PLACE COOS ON PACIFIC HIGHWAY

The visit here of E. S. Cantine, state highway engineer, and B. H. Burrell, U. S. road engineer, has not only given much encouragement to our local advocates of good roads, but it has given them a new idea of the utmost importance and one which argues strongly for the immediate getting of a wiggle on ourselves.

Everyone knows of the Pacific Highway, which is being constructed the length of the coast and on which much work is being done in California, Oregon and Washington. This will be the great avenue for tourist automobile travel, not only for the people of this coast but for those from all over the United States, who are becoming more and more imbued with the wisdom of the slogan, "See America First." The intention is to make this an all-year-round highway, and to this end it is absolutely necessary to avoid the Siskiyou mountains.

Two routes are available for the accomplishment of this object: one turning west from Grants Pass to Crescent City, the other turning west at Roseburg and reaching the coast by what is practically a water-level route by way of the Coquille river. This is far the better route for the reason that it avoids the notorious Cow Creek canyon country region, which in some respects is worse than the Siskiyou.

What is practically a water-level route can be obtained from the valley by way of the Coquille, for the watershed divide is very low, and a grade of practically a water level can be obtained from the headwaters of the Coquille to the open valley at Myrtle Point.

It is hardly necessary to point out the lesson of the above statement. A moment's thought makes it obvious. If the tide of tourist travel that will flow over the Pacific Highway can be brought through Coos county it means benefits too large to be estimated.

In view of this, there is only one rational plan for the inauguration of the good roads work here, and that is the one endorsed at the meeting here a few days ago, for a trunk line from North Bend to Myrtle Point. It is true that the plan resolved upon contemplated the extension from North Bend to Empire, but as a matter of cold common sense that should be dropped. It was only inserted as a sop to North Bend and to equalize the amounts to be expended on the two sides of the divide which separates Coos county into two groups of narrow-minded children. It is time for this little, petty jealousy and pork-barrel trend of mind to be eliminated, and no doubt the Coos Bay people can be made to see that if there is any money left after building from North Bend to Myrtle Point it should go into the extension of the line toward Roseburg. In that case there is not the slightest doubt that we would receive aid from the state highway funds and also from the United States. Bandon need not worry, for if the Pacific Highway can be brought through here she is certain of being on the line. She will get her road up the valley and her road into Curry county in the regular course of events, and she will be in line to receive greater benefit from the tourist travel than any other place in the county.

Road Meeting.

There was a large attendance at the road meeting Friday night. There were several local speakers who gave their ideas on the building of roads and there were many good suggestions offered.

B. H. Burrell, senior engineer in the U. S. Department of Roads, gave a very interesting and instructive talk on good roads. There are fifty engineers in the department in which Mr. Burrell is the senior. E. S. Cantine, State Highway engineer, also gave a very interesting talk. Neither of the men were acquainted with the conditions in this district and so could not state just what style of road they thought would be the best adapted to this place. Mr. Burrell says that if the people wish it a man will be sent down from the state department to inspect our highways and to give us an idea of how he thinks our roads should be constructed. Both speakers told about the different styles of roads which are being constructed all over the state and in several other states. Many new ideas were gleaned from their talk.

Saturday morning Mr. Burrell and E. S. Cantine accompanied Judge Watson by auto over the Marshfield road and back around by Sumner, out past Dora and around by Myrtle Point, so as to get a general idea of the way we are building our roads.

Mr. Burrell and Mr. Cantine were very favorably impressed by the roads between here and Marshfield. There are several thousand feet of new planking being put on the Sumner mountain. They expressed themselves pleased the way the work was being carried on, and stated that the grading and work were along the same lines as those of the Pacific Highway.

This summer the county court has been doing good work and has let all the contracts at a low figure. The fact is they have got a good deal more for their money than ever before, and a good deal better roads.

Woman's Study Club

The Woman's Study Club met yesterday in the city library.

This year the club will study the earlier American literature and travels in the United States, and will finish the course in Domestic Science.

After a business session Mrs. J. W. Springer, chairman of the literary program committee, announced the following program for the next meeting, October 25:

Roll call with Bits from Colonial Authors. Talk: General Characteristics of Colonial Literature—Mrs. Longston. Readings from John Smith and other Colonial Authors—Mrs. Springer. Talk—The Great Theologians—Mrs. Anderson. Discussion—The Theological Writings and the Records Compared in Regard to Value and Interest. Talk, with Readings—Wit and Humor of Colonial Days—Mrs. Knowlton. The New England Primer—Mrs. Kistner. Talk—Literature of the Revolution—Mrs. Young. Readings from the Early Poets—Mrs. Rogers. Reports on Extra Readings. Mrs. R. S. Knowlton, of the Domestic Science department next gave a reading on "Flies," which was received with great interest, and remarks which would have crushed every fly within hearing, if they were possessed of fine sensibilities. The next lesson in Domestic Science will be Chapter 1, Part 11, of the text book.

The name of Mrs. F. C. Pursey was added to the membership roll.

Some Straight Talk.

