FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Events of Interest Reported For The Herald

OUR PATIENT PRESIDENT

This little old town of Washington, D. C., is a pretty busy place and the main thing in officialdom is to keep a cool head. Every day some new phase of foreign affairs entangles the Washington Government; and while the disposition is to be broad minded and forgiving, still it is mighty difficult for Uncle Sam to keep his temper at all times. Of course most public attention centers on our controversy with Germany, but then there is Austria-Hungary with its Dumba; and her arbitrary interference with shipping and its ridiculous censorship besides a pack of other wolk-like nations in trouble, and doing provoking things. Forbearance oftentimes ceases to be a virtue, but President Wilson ought to be considered a model for any artist desiring a pose of "Patience."

"NATIONAL PREPAREDNESS"

While the country is crying for "National preparedness" the practical view of the situation, taken by leading Democrats, indicates that they do not propose to saddle enormous appropriations onto the people. The President and his closest advisors are conservative in their ideas as to increases in the Army and Navy, and it is a safe prediction at this time to say that any great increase in the military or naval policy will have to be brought about by Republican help, in the next Congress.

OREGON IN STOCK EXHIBIT

Makes Good Showing in Face of the World

October and November will offer much calculated to delight the stockmen of the Northwest, this being the time of the big shows of all farm animals. Horses and mules will have full sway from October 1 to 13, and cattle, beef and dairy animals from October 18 to November 1. Sheep, goats and swine come in for display from November 3 to November 15 and the car lots of livestock will be shown from November 11 to November 14. The big poultry show is on between November 18 and 28, together with pigeons and pets follow up to the close of the fair. D. O. Lively chief of livestock department, well known to most Oregonians, says there is every reason to believe that the showing of animals at the exposition during these two months will be superb. The exposition has offered $175,000.00 for cash prizes besides $15,000.00 for a Special Horse Show. Forty-five breed record associations have provided $100,327.00 for special trophies and premiums, and various state commissions to the Exposition have appropriated $150,230.00 for livestock prizes, transportation and expenses, making a grand total of $440,557.00 for livestock participation in the series of shows. Cattle come in for the largest share, the money offered by the Exposition, the breed record associations and states totaling $148,667.00 exclusive of trophies. The appropriations for horses amount to $128,472; swine, $62,572; sheep and goats, $54,882; poultry, pigeons and pet stock, $13,750; dogs and

UNCLE SAM'S READING CIRCLE

The Bureau of Education at Washington has organized the National Reading Circle, and anyone can join. There is no charge, and when each course is finished a certificate will be issued by the government. Full instructions as to the books to be read in each course are furnished by the Bureau. Dr. Claxton, Commissioner of the Bureau says: "Read first for pleasure, and then he advises forming reading circles. There are ten different courses ready, and anyone may enter them, or find out all about this great movement by writing the Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C. The following are the courses: The great literary Bibles; a reading course for parents; masterpieces of the world's literature; miscellaneous reading for boys; miscellaneous reading for girls; thirty books of great fiction, some of the world's heroes; American literature; biography; history.

SUGGESTIONS FOR READING.

The Bureau of Education asserts that "the best and most complete expression of the ideals and tendencies of any people at any time is to be found in their literature. For modern times this expression is to be found most often and most fully in their great works of fiction." Books in the courses recom-

the keeping of National Committees of the party, and former Senator Jonathon Bourne, with his Republican Publicity Association, has the keys to the baby elephant's box stall. The policy and text of the G. O. P. is being written in Mr. Bourne's new volunteer organization, and "led to country newspapers." Big business of the conservative old kind like Mark Hanna used to utilize, is reported to be paying the bill, and "progressive" Republican newspapers are falling for the arrangement.

DANIEL WINS ACCLAM

It has been almost a fashion to "cuss out" Secretary Daniels; but by reason of having enlisted the services of Thomas A. Edison and twenty-two other great citizens as members of the Naval Advisory Board, Mr. Daniels has certainly performed a useful act to his country, and even his most severe critics are praising his accomplishment.

