Oregon Loganberries

little interest is taken in the phenomenal berry by the two distributing firms most active in the loganberry industry.

One of these firms, the Oregon Nursery Co., of Oreno, says that it was so far as known the first to propagate the loganberry in Oregon, and that it got its start from Judge Logan, of Santa Cruz, California, and that not any further importations were made, so far as the records show. The company ceased to handle the phenomenal berry about six years ago and sell it now only when specially asked for.

It considers the phenomenal as being a seedling of the loganberry. The Aspinwall Bros., of Brooks, say that their stock of loganberries came from Judge Logan through Dr. Richardson, a personal friend of Logan, and Hon. A. M. LaFollette. The Aspinwall firm has never handled the phenomenal at all, but has reports that it produces only about a third as much as the loganberry.

The similarity of the loganberries of known stock to the loganberries grown throughout the state is sufficient to establish the identity of the latter as loganberries. Hence the loganberry is such indeed, and it would be a great mistake, says Professor Lewis, to change its name to phenomenal or anything else. An effective advertising campaign has made the fame of the loganberry juice known throughout a large part of the United States, and a change of name would not only be an error but poor policy as well which still have vitality to exude gum at the injured points may in some cases be brought into condition by severe pruning and an application as the buds swell in the spring of an effective wash, as fish-oil soap, at the rate of 1 pound to the gallon of water, or heavy white-wash, or a wash made of 1 pint of crude carbolic acid and 1 gallon of soft fish oil soap dissolved in 8 gallons of water. Washes should be thoroughly applied to the trunk and larger limbs.

In the case of apple, pear and other trees which do not exude gum to any extent, it is a question of judgment whether it will be possible to save trees attacked by this insect. If the infestation is rather severe, it usually indicates that the tree is beyond hope of saving. Individual branches on trees may often show attack by this insect and should be promptly removed and burned to prevent its further increase and spread.

Water Permits Issued.

During the quarter ending July 31, 1915, the State Engineer issued 152 permits for the appropriation of water under which it is proposed to irrigate 23,143 acres, develop 352 horsepower and construct 15 reservoirs. These permits will require the construction of 210 miles of canals and pipe lines and an estimated expenditure of $891,242.

FREE PORTS BUILDERS OF COMMERCE

CONGRESS SHOULD GIVE THEM PREFERENCE IN APPROPRIATIONS.

By Peter Radford.

This nation is now entering upon an era of marine development. The wreckage of European commerce has drifted to our shores and the world war is making unprecedented demands for the products of farm and factory. In transportation facilities on land we lead the world but our port facilities are inadequate, and our flag is seldom seen in foreign ports. If our government would only divert the energy we have displayed in conquering the railroads to mastering the commerce of the sea, a foreign bottom would be unknown on the ocean's highways.

This article will be confined to a discussion of our ports for the products of the farm must pass over our wharfs before reaching the water. We have in this nation 51 ports, of which 41 are on the Atlantic and 10 are on the Pacific Coast. The Sixty-second Congress appropriated over $51,000,000 for improving our Rivers and Harbors and private enterprise levies a toll of approximately $50,000,000 annually in wharfage and charges for which no tangible service is rendered. The latter item should be lifted off the backs of the farmer of this nation and this can be done by Congress directing its appropriations to ports that are free where vessels can tie up to a wharf and discharge her cargo free of any fee or charge.

A free port is progress. It takes out the unnecessary link in the chain of transactions in commerce which has for centuries laid a heavy hand upon commerce. No movement is so heavily laden with results or will more widely and equally distribute its benefits as that of a free port and none can be more easily and effectively secured.

THE VITAL PROBLEM OF AGRICULTURE

By Peter Radford.

There is no escaping the market problem and the highest development of agriculture will not be attained until it is solved, for a market is as necessary for the producer as land on which to grow his crop. Governmental and educational institutions have spent $180,000,000 in the United States during the past ten years for improving soil production and improving seeds and plants, but very little attention and less money has been given to the marketing side of agriculture.

The problem is a monumental one and one which will never be solved until it gets within the grasp of a gigantic organization where master minds can concentrate the combined experience and wisdom of the age upon it. It is a problem which the farmers, merchants, bankers, editors and statesmen must unite in solving. The Farmers' Union stands for all there is in farming from the most scientific methods of seed selection to the most systematic and profitable plans of marketing, but does not believe in promoting one to the neglect of the other. We consider the work of farm demonstrators valuable and we ask that governmental and commercial agencies seeking to help us, continue to give us their assistance and advice, but we believe that their influence should be extended to the marketing side of our farm problems also.

We cannot hope to develop manufacturing by over-production of the factory; we cannot build up mercantile enterprises by the merchants loading their shelves with surplus goods and no more can we develop agriculture by glutting the market with a surplus of products.

DARIUS

The neigh of a horse made Darius King of Persia, the six contending powers for the throne agreeing among themselves that the one whose horse should neigh first should possess the kingdom. This ancient method of settling disputes among politicians could be revived with profit today. If our partisan factions and petty politicians could only settle their disputes by the neigh of a horse, the bark of a dog or the bray of a donkey, it would be a great blessing and would give our citizens a better opportunity to pursue the vocations of industry free from political strife.

Let those who pick political plums by raising rows and who flash swords dripping in the blood of industry understand that they cannot turn the public forum into a political arena and by a clash of personal aspirations still the hammer and stop the plow and that their quarrels must be settled in the back alleys of civilization.

It may, in a particular case, be only worth twenty-five cents. Then the public gets value received.