Here is some straight talk from the manager of the Scenic: First he wants to apologize to you for some of the horrible junk that he has been obliged to show you in the last few weeks, and to assure you that he has been fully as much disgusted with it as you could possibly be. It has been something awful. At the same time some pictures of irreproachable quality have been shown. The Fox features are equal to anything shown anywhere today. The "Diamond from the Sky" is an excellent feature. The Keystone comedies and especially the Chaplins are bully. The junk has come in the Universal service. It will be remembered that a change was made to Universal about two months ago, because the General Film Co. was giving us junk, and an improvement was hoped for. For about a month after the change the Universal people sent us some splendid pictures; then, in accordance with the practice of other Portland branches, they commenced sending poorer and poorer pictures every week. This has reached the limit, and a change will be made at once as soon as a new service can be arranged for. The manager has no more desire to show poor pictures than you have to see them, nor does he expect to build up a profitable business on poor service. So he craves your patience, as he appreciates your patronage, and he promises a material improvement in the near future. In the meantime he will show you the best he can get.

The Mail Carrier departed from Tickleville for Hogwallow the other day with a cake of ice, to prove to several skeptics that there is such a thing as ice in summer time. However, when he arrived here all the ice had disappeared except a very small piece. The Deputy Constable is at work on the case in an effort to find out where it went.

The editor of the Tickleville Tidings wrote a very strong editorial for the next issue, entitled, "Turn the Rascals Out of Office," but before it was published the man he was writing about came in and paid up his subscription, and the editor's conscience hurt him so he had to tear the article up.

The Hogwallow Improvement Society met Wednesday night and voted a fund of six dollars for advertising purposes. It will be contributed to the Excelsior Fiddling Band with understanding that they are not to give any public concerts this summer.

The Hog Ford preacher will deliver an extra good sermon at Bounding Billows on the second Sunday of this month. They are needing a preacher at the church there if he suits the congregation, as they are dissatisfied with the one they have.

Washington Hooks, who has been sitting on a stump near the road for the past several days waiting for the mail carrier, got out of patience yesterday morning and returned home.

While Raz Barlow was over to see Miss Flutie Belcher Sunday afternoon, he enjoyed some funny moving pictures by turning the leaves of the family album right fast.

Fith Smith at last has high hope of breaking into public print. He has a wen on his neck and has already been approached by a patent medicine firm for his photo and testimonial.

Yam Sims visited Miss Flutie Belcher Sunday afternoon and wrote a verse in her push-back album, which she will preserve for coming generations to peruse, provided she marries.

Washington Hooks left early Thursday morning for a visit of several days at Bounding Billows. He went afoot as this is the only safe way for a person to reach his destination without some kind of a breakdown.

Dock Hooks was seen going toward Bounding Billows last Sunday wearing his speckled pants. We fear Dock will live to be an old bachelor, as he has a habit of trying to court too many girls at once.

Frisby Hancock is thinking of opening a boneyard near the Rye Straw store in the near future. On account of the panic he should do a prosperous business.

The Hog Ford preacher had one of the largest crowds of the year to hear him Sunday. The room was so full everybody had to stay through the entire sermon.

Tobe Mosely, who borrowed the Dog Hill church bell for one of his songs to wear, has been asked to return it immediately, in order that services can be held.

The Hogwallow Improvement Association met last night and held a lengthy discussion on ways and means to bring up something of importance for consideration, but adjourned without coming to a decision.

Sim Flinders says he cannot see how some roosters are able to be around so much in day time after having set up all night crowing.

Fletcher Henstep says if Miss Froxie Allsup ever gets to vote and has anything to do with the election returns, he bets they will be padded.

The Postmaster says that while it is true that he has to handle all the mail, he is glad to know that he is not compelled to read and answer it all.

The Postmaster will not be bothered much with flies this summer, as he has set in to get them all skinned off him.

Raz Barlow is trying to find out how far it is by mail from here to Tickleville.

Old Established House Makes Excellent Mattresses

Since 1826, the firm of Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co. have been found famous for their baby carriages, their chairs and their reed and rattan goods. Throughout the United States, they have established great distributing points from which these products are sent to the furniture stores in every city and town.

A few months ago they began to produce mattresses, and already Heywood mattresses are becoming recognized as the utmost in quality at the lowest prices. People who, as children, learned to know the comfort of Heywood baby carriages are welcoming an opportunity to buy a mattress on which this same name appears.

True to the policy of the institution, every Heywood Mattress is fully guaranteed. The newspaper announcements state plainly that every Heywood Mattress is sold under a "make good" guarantee. Anyone who buys a Heywood Mattress is sure of satisfaction and service. The policy of Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co. is that the customer is always right. If you buy a Heywood Mattress and years from now, should feel that your Heywood Mattress has not been giving you satisfaction, then Heywood Bros. & Co. will be ready to give you a new mattress without further cost to you.

