Notice of Sheriff's Sale
in the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon in and for the County of Coos

The First National Bank of Roseburg, Oregon, a Corporation, and S. A. Sanford, trustee, Plaintiffs vs.
P. L. Phelan and Rose M. Phelan, husband and wife, William E. Pike, W. B. Hammit, and Myrtle Point Mill Company, a Corporation, Defendants.

No. 4182

Notice is hereby given that by virtue of an execution and order of sale issued out of and under the seal of the above entitled court, and in the above entitled cause, bearing the date of September 8th, 1915, to me directed commanding me to sell in the manner prescribed by the law of this State for the sale of real property on execution all of the right, title and interest which the defendants or any of them had or claimed in or to the real property hereinafter described on the 12th day of July, 1912, or have had at any time since, or now have therein, I will expose for sale and will sell at public auction at the main entrance to the court house of said county and in the City of Coquille in said County and State, on Saturday, the 16th day of October, 1915, at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon, all of the right to, claim upon, and interest in said property, or any of them, had on the 1st day of July, 1912, or have had at any time since, or now have in or to that certain parcel and tract of real property situate in said Coos county, and particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:-

Commencing at an iron stake on the east bank of the South Fork of the Coquille river, thence running easterly 354 feet to an iron stake at the county road, thence north along the road 78 feet and 6 inches, thence starting from an iron stake on the opposite side of the road and running east 11 feet, thence north 285 feet to an iron stake near an alder tree on the south bank of the North Fork of the Coquille river, thence down stream along the left bank of said river to its junction with the South Fork and thence upstream along the right bank of said South Fork to place of beginning. Also a right of way 25 feet in width from the main line of the C. B. R. & E. R. & N. Co.'s railroad, which right of way is to be established by the railroad engineers in a convenient place to have access to the mill known as the "Rockhill Mill" all in N. W. 1/4 of S. W. 1/4 of section 9, township 29 south, range 12 west of Willamette Meridian; also born privileges on the said south and North Forks fronting the NW 1/4 of section 9, Township 29 South, Range 12 west of Willamette Meridian; together with the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in any way appertaining.

I will place into the possession of said premises the purchaser thereof at said sale immediately after said sale. Said sale will be made to satisfy the judgment in favor of S. A. Sanford, plaintiff against Myrtle Point Mill Company, a corporation, one of said defendants, amounting to the sum of six thousand five hundred and ninety-nine dollars and sixty-five cents ($6599.65), with interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from the 7th day of September, 1915; and the further sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars and costs and disbursements taxed at sixteen dollars and eighty cents ($16.80), with interest from the 7th day of September, 1915, at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, and the costs and expenses of this sale, and will be made subject to redemption as prescribed by the law of this State.

"A Gilded Fool."

Chauncey Short, the "gilded fool" of Henry Guy Carleton's drama, "A Gilded Fool," Nat Goodwin's memorable success, which has been prepared for the screen as a William Fox, Production Extraordinary, released through the Box Office Attraction Co., is a typical young waster, of good family and decent instincts, with too much money for his own good. Nobody takes him seriously, he himself, in fact, regards himself as a joke and life as a laughing matter by no means to be taken seriously. His life runs along in this way till he meets Margaret Ruthven, the charming daughter of Matthew Ruthven, a wealthy banker of the old school of "city men."

Mr. Ruthven, a conservative, stiffly starched man of affairs, regards with contempt, not unmixed with disgust, the useless, worthless young Short, who so far, has displayed not the slightest inclination to forsake his clubs, cards and coaching parties. Margaret Ruthven, however, has awakened ambition in Short's really vigorous nature. He determines to "brace up" and prove that when put to it he is as good and brisk a business man as any of Mr. Ruthven's "old crusted school."

At first he encounters many difficulties. So long as he played the "giddy goat" that his sudden serious turn is regarded as merely another of his jokes. His friends look upon his efforts as a huge lark undertaken at the behest of a peculiar impulse of humor. Short, however, with Margaret Ruthven to encourage and aid him in his self-set task, perseveres in his resolution. His old cronies begin to drop off.

He becomes associated with the banker in some business deals and the old man begins to thaw just a little. Then come rumors of an upheaval in the money world. Securities grow wobbly. Ruthven, the respected conservative old banker, falls a victim to the lures of an unscrupulous partner, who sacrifices all Ruthven's interest to save himself.

Ruin stares the old banker in the face and disgrace also in the latter days of an honorable, respected business career. The blow is too much for him to bear up under and he is unable to assemble the loose ends of his disorganized business. It is then that the Gilded Fool comes to the rescue. With ready business acumen and energy he routes Ruthven's foes and exposes those who have plotted against the banker. Fighting with his back to the wall, he displays the true mettle of which he is made. By dint of his ability alone the day is saved and Ruthven's honor is safe. The old banker overcome by gratitude, readily consents to the match between Short, now a real figure in the financial world, and Margaret and thus "A Gilded Fool" comes into his own.

An all-star American cast supporting one of America's greatest actors, William Farnum, in an American drama of great power and virility makes the William Fox feature production of Henry Guy Carleton's striking play "The Gilded Fool" a peculiarly distinctive and notable event in screen history. Edgar Davenport, whose excellent and finished work showed to such remarkable advantage in the William Fox production of the great Charles Frohman success, "The Thief," adds new laurels to his fame as a dignified and polished actor by his splendid portrayal of Ruthven, the hide-bound old banker with his conservative business methods and narrow prejudices against the swift-flowing tides of modern life. In this part, which affords remarkable scope for the display of Mr. Davenport's powers, the actor is seen at his very best.

Charming and beautiful Maude Gilbert, whose striking portraiture of the erring wife in Samson, will be long recollected by all who saw that great William Fox picture, plays with winning sweetness and ability the difficult role of Margaret Ruthven, the old banker's daughter who sees despite his wild ways and spendthrift manners, the germ of a great man in Chauncey Short, the Gilded Fool, played by Mr. Farnum. She is his good angel and her good influence forms an important factor in the Gilded Fool's redemption after he has passed through fires of ruin and disgrace. It is a wonderful part wonderfully played. Miss Gilbert even surpasses in its depiction the ability she displayed to such noteworthy advantage in the stirring scenes of the memorable Thief.
