VALLEY RECORD.

ASHLAND, OR., THURSDAY, NOV. 21, 1889

Congressman Morrow thinks Reed of Maine will be elected Speaker.

In becoming a nun, Miss Kate Drexel indicates a disposition to give her fortune or $6,000,000 to the Catholic church.

On admission day the Helena Journal was printed in red ink, whereat its democratic rival, the Independent, should have laid claim to "first blood."

A Republic has been proclaimed in Brazil, a president chosen and a government formed. Bully for Brazil and, as an Irishman might say, Dam Pedro, the emperor.—[Welcome.

P. T. Barnum, the veteran showman, is astonishing the people of England by his special cars, mammoth advertising schemes, and wonderful posters. He is being caricatured by "Vanity Fair."

In Iowa prohibition depends solely on statute. It is not fixed in the constition. Consequently the legislature is expected to repeal the prohibitory law this winter and enact a high-license law in its stead.

Private Dalzell has been heard from on the electioffs. He says that the soldiers were mad as wet hens about the Tanner business. They sulked in their tents. That defeated us. The soldiers did it all. It was a rebuke to the administration for turning Tanner out and reversing his liberal policy. They will double this defeat next year unless that surplus is shoveled out.

The daily newspaper venture for which Postmaster C. W. Roby has been making numerous visits to San Francisco of late will be launched at Portland this week, it is said. It will be the size of the old Standard, and will be democratic in politics with a mugwump as editor. The new enterprise should be patronized, as it will aid materially in keeping the Oregonian from completely engineering the public sentiment of Oregon and Washington.

Senator Sanford has sold the filly Sunol to Robert Bonner, of New York. The price paid is not known, but it was about $110,000. Mr. Bonner now owns Maud S. and Sunol, two of the fastest trotters in the world. Sunol has a three-year-old record of 2:10½ and Stanford expects that she will trot in 2:04 next year. Senator Hearst has authorized his agent to offer Senator Stanford $250,000 for Sunol, if the bargain is not closed with Bonner. Senator Hearst doesn't want the mare taken from California, and if necessary he will pay $500,000.

The steamer Baelacna has arrived from the Arctic. October 6th, while the steamer was to the west or Point Barrow, she had several boats out. One of them was in charge of Second Mate Dugan. A whale was sighted and chase was given, Dugan's boat being in the lead. A harpoon was thrown and the monster was hooked. The boat was close upon him, and as he lashed out with his tail one of his flukes struck a whaler named Oliver Quintell, knocking him into the water and killing him instantly. The boat narrowly escaped being capsized. Quintell was a young man and a native of Australia.

The order of Patrons of Husbandry seem to be inflamed with new zeal in the State of Michigan, and it is said that not less than seventy-five thousand farmers have joined the order in that State since last May. The number is increasing every week, and the order bids fair to become the controlling power in the politics of Michigan. The Patrons claim to have been forced into being monopolies and trusts, and they propose to organize a combination that will strike terror to the hearts of their enemies. As the "Campaign of Education" is making its way irresistibly among the farmers, we may expect Michigan to go Democratic in another year or two.—[E. O.

Recent accounts published of gold discoveries in the Transvaal Republic of South Africa go far to confirm the theory that the gold mines yet to be explored in South Africa may be as productive as those were in California or Australia. One town has sprung up, Johannesburg, on the edge of the gold fields, that now contains 40,000 inhabitants. The yield in six months of the present year of these mines has been $4,000,000. These mines are several hundred miles beyond the famous diamond mines of Kimberly. The latter mines are already connected with the seacoast by railroad. Miners are now flocking to the gold mines in the Transvaal Republic in great numbers.

