

W. C. Rose drove out to Brewster valley Sunday in his car. His wife and father and Mrs. Paul Sterling, who accompanied him, stayed for a week's camping, and Mr. Rose returned the same night. At the cross-roads at Fairview he broke a back axle on his machine. Nine miles looked a rather long walk to him, so he borrowed Wm. Bettys' machine to drive himself home in. All went well till half of the Fairview mountain had been traversed when he discovered that he had lost his treasured fishing rod; but despite this fact he kept on his way. Near the county farm, four miles north of this place, his machine stopped on him and he could not get it to proceed another foot. After waiting for an hour thinking that a car would come along and bring him on to town, he had to hit out on foot. He walked the four miles, arriving home at a late hour.

More Fines Imposed

U. S. Inspector McGrath, whose headquarters are in Portland, has been coming down on the gasoline boat owners of the county with the big stick, and he has assessed fines against them aggregating over $5000 for failure to comply with the laws. Most of this falls on the Bay side, but a couple of Coquille boats were caught in the net.

C. W. Ashton, owner steamer Chrm, without official tonnage and number cut in beam, $30.

A. Panter, S. Hufford, Elmer Hufford, owners steamer Myrtle: no endorsement change of master, $10; no fog horn, $100; defective fire extinguisher on board, $100.

H. Bentley, North Bend, not sufficient life preservers, $100.

Edgar Farley, Empire, without life preservers, $100.

It is given out that leniency will not be shown hereafter, and that boat owners must comply strictly with the law.
