The Children's Play Corner

Throwing Light.
A guessing game played by any number of persons. Two of the players privately agree on some object and then converse about it, without naming it, trying to mystify the rest of the company. This is called "throwing light" on the subject chosen.

As soon as one of the others thinks he has guessed it, he joins in the conversation and aids in throwing light. If one of the original players thinks from what he says that the guess is not correct he says, "I challenge you," and the guess must be whispered in his ear. If it is incorrect the guesser must sit with a handkerchief over his face till he is able to "throw light" correctly.

The game goes on thus till only one of the players is left in the dark. It is allowable to choose two words of the same sound, but different meanings, and use either meaning at pleasure, so as to make "throwing light" all the more difficult.

Shadow Pictures.
When the light is lighted just before going to bed it is lots of fun to make shadow pictures on the wall. They seem almost like magic, because you can make pictures of bunnies, dogs, and all kinds of animals and things with nothing but your two hands and the evening lamp shining behind them. The lamp must be just as high up as the pictures are to be. It is best to have it set on a table opposite a large wall. By using handkerchiefs, pieces of paper and other simple things you can make a great many different kind of pictures. This is a fine game for children's parties, especially if a little prize is given for the best picture.

Boy Scouts.
Is the scout movement growing? Let the figures just issued by national headquarters speak. Last year the organization claimed a total of about 140,000 boys. The latest report of the authorities show a national enrollment of 192,769 active scouts. Then again, where there were 6,779 troops in existence twelve months ago, today there is a grand total of 9,513, with an increase of about 1,500 scoutmasters.

The Dew.
Each morn I wondered how it came
Agleam with rainbows just the same,
And then I knew and laughed most hearty;
The fairies had a bubble party.

Ed Mohler was in Coquille on business Friday of last week.

Jim Thrift came down from Powers the last of the week to spend a few days visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Thrift.

Mrs. Hudson has lived the greater part of her life in Coos county and Coquille has been her home for the last quarter of a century. Her many friends are anxiously hoping for her speedy recovery.

One of the groups at Farmers Week is composed of men and boys who won their round trip fares, prizes offered by the County Court of Coos county for the best 100 ears of corn raised in different districts. The county was divided into three districts: Myrtle Point, Coos Bay and Coquille. The winners were: Myrtle Point, H. A. Johnson and Edwin L. Weekly; Coos Bay, A. O. Rogers, Wm. Juistrom; Coquille, Cal Ray. No boy entered the contest in this district. This shows the County's effective method of inducing farmers to plant more corn.—Farmers Week News.

Several youngsters, ranging all the way from 8 to 15 years of age have been making things interesting for the farmers near Cedar Point for the past two weeks. Armed with shotguns they have been engaged in slinging shot at mud hens. It is reported that a cock has suffered more than the birds, however. One cow was punctured by several shot and several calves were induced into a mad gallop by the sting of light bird shot. As there is a law against boys below a certain age carrying fire arms it would behoove some of these lads to be a little careful or they will find Game Warden Thomas on their trail.

Soon Over His Cold

Everyone speaks well of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy after having used it. Mrs. George Lewis, Pittsfield, N. Y., has this to say regarding it: "Last winter my little boy, five years old, was sick with a cold for two or three weeks. I doctored him and used various cough medicines but nothing did him much good until I began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He then improved rapidly and in a few days was over his cold."
