ASHLAND, OR. THURSDAY, Mar. 21, 1889.

supposed to have been a mentorious measure, but the following remarks from the Lakeview Examiner shows appointing a committee at the last meeting of the council to investigate the water question and report at next meeting. The question is for the city to procure the right to furnish the citizens of Ashland with a supply of purwater for domestic purposes. It is not a scheme to bring water to the city, to fortunately Ashland creek, which flows through the town, is an everflowing stream fed by the inexhaustuble springs at the northern base of Ashland Butte. While we have at the present time a system of water works for fire protection in the main part of town, and it is being used for other purposes by general consent, there being plenty of water, anyhow; it is the intention of the city to secure some legal water rights of their own and go into the business of selling its citizens their supply of this necessity.

The scheme that is considered most feasible after the legal right to the water has been secured, is to tap Ashland creek at a point where the Porters aw mill used to stand, about three miles from town, and with two big pipes carry the water on the hillsides trend to contain the courts.

It is reported that the Union Pacific the listed the dispersation of the city to severally so man as Senator Dolph is:

The title is misleading, as through the people expected relief, and many actually believed that this bill would be compelled to disperse its fraud would be compelled to disperse its fraud would be compelled to disperse the part of the protection in the main part of town, and it is being used for other purposes by general consent, there being plenty of water, anyhow; it is the intention of the city to secure some legal water rights of their own and go into the business of selling its citizens their supply of this necessity.

From these main pipes to attach smaller ones of strong material with plenty of fall to the points where desired. This system of piping being several miles long it is estimated that the flow of water contained in the pipes during the mills) will nearly serve the town all day for all ordinary purposes. Some of the owners of the main water rights in Ashland creek have signified their willingness to donate to the city the flow of water willingness to donate to the city the flow of water the case has been tried in the story of the case has been tried in the story of the case has been tried in the courts.

There are a few newspapers in Oregon that have not been bought up by these successors to the wagon road companies, and the Examiner is one of them, the was beaten until insensible and may die. Bad feeling exists between some of the prominent land owners of the prominent land owner owners of the prominent land owner owners of the promine Besides this a large number of sharetheir water rights to the city. With all this encouragement thrown open so freely by public spirited citizens for the general benefit of the city and its people, it seems that the scheme is stepping off on the right foot and before long will be a living reality, and a step that not only ourselves but future generations may well feel proud of. The beauty of this enterprise is that while the city will have to be bonded for the money to bring it into practical use, after it gets in operation it will be a after it gets in operation it will be a paying enterprise, and as for feeling it directly the tax-payers will never know that it was done, while the system of water works will be such a brace to put up the real value of property that it is more than a paying investment for the critical citizens, were very flimsy when more than a paying investment for critical citizens, were very flimsy when Buckley, Higgins and Simon are prominent typical characters in the political history of these two states, who hold their positions on the strength of the cowardice of the people. Simeon holding the position of chairman of the republican state committee in 1886, defeated John B. Waldo for re-election to the supreme court, and placed in the office the democratic candidate, a piece of damnable treachery that has hardly seen its like before since the days of Judas Iscariot, and since this is known to every republican and not disputed by anybody, even Simon himself, yet he remains the leader of the party to-day and is seemingly more popular than ever. The new charter allows the council to bond the city to the extent of $50, 000 for a system of water works, after it has been submitted to a vote of the tax-payers. We nardly think that this sum will be needed at present the carry out this work. There is no opposition to the measure and if everything moves along smoothly we ought to be able to vote on the matter before long.

The republican papers report that Boss Buckley of San Francisco made at least $100,000 out of the late California legislature by corruption. They say nothing about Bill Higgins, though, who is as dirty a politician as Chris Buckley and has ass strong a hold on the throat of the promblican was asserted as the council to bond the extent of $50, 000 for a system of water works, after it has been submitted to a vote of the carried goods of Rev.
