Brandstetter Back

L. D. Brandstetter, of Eureka, is again in town in the interest of the Russ Land Company. Mr. Brandstetter will make a stay of about 24 days, when he will make another short visit to Eureka. He states that his home is now at Coquille, and his Humboldt affairs will be obliged to get along with occasional visits of inspection.

"Grandma" Leneve Sick

"Grandma" Leneve suffered an attack of ptomaine poisoning Saturday morning and for a while it looked very doubtful about her recovery. However, she is now rapidly recovering and insists that she will be up and about again in a very few days. She will celebrate her 90th birthday the 12th of next month. Despite her old age she has a wonderful constitution and it is very likely that she will see the hundred year mark.

Assault Charged

R. A. Easton was in from Dora Saturday and swore to a complaint before Justice Stanley charging M. C. Miller and other Dora residents with assault. The case arises out of a fracas at the last school meeting when, it is charged, Miller assaulted Eastman, who was chairman. The case is resting until the return of District Attorney Liljevist from Portland.

Business Change

W. G. Cleghorn has bought a half interest in the Clark Bakery and will be associated with Mr. Clark, having charge of the grocery department, which will be made a greater feature of the business. Both are reliable and well liked gentlemen and they will undoubtedly increase the already good trade of the establishment.

Good Prospects at Mine

C. A. Gage returned last week from his mines in the Rock Creek country, on the South Fork. The mines are being developed on a large scale. A large flume has been established and a 2-inch nozzle hose will be put in shortly. Mr. Gage has no doubt about there being good pay dirt at the mines. Good wages can be obtained by working the gravel bars in a regular primitive fashion, but he intends to go into the business on a large scale and to install the latest devices to wrest the precious metal from the earth. He expects big results when the mine is worked in up-to-date fashion. He will return to the mines some time this week.

Horses in Hock

Mrs. L. M. Brown, who conducts the Vendome lodging house, commenced an action in replevin in the county court a few days ago, to recover possession of a pair of horses belonging to her and which were being held by F. B. Schow for a feed bill. Before action could get far in this case, the horses were attached on a writ issued by Justice Stanley in a suit commenced by Mrs. Shackelford, of whom Mrs. Brown bought the lodging house furniture, and Justice Stanley now holds the reins.

East Fork Items

Ed Abernethy has a picture of Lost Creek falls that he took and had enlarged to about 10x14 inches by Raphael of Marshfield, that is one of the clearest cut and distinct photographs that I have seen. It is a beautiful thing. He also showed me an album of his enlarged photographs of scenery on the East Fork. He surely has gathered in the grandeur of waterfall and mountain.

Mr. Long, of Lampa Creek, came in last week over the Coos Bay road with three pure bred Holstein cows, one of which is in the advance registry class.

Mr. Strong, of Bandon, came up to J. D. Laird's Friday to buy a horse.

J. D. Laird has bought a small auto truck for the Marshfield-Summer mail route.

Unexpected Landing

Quite a crowd from this place went to Riverton to attend the dance held there Saturday night. The gasoline boat Norma carried the crowd. At the close of the dance the fog was so thick on the river that it was impossible to see any distance ahead. However, the boat was headed up the river. About a quarter of a mile had been covered when there was a terrific jar which threw the passengers out of their seats and sprawling all over the boat. The boat keeled over until the water came up to the edge of the lower deck. A regular panic took place among the passengers. One girl was thoughtfully enough to faint. The panic subsided when it was discovered that the port side of the boat was high and dry on a nice green field. The passengers all stepped off onto the bank, while all the boatmen and v. junteers busied themselves with the task of launching the boat again which took three hours. The rest of the trip was completed without mishap as it was daylight by the time the journey was resumed.

Steamer Fifield Strikes Jetty and is Total Loss

The steamer Fifield was wrecked at the mouth of the river this morning while coming in at about 7 o'clock and will be a total loss.

From the accounts of people coming from Bandon, it appears that she was coming without the aid of a tug. The bar was moderately rough but not excessively so, and the Brooklyn had crossed in safely a short time before. Carried on the crest of a sea, the Fifield was swept out of her course and struck on the end of the south jetty with her bow toward the channel. She hung there until the seas swung her around toward the south, grinding on the rock of the jetty, and was then washed up on the south beach. The passengers and crew were taken off without difficulty, as she was close in, but there was no chance of saving the vessel. One man who came up states that a hole large enough for a man to walk through was plainly visible in her side as she lay.