CLASSIFICATIONS OF PUBLIC LANDS

Secretary Lane announces that 300,000 acres of public lands have been temporarily withdrawn from entry for the purpose of classification as to the value of the land for coal, and after such classification will be restored. About 45,000 acres of this land is in Montana and cats, $5,500.

September, October and November are the delightful months of the year in the Golden Gate region, and it is expected that the crowds will be increased over the present splendid average of 70,000 daily.

SOME STEER.

It is not improbable that Oregon will show here the largest steer in captivity at the present time. This is a 3,000 pounder that grew up in the Klamath country. The animal is six years old, and is range fed only, never having been in a stall. George Watt, the owner, proposed to enter the big fellow for a prize, but there is no class for anything beyond three year-olds. It is now proposed to bring the old boy down as a part of the Oregon exhibit, with headquarters in the game pavilion adjoining the Oregon building. Even a picture of the animal in the Klamath booth attracts considerable attention, and the real thing on display is certain to prove a winner.

AN INTERESTING EXHIBIT

One of the really interesting and effective exhibits offered by the state of Oregon is that ten-acre showing of F. M. Sherman, of Lebanon, just now rebuilt with fresh products. This is located in the Palace of Agriculture, occupy-

Samson, the author of the play 'The Temple of Gold', is shown in a scene from the play. The play is being performed at the Exposition.

Great Drama Comes Saturday

"My temple was built of gold, whom Brachard loves with all the force of his crude soul—to the newly risen Croesus. Marie, however, loathes the rough, powerful man, with the uncouth vigor of the dockyard still clinging to him despite the partial veneer that his dealings with men of millions has given him. Jerome Gouvaire, libertine, duelist and general man about town, meets the Brachards and Marie, fascinated by this polished Lothario, agrees to meet him at an orgy in a private room at a fast cafe. A "cast off" of Gouvaire's, Elise, warns Samson that the appointment is to be kept while the millionaire is absent on a business trip in London. He pretends to start but, instead of taking the train, returns home in time to trap his wife on her return disheveled and hysterical from the supper party. She has succeeded in escaping after a struggle when she saw into what company she had fallen. Brachard, with the intuition that has made him the master in many a financial duel, worms the truth from her at last and swears to avenge himself, Gouvaire who has posed as his friend, is deeply involved in copper, thanks to Brachard's tips. The former dock-laborer knows no weapons but his fists and a duel with Gouvaire would mean suicide for him. So he decides to ruin Gouvaire by "striking the market like a thunderbolt." He does so and, in the crash that follows the fall of Egyptian Copper, his own fortune is wiped out and all France is plunged into the convulsions of a financial crisis. Mr. Brachard, having pulled down the pillars of his temple of gold, prepares to leave France forever; but he does not go alone, for Marie, who in his greatness has despised his rugged shrewdness and rude strength, finds in his downfall that she loves him. Brachard, amidst the chaos of his fallen temple, exclaims as she comes to his side: "At last! At last! My hour has come!"

man's Willamette Valley farm, will grow this year more than 500 varieties of all kinds of produce. It is not intended to convey the idea that these 500 varieties are grown by him for commercial purpose or that Mr. Sherman specializes in any considerable number of them. Neither is it the purpose of the exhibits to induce anyone to take up farming on a ten-acre tract in Willamette Valley or anywhere else. Mr. Sherman specializes in strawberries, canteloupes and year-round garden products, with a few chickens and minor side lines thrown in for good measure, and while the Lebanon man has done almost phenomenally well on ten acres (or 8 acres until a year ago last February when he added two more at $325 an acre), he happens to be a happy combination of business man and scientific farmer. He is a man of method, of abounding energy, faith in himself, and a determination that is apparent in every move. And he has a wife who has always had flowers on the table—perhaps his greatest asset. Others who lack any part of the combination that has entered into the success of Mr. Sherman might well hesitate about confining themselves to ten acres, even in the Willamette valley. The
