ORIGIN OF ORE DEPOSITS.

Deep Down Hot Springs Form Veins of Precious Metals.

Steamboat Springs, Nevada, has figured prominently in discussions of the origin of ore deposits. The waters of these springs contain the precious metals in minute quantities, and the slimes deposited by them contains several minerals that are common constituents of ores, as well as small quantities of many of the rarer metallic constituents of ore deposits, including gold and silver.

Such springs, therefore, suggest that many and perhaps most ore bearing veins have been formed by hot waters rising from great depths, which have brought their metal contents up in solution and deposited them in open spaces or fissures in the rocks through which the waters passed, the deposition of some ores being influenced by chemical reaction with the surrounding rock. Many ore deposits are undoubtedly formed in other ways, for some are unquestionably of sedimentary origin, and the metal content of some others has been carried down, redeposited and concentrated by rain water that descended into the earth's crust, but the "hydrothermal" origin—that is, their deposition from ascending hot water—of many of the more valuable ore deposits is indicated by the close relation observed at many places between mineral veins and eruptive rocks. Thermal waters are believed to be, in part at least, given off by slowly cooling and solidifying masses of igneous rock (magma) deep within the earth.—Geological Survey Bulletin.

THE MODERN TORPEDO.

How It Travels and Its Effect Upon Striking a Vessel.

The present day torpedo is a very different sort of weapon from that used half a century ago. It is shaped something like a cigar and is about twenty-three feet long and twenty-one inches in diameter. It weighs considerably more than a ton, and its construction costs from $5,000 to double that amount. It is made to travel in a certain direction in a fixed time and to explode when it strikes some solid object, such as a ship's bottom. A torpedo of the largest and most modern type will tear a gaping hole in the staunchest ship ever built. The nose or "explosive head" of a torpedo contains the deadly charge of high explosives, nitroglycerin and gunpowder being of most use.

When the torpedo strikes its target a tremendous detonation follows instantly, driving in both the outer and inner "skins" of a vessel. The hole it makes in a ship's bottom varies in size, but is seldom less than ten by thirty feet. The torpedo travels toward its victim at the rate, roughly, of about a thousand yards a minute. The distance and rate of speed here to be calculated to a nicety before the torpedo is discharged. It is kept to its destined course by perpendicular rudders in its tail.

The modern "dirigible" torpedo was first used in a naval war during the Chilean revolution of a quarter of a century ago.—New York World.

Forcing Flower Seeds.

It is a help to soak all hard seeds, such as sweet peas, nasturtiums, balsams, moonflower, etc., at least twelve hours and to die especially large seeds, such as canna and moonflower. This is done by rubbing the sharpest end (or any part away from the germ) over a file, just enough to have the white show. Filling must be done before soaking. Sweet peas may be soaked three or four days.

Another way to hurry coarse, slow to germinate seeds is to force between cotton flannel, wet thoroughly, place seeds between them and put in a warm place. Keep cloths moist all the time, and seeds will sprout in from one to three days. Transfer carefully to the ground with the root sprout down.—Farm and Home.

A Simple Matter.

"So you are in the market for an automobile?"

"Yes," said the man who likes to attract attention.

"Any particular make?"

"No. I merely want one that will make people turn around and stare at me when I pass."

"Oh, you don't need a special type for that. Get an ordinary car and exceed the speed limit."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Are you an optimist?"

"Yes. I think the world is getting better every day, although I must admit it looks like an exceedingly painful convalescence."—Washington Star.

Potent Argument for Oregon-Printed Books

The Salem Typographical Union has started a movement for the printing of the textbooks for Oregon schools by the State Printer and to our mind it is a very wise movement, especially when one considers that textbooks in Oregon are costing almost double, on the average, compared to the same books in California. In California the books are printed by the State and are in every way equal to the Eastern made book.

It is pointed out that almost the entire amount that Oregon spends for textbooks is paid to Eastern concerns, while if they were made in the State practically the entire cost would remain within the State—a very potent argument in itself.

It is asked that the various commercial bodies of the State take the matter up for discussion so that plans may be perfected before the Legislature again meets, when it can be taken up for prompt and vigorous action.—North Bend Daily Tide.

Oregon Outdoors

The latest book issued by the Southern Pacific is their annual book "Oregon Outdoors." This book is printed in three colors on a very expensive grade of enamel paper. The cover shows two actual photograph scenes in colors, one a fisherman and the other a bathing scene. The inside color plate is of Portland "The Rose City." The illustrations, which include over one hundred, are tastefully arranged in combinations of three with a light yellow border making a very handsome effect.

The text is well written and contains articles on the following points of interest in Oregon: Columbia River Highway, Willamette Valley, the Loop Trip, The State Capital, Tillamook County Beaches, Newport, Coos Bay country, Mount Jefferson country, McKenzie river and Three Sisters, Oregon Mineral Springs, Ashland Mineral Springs, Oregon's famous Spa, the Umpqua River Valley, the Marble Halls of Oregon, the Rogue River Valley, Crater Lake National Park and the Klamath country.

Portland and vicinity is very thoroughly described and the tourist is advised to make a long stay in this beautiful city. The Rose Festival is shown to be Portland's great annual event. The Columbia River Highway occupies a very prominent position and a lengthy article is devoted to it.

Every loyal Oregonian is urged to secure a copy of this book and send it to a friend in the East. Copies can be secured from any Southern Pacific Agent or by addressing Mr. John M. Scott, General Passenger Agent, Portland, Ore.

YOU'LL find a cherry howdy-do on top no matter how much of a stranger you are in the neck of the woods you drop into. For Prince Albert is right there—at the first place you pass that sells tobacco! The toppy red bag sells for a nickel and the toppy red tin for a dime; then there's the hand-some pound and half-pound tin humidor and the pound crystal glass humidor with handle—magnificent top that keeps the tobacco in such hand-up trim all the time!

in goodness and in pipe satisfaction is all we or its enthusiastic friends ever claimed for it!

It answers every smoke desire you or any other man ever had! It is so cool and fragrant and appealing to your smokeappetite that you will get chummy with it in a mighty short time!

Will you invest 5c or 10c to prove out our say-so on the national joy smoke?

How Could You Do Without It?

The fire in North Bend a week ago forced on that community for nearly two days the situation of being entirely without local telephone service.

There was a complete realization of the necessity of the telephone to the present business and social organization.

The whole movement of the town was slowed up. Our free messenger service only emphasized the great difference between talking over the wires and sending a boy on a bicycle.

After trying it for a day, nobody decided they could do without their telephone. On the contrary, they found that what was costing them from five to ten cents a day was saving them dollars in time and convenience.