The Fifield belonged to the Eureka fleet which includes also the Bandon and Speedwell. She was running between Bandon and San Francisco in the lumber trade. It is said that she was bringing quite a cargo of hay for the Bandon Warehouse Co. She carried a crew of about 17 or 18 men. Before noon J. P. Tupper phoned to the Baxter that she had broken in two and was going to pieces.

School Notes

The High school literary society gave the following Kipling program last Friday:

Sketch of Rudyard Kipling—Ada Downs; Reading, "Mandalay"—Earl Isensee; Reading, "Wee Willie Winkie"—Mildred Neely; Jewell Baumgartner, Bessie Johnson; Reading, "Recessional"—Elmer Neely.

Hoes, rakes and garden spades have been very much in evidence about the school house during the past week. The seventh graders are getting their gardens started. The seventh grade garden has become an institution and pupils in the lower grades all look forward to the time when they will be permitted to bring a hoe to school and raise radishes for the family.

Mary Levar and Merton Tyrrell, editor-in-chief and business manager respectively, of "The Laurel", together with their assistants, are hard at work getting affairs shaped up for the annual. Almost enough ads have been secured to assure the financial success of the scheme and some literary material has been turned in. In order to encourage the students with literary talent, a short story contest has been instituted.

German Club Organized

Miss Newell and the students of her German classes have organized a German Club. The purpose of the organization is to improve its members in the use of conversational German. Miss Newell uses the conversational method and this, together with the added interest of the club work, ought to produce in her children considerable facility in the use of the foreign tongue.

The first meeting was held at the Bellon's last Thursday evening with about twenty present including members of the faculty. The games, the refreshments and the conversation were all distinctly German and the Kaiser would no doubt have felt very much at home if he could have dropped in to spend a social hour. Everyone present had a delightful time and all are anxiously looking forward to the next meeting.

A Midnight Marauder

One night last week "Son" Skeels who rooms at the Wickham House, was startled from his slumbers at 2 a. m. by a scraping sound. Springing from his bed he put his head out of the window and listened intently. "There's no doubt about it, that's someone stealing coal," he thought as the scraping sound came distinctly to his ear. Scrape! scrape! scrape! thud! "That's what it is," muttered "Son," now very wide awake. Slipping quietly out of his room he summoned Nels Osmondson. Mrs. Wickham was aroused from her slumbers and Dr. Hopkins also appeared on the scene. They all stole softly out on the back porch. The scraping kept steadily on. "That thief has got some nerve," whispered Nels. The others all agreed with him. Then when a plan of action was being mapped out to capture the daring night marauder, he silently moved up the street pushing a small cart in front of him. In the cart, instead of coal was the rubbish from the street and the man propelling the cart was none other than the night watchman. The light fell full upon him as he passed beneath an electric light. The little group huddled together on the porch drew their scanty clothing around them and beat it silently back to their rooms. It is really hard to say whether the joke is on Jackson or Skeels. Its safe to say that "Son" wishes he was not such a light sleeper.

Plenty For All

One day last week a fisherman from this place wandered out to Cunningham creek in quest of a mess of "shiners." He had barely seated himself on the bank of the stream and baited his hook when he was startled by the crashing of brush right behind him. A curly haired boy of about seven, came bursting from the thicket, his face flushed with excitement. A look of disappointment crossed his face when he saw the guy from town at his "fishin' hole." But he brightened up again when room was made for him, and he was invited to try his luck. He carried a stub stick for a pole and a short line from the end of which dangled a very large rusty hook, adorned with a small angle worm. "I'm some fisherman," he confided, as he cast his hook into the stream. "I never miss a bite." At the same instant his pole described a skyward circle and a small 5-inch fish landed with a thud on the ground behind him. "You see, I told you so," cried the elated youngster as he sprang upon his catch and proceeded to choke the life out of it; whereat the other fellow began to take notice. During the next hour the small boy's pole described many a circle through the air but only four fish adorned his string. "I thought you got 'em every time," said the guy from town with a smile. "I always do, I'm just out of luck today. I got a mess for the whole family last night and I will tonight, and I'm going to stay until dark." "How many fish does it take to make your family a mess?" "Ten of 'em, that size," motioning to the small 4-inch trout fastened to his string. "How many are there in your family?" "Ten," "Why that's only one piece." "It's more than that; you see the baby can't eat fish." Whereupon the local fisherman pulled in his line and walked thoughtfully homeward.