This is the manner in which our sturdy mountaineers deal out bits of information to dwellers in the city by the sea, as published in the San Francisco Examiner: You may not know, nevertheless it is a fact, says William Meridith of the McCloud river, that there are several small tribes of Indians who have their homes near Mount Shasta still hunt altogether with bows and arrows. These Indians are the Wintoons, the Modocs, and the Yrekas. I think there are one or two other tribes, also. They have always preferred the arrow to the rifle, because it is noiseless, and they are so unerring in aim that they shoot just as well as an expert white man with a rifle. Their arrow tips are flakes of obsidian obtained from the north side of Mount Shasta. This obsidian is high up and hard to get, and consequently a couple of pounds of it are worth $20 or $30. In the old days on this coast, before iron could be got, the Indians chipped off this obsidian in an artful way, by the aid of the end of a split deer horn, which was driven against and partly into it by striking the horn with a stone. The deer horn was convex on one side and slightly concave on the other, and in this way they managed to chip off a piece of right shape, and pointed at the end, for an arrow-head. These rough flakes of obsidian, when not immediately needed, would be buried in the ground. Occasionally a peck measure of them are yet found, the place of burial having been lost. The Indians now split the obsidian with pieces of telegraph wire fitted into the deer horn.

Samuel Webb leaves the valley this week with some 1500 head of sheep for Weeb Bros. of Shasta valley.

H. Root has sold two acres (the Ritter place) to Mr. Townsend, father of Wm. Townsend, for $700.

C. H. Gillette is in from his Dead Indian ranch, where he has been all summer.

Ft. Klamath's Situation.—A Mysterious Disappearance.

Linkville, Nov. 13.—The abandonment of Fort Klamath is still an engrossing topic of conversation. One man may be found who is sanguine that the post will be retained, while another man, equally well informed, will give it as his opinion that the fort will be abandoned. Your correspondent had a short conversation with Sikes Worden, the post trader, on the question. Mr. Worden said: "I think the fort will be abandoned. General Miles' recommendations have been overruled by the secretary of war, and the original intention of the abandonment of the post will no doubt be carried out. The situation is this: There are two military posts, Forts Bidwell and Klamath, not a great distance apart, one in Northern California, the other in Southern Oregon. One of these is manifestly not needed, we, the people of Oregon, of course, think Bidwell that useless post, while Californians think Klamath the fort that should be abandoned. Fearing that if Fort Klamath was retained, Bidwell would be abandoned, California people circulated an immense petition, praying for the retention of Fort Bidwell and secured the good offices of Senator Stanford to push their claims and in all probability have succeeded, as they have always proved too heavy for Oregonians.

"In the event of the abandonment of Klamath, will the land belonging to the military reserve be sold?"

"No, the land is part of the Indian reservation, and was set apart for military use and will revert to the Interior department when the post is removed. The Indian agency, proper, will then be removed to the present site of Fort Klamath, as it is a more eligible situation."

The suit of Paul vs. Land, for dissolution of partnership, calls to mind the mysterious disappearance of Louis Land, one of the parties in the suit, in the fall of 1887.

Land was one of the early settlers of Klamath and had accumulated considerable property in stock and real estate. He was unmarried when he came here, but afterward married a woman who had been divorced from her husband. In the latter part of October, 1887, he disappeared and has never been heard from since. At the same time, a quack doctor, named Devis, also disappeared. Devis was afterward seen on the line of the railroad, but Land has never been heard from. His widow made no effort to learn his whereabouts, and the general opinion is that he has been foully dealt with. He and Devis had been accused of cattle stealing, and it was thought at the time that he had fled to avoid arrest, but the fact that he had never returned leads many to think that he was murdered for his money and his body concealed in some of the unfrequented canyons of the mountains between here and the railroad.

VANITY RUN MAD.

The following extract from the Shasta County Democrat has the true ring, and the truth is told in plain and forcible language:

C. P. Huntington, the Southern Pacific railroad magnate, has just bought a title for $2,000,000, which he has conferred upon his daughter. A worthless profligate called Hatzfeldt goes with it to make the transfer legal. Such a purchase by a member of a syndicate which owes the United States government many millions of dollars and declines to pay on the plea of poverty, shows that Mr. Huntington is afflicted with an abnormal development of gall and gives the lie direct to the oft-repeated assertions that the syndicate cannot pay the Government its just dues. It is more, it is adding insult to injury. He robs the people by exorbitant charges, swindles them out of their land by collusion with Government surveyors, defrauds the Government out of the interest on money advanced to build the road, and then, to show his contempt for the people he has wronged, he flaunts in their faces a bauble, which is the symbol of centuries of oppression, tyranny and injustice, and to overthrow which his own ancestors shed their blood and risked their lives in the Revolution. Mr. Huntington is out of place in a Republic. Plain American citizens are not good enough to come in close contact with him. He must needs have a title somewhere in his family. It may be tarnished with profligacy, vice and all the social sins of the calendar, but it distinguishes the wearer from the common herd, and men of Mr. Huntington's defective moral perceptions ask no more.