Many good furniture stores have quickly grasped the opportunity to handle this splendid line of mattresses. While it is true that the profits on such a quality line are not large, yet the furniture trade knows that it means the making of many friends among its customers to recommend a high grade, guaranteed and widely known mattress. The customer has double protection. First, there is the guarantee of satisfaction which every good retail furniture man offers his trade. Secondly, there is back of every Heywood Mattress the guarantee of a house which, for nearly one hundred years has built up a reputation for reliability.

"Happy Canyon."

The maps, and the encyclopedias and atlases may fail to define the location of such a place but anybody who attended the 1915 Round-up in Pendleton can tell you all about it and take a great deal of pleasure in doing so.

"Happy Canyon," literally speaking is the institution which the Pendleton people have provided for the entertainment of the throngs which gather here during the Round-up week. It is located in a huge pavilion bordering on Main street in Pendleton but once a visitor enters the portals of the pavilion, he very promptly forgets the outside world. Inside he sees a reproduction of one of those old, rough, frontier towns in which romance and history is so rich. Weather-beaten lumber

For instance there is the "Stagger Inn," "Spender's Bank," the "Log Cabin, Saloon," the old jail, the fire house, the general store and many other places of business to remind the visitor of "the days of old and the days of gold."

The "Old Road."

From the early day items in the Coos Bay News we clip the following from the issue of September 20, 1882:

The Coos Bay wagon road is passable for wagons from Roseburg to a point in the canyon about two miles east of Cape Horn and three miles from Laird's. W. Glover is general superintendent of the work and Billy Adams is the blasting boss. Twenty-seven men were at work until Saturday last, when eight left, having business engagements at Roseburg, and at present nineteen are at work and eight or ten more are wanted. J. B. Fox, who lately finished the Gravel Ford bridge for the county, will probably be given the contract to build a bridge where the road crosses the North Fork. He made an estimate of the cost of construction and banded Mr. Glover a bid on Saturday last, which was being considered when our informant left. The trail is open through the canyon to Laird's, and the mail came through over the trail for the first time on Thursday last. It is the intention of the superintendent to have the road open for stages by the first of next month.

East Fork Items.

Mr. Gallop and Son of Riddle's came in last week over the Coos Bay wagon road.

Mr. and Mrs. Foth and two sons, a daughter and daughter-in-law, nee Vogel, arrived Sunday from California in their Studebaker car to visit the Vogels.

Born—Monday, Oct. 4, 1915, to Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Miller, a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Claughton and family who have been living at Bandon went out over the Coos Bay road, bound for the Willamette or Columbia river valley where they intend to get a tract of land.

About a month ago John McVey lost his gold watch and chain while burning slash. After much searching it came to him to look in a log pile that had not all burned up. He found it, looking as though it had been through a fire, but the jeweler, Mr. Schroeder, thinks he will be able to make it go.

Mr. Courtwright who had lived on the Howe place and moved to Harney county more than a year ago, died recently after quite a long illness. He was a good neighbor.

E. K. Marcy is under the weather with the gripple.

John McVey got ptomaine poisoning eating ice cream at Coquille about a month ago that came near knocking the underpinning out from under him.

Saturday, Oct. 2, the writer drove from Marshfield to John Conklin's, four miles south of South Slough on the Bandon road, and took the horses for pasture to Mr. Liebie's, who lives in the B. G. Creek bottom. As Mr. Lieby says, the land is "good dirt." Such a growth of carrots, not the root particularly, for they were sown thickly. I think I never saw before. Looking over the patch there is not a sign of a row—just a mass like a bayfield. The best potatoes that I have seen for a long time we had for supper at Mr. Conklin's, grown on his place, which is all hill land. I am of the opinion that the hill land on the Marshfield Bandon road is to become noted for the quality of the potatoes it produces.

Sunday morning I struck out early for Norton's Gulch, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barker, where Mrs. Easton was visiting—a five or six miles walk. One of those perfect mornings; then when on the Sunset Bay road you catch sight of the ocean and its tang added a spring to your step and its beat upon the shore a song of life. You feel it is good to be alive. To get a partial view of the coast line at Cape Arago light house is worth a long walk, and to enjoy the quiet charm of Sunset bay is more reward. And when Mr. Barker takes you to the view points of Norton's Gulch you wonder if there is any other place where ocean waves and rock can conjure up such a picture. After breakfast Mr. Barker went with us to "Shore Acres," the home of L. J. Simpson. The walk is a beautiful one. Mr. Simpson guided us through his gardens and we see the swimming pool that is being built. As we stood at the front of the house and looked at the rocks that are carved in pictures by the waves and held the great expanse of ocean, and then as we are taken through the flower, berry and vegetable gardens and see the beautiful flowers in greater profusion than I have ever seen before, I can say that "Shore Acres" is one of the most beautiful places that my eyes have seen. It is 19 years since I saw Golden Gate Park. Its lawns were beautiful, but there was nothing in the way of flowers to compare with the wealth of color and beauty at Shore Acres. I am glad we went to Shore Acres for I am that much richer for all that I saw is mine, for one is rich only to the extent of the beautiful things he sees, and to the amount of beauty his soul may hold. Shore Acres is one of Coos county's big assets; Shore Acres is an experiment station.
