

"I'll Bet You a Year's Salary"

KITTY GRAY, an American newspaper reporter, finds and purchases half an old coin that she discovered in the window of an old curiosity shop. She is so impressed by the inscription which promises romance and adventure that she gives up her position on the newspaper in order to devote herself to solving the mystery. The decision of her editor moves her to bet him a year's salary that she can do it. She starts for the strange country and throughout the story she is shadowed by those who strive to thwart her at every turn.

How she triumphs over the most astounding obstacles, her hair-breadth escapes and thrilling adventures are told in the Universal's new magnificent picture serial, THE BROKEN COIN, founded on the story by Emerson Hough, the famous author who wrote such masterpieces of fiction as "The Mississippi Bubble," "54-40 or Fight," and scores of other huge successes. He has outdone his previous efforts in this wonderful story of THE BROKEN COIN, which is played by the strongest and most brilliant combination of moving picture stars ever brought together.

See Grace Cunard and Francis Ford in this triumph of realism and sensation. Follow Kitty Gray through her devious and adventurous quest, in the finest picture serial ever shown on the screen.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

- Feed the live stock carefully.
- The spring pasture is a long way off. Plan to give the pasture a good chance next year by conserving a reserve of roughage for spring feeding.
- Good beef bulls are scarce.
- Use and keep only the best.
- A warm pen is necessary for the farrowing sow, but a single board, low roofed cabin is ample shelter for all other mature pigs.
- Why lose money in rearing three and four year old steers when baby heaves and well finished two year olds are commanding the top prices? Finish beef early and thoroughly.
- Separate the lambs from the mature sheep and keep them growing by feeding good hay, turnips and a limited grain ration.
- Good preparation of ewes for lambing is as essential as preparing a dairy cow for her lactation period. Don't get the ewes too fat.

PROFITS IN FALL PIGS WHEN PROPERLY FED

When properly handled fall pigs can frequently be made to turn off pork with less grain per pound of pork produced than the spring pigs, says the Kansas Farmer. In order to accomplish this the greatest possible use of forage must be made. If fall pigs had late fall pasture in the form of alfalfa or rape and later rye or wheat with good alfalfa hay through the winter they have been grown thus far without any excessive amount of grain feeding.

With the coming on of the pasture season again these sheats which have been grown through the winter with a minimum amount of grain are in splendid condition to make further growth without feeding very heavily on grain. The well grown fall sows are really in a position to make much larger use of green forage than are the spring pigs. They need not be fed to exceed 2 per cent of their live weight in grain at any time through the summer. In fact, with the present high price of grain it would probably be profitable to place them on an almost exclusive pasture diet for a portion at least of the summer. Pigs handled in this manner will have a lank appearance, but will be growthy, and when grain is again available the fall they can be brought to heavyweights and turned off on the market with the possibility of making some profit.

Numerous experiments in the United States and Canada have proved that of the late type there has never been a breed that has made more gain for feed consumed than the Chester White. In disposition this hog is unexcelled, thereby reducing to a minimum the loss of small pigs as compared to more nervous crossbreeds. In prolificacy the Chester White sows give an abundant flow of rich milk, sufficient to supply a large litter of uniform pigs until weaning age with ample rations for rapid growth. The sow shown is a Chester White.

With the prevailing conditions the man having a bunch of fall pigs on his hands should plan to have some cheaper grain at the earliest possible date. Fields which can be pastured may be planted to some of the extremely early varieties of corn with profit. Some of these varieties will mature grain as early as July, and hogs can be turned into these early maturing grainfields and harvest the crop themselves, running on alfalfa pasture at the same time. Feterita likewise will mature grain at a very early date and can be used profitably in the same manner.

Breeding Goats.
Goats may be bred at any time of the year, and the kids will be dropped about five months later (147 to 152 days), the period of gestation being the same as with sheep. The mother goat should have dry, warm and comfortable quarters when time for her young to be born, and the kids should not be exposed to cold or storm. Kids are very tender until they have reached the age of several weeks and must be kept dry and warm and be well nourished. They may be weaned at from three to four months, having been allowed a little green food as soon as they would begin to eat it, and then may have grain in addition to their other food, oats being one of the best grain foods.—Rural New Yorker

Feeding Swine.
The feeding pig not making rapid gains is being fed at a loss. Exercise and succulent feed are as essential to breeding pigs as to any other class of stock. Prepare the sow for the farrowing period. Fine clover hay and whole or pulped roots may be fed advantageously to mature sows and hogs.

FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

(Continued from Page One of the free.) The night school has proven to be one of the best routes to true Americanism. By educating the wife along with the husband, at least one of them is sure to become the right kind of an American, and if the other does tip toward the hyphen condition, the chances are that a good balance will be maintained in the household.

THE COLOMBIAN TREATY.

The pending treaty between the United States and the Republic of Colombia which proposes to give to the latter some twenty million dollars as a salve for injured feelings, because of the seizure of the Isthmus of Panama in the building of the Canal, may stir up considerable of a fuss during the winter session of Congress. It was Mr. Bryan's belief while Secretary of State that this government should make some amends to Colombia, and after Colonel Roosevelt explosively denounced the proposition, the administration Democrats were inclined to back up Colonel Bryan. As this topic is desired for campaign purposes in the coming campaign it likely will be discussed in considerable detail.

If former Senator Stephenson's statement is correct that his health elected Mr. LaFollette and himself to the national body, it can at least be said that "Uncle Ike" picked one statesman—but no one will suspect that it was himself.

Red Cross Seals.

None of the proceeds from the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals, which are being sold so widely throughout the United States for the benefit of the anti-tuberculosis movement, will be used for any relief purposes, according to a statement by Ernest P. Bicknell, National Director of the American Red Cross.

Mr. Bicknell says: "The American Red Cross is deeply appreciative of the sympathetic interest which has inspired the suggestion from various parts of the United States that a certain percentage of the Red Cross Seal Sales Fund, which has been used for the last seven years exclusively for the prevention and treatment of tuberculosis in the United States, be expended this year to aid the European war sufferers. While the Red Cross is desirous of securing contributions which will increase the war relief fund, we do not feel justified in adopting any policy which will tend to cripple the tuberculosis work in this country, dependent as it is for support to so large an extent on the sale of Red Cross Christmas Seals. The announcement that a percentage of the Red Cross

Seal money would go to our war relief fund might possibly increase the sale; but, in our opinion, the final results would show a distinct loss in that part of the proceeds going for tuberculosis work.

"At the present time there are over 1,200 anti-tuberculosis societies distributed through nearly every state in the Union and even in Porto Rico, the Canal Zone and far off Hawaii, which are dependent almost entirely upon the receipts from the Red Cross Seal Sale for their work during the year 1916. The people of the United States must support this local war against tuberculosis, which annually kills 200,000 people and at the present time is leaving a trail of a million wounded."

Influence of College Men.
As educated men filter through the community reforms are obtained that twenty years ago seemed millennial. The separation of local from state sources of revenue, the separation of local from national elections, the treatment of a franchise as valuable property, the discriminating between ordinary industry and natural monopoly, the practice of scientific charity, and penology, the concentration of responsibility in government—these and a score of other good things which once seemed as far above popular comprehension as four dimensional space have come to pass, thanks chiefly to the radiations from the classrooms.—Century Magazine.