On the first page of this issue is some of the evidence of apostate mormons on the question whether a man can be a good citizen and a Mormon at the same time. A few more excerps are herewith appended. Comment is unnecessary:

In substantiation of the doctrine of blood atonement, the following extracts from a sermon by Brigham Young, were introduced: "I have known a great many men who have left this church, for whom there is no chance whatever for exaltation, but if their blood had been spilled it would have been better for them. Loving our neighbors as ourselves means helping them if they need help, and if they need salvation and it is necessary to spill their blood on the earth in order that they may be saved, spill it; that is the way to love mankind. I have seen scores and hundreds of people for whom there would have been chances in the last resurrection if their blood had been spilled on the ground as smoking incense to the Almighty."

The apostate Mormon, Joseph Silver, who has been through the rites in the Endowment house, described the apparel worn by all good Mormons. It consists of a close fitting undergarment of white cotton cloth, fastened on with strings. There is a slit across the heart, another across the abdomen and one on each knee. That across the heart is to remind the wearer that if he divulges any of the oaths or secrets, or apostatizes, he is to have his heart cut out, and the one across the abdomen that he will be disemboweled in the same event. Applicants for endowment honors are also annointed with oil, and Levi Axtell, another apostate, and others swore that when the arm was oiled a prayer was uttered to the effect that the arm should be made strong, so that it might strike down anyone who was an enemy to the church.

Edward J. Hill, of the New York lumber exchange, who has been up Rogue river, inspecting the timber bell, for two weeks past, was on Saturday's train for Southern California. J N Phillips interviewed him, and says that Mr. Hill is so well pleased with the outlook that he has authorized him to purchase the land from locators.

J. D. Williams, clerk of the Soda Springs school district, and Wm. Grow were down to Jacksonville yesterday to get school money. Miss Henrietta Moore commenced the first school in the new house, located between the places of W. H. Shepherd and P. Powell, last Monday.

Linkville Stage Robbery.

One of the Western Stage Co's stages coming from Linkville to the railroad at Ager, was robbed about daylight Tuesday morning fifteen miles from Ager, near the Shovel Creek springs, by a lone highwayman. Charley Slade was driving, and politilely conducted himself as ordered by the robber's shot gun. The robber secured between $300 and $400. It is believed that he is the same man who robbed the Roseburg stage one day last week (an account of which is given on first page of this issue), as he was reported to have stopped at Grant's Pass Friday night. These numerous one-man robberies around here look like the work of "Black Bark," who, it is reported, has returned to the Coast again.

Normal School Items.

The Normal Student for November is out and contains a lot of interesting reading matter. Among the table of contents are "A Brief History of our School," by Miss Lydia McCall; "Young Men—an Invective," by Miss Jennie Oliver; "Home, Sweet Home," by J. W. Rees; "Muscular Movement," by Prof. C. F. Nesse; "A Model Lesson," by Miss Amanda Goodyear, and numerous other interesting articles by the Editor and others. Among the local items not already published in the RECORD are the following:

Misses Maude Berry and Lillie Newman are learning the typographic art in the Student office as also are Geo. L. Helms and Edward Sutton.

Miss Tolman's Art Class has begun its winter's work. It meets every Saturday at the Normal building.

Miss Nellie Sackett received the prize in Prof. Nesse's evening class in penmanship.

Miss Henrietta Moore, '89, has just finished a second successful term in Farlow district.

Chas. D. Griffiths, '89, is teaching a very successful term of school in Table Rock district We expect him at the Normal as soon as his term closes.

Apples are selling for a dollar and a quarter a box in Portland, at wholesale; and this is Oregon, the "land of big red apples." The people of the Willamette valley will probably now begin to take care of their orchards. A good orchard, well taken care of, will be a very good substitute for a gold mine hereafter —[Salem Statesman. An Ashland fruit shipper is paying $1.25 and $1.50 per box for selected Baldwins and $1.50 for selected Spitzenburgs. Add the freight to San Francisco or Portland on these and they will come pretty high.
