One of the most sensational sensations which has ever occurred in our midst is the reported flight, for unexplained reasons of the real estate manager of the town of Mott, J. O. Welch. If the reports are true, they show the deep scheming nature of the individual, which is scarcely surpassed by the best experts of the trade on the Pacific coast. The story, as it runs, is this: For some time perfect quiet and full satisfaction have not reigned between J. O. Welch and H. J. Bacon, one of his partners, and when a short time since J. O. Welch returned from a trip below, Mr. Bacon informed him that he was about to dispose of all his interest in goods, wares or lands. Mr. Welch asked him, "What land," and fully on being informed by Mr. Bacon, he clearly remarked, "You don't own one of those lands; you deeded the whole of them to me over two years ago." This information rather staggered Mr. Bacon, but when he came to search the records of the county, sure enough, there he found a record of a deed properly acknowledged by himself before John Hitch as notary public. The deed itself could not be found. Mr. Bacon was thunderstruck. John Hitch, although the notary before whom the deed was acknowledged, knew nothing of the transaction. His records were delivered to a successor; they are not retained, and Welch himself is missing. He has evidently been frustrated in his plans and leaves his scheme uncompleted.

On a recent visit to Iowa, K. Dalton, of Laura, Russell county, Kansas, called at the laboratory of Chamberlain & Co., Des Moines, to show them his six-year-old boy, whose life had been saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He had a very severe attack of croup. Mr. Dalton is certain that it saved the boy's life and is indubitably in the possession of the remedy. He says it has an excellent reputation in his family. It has been used since it was first introduced, and never without it in their homes. For sale by Chittwood Bros.

Miller, representative; F. Colvig, county judge; U. O. Biglow, commissioner; J. P. O'Connell, assessor; W. S. H. Sherer, treasurer; E. D. Harnon, assessor; C. T. Massie, school superintendent; C. T. Haves, assessor; H. W. Colvig, chairman man county convention. The people of this county are anxious to see Hon. H. B. Miller nominated for congress.

The Klamath county republican convention nominations are as follows: County judges, J. S. Orr; clerk, Al Leavitt; county commissioner, Daniel Croncille; sheriff, E. W. Gowan; treasurer, W. E. Howe; assessor, G. B. Harnon; school superintendent, Jesse G. Walker; surveyor, W. S. Simpson; coroner, no nomination; delegates to the state convention, O. C. Applegate, C. S. Moore and W. C. H. It was moved to instruct the delegates to Harnon, and the motion was amended to let them go unopposed. The amendment was carried. The nomination for joint representative was left to the Lake county convention. It did not nominate a candidate to be chosen by the county central convention. The ticket as a whole is considered strong.

One of the most sensational sensations which has ever occurred in our midst is the reported flight, for unexplained reasons of the real estate manager of the town of Mott, J. O. Welch. If the reports are true, they show the deep scheming nature of the individual, which is scarcely surpassed by the best experts of the trade on the Pacific coast. The story, as it runs, is this: For some time perfect quiet and full satisfaction have not reigned between J. O. Welch and H. J. Bacon, one of his partners, and when a short time since J. O. Welch returned from a trip below, Mr. Bacon informed him that he was about to dispose of all his interest in goods, wares or lands. Mr. Welch asked him, "What land," and fully on being informed by Mr. Bacon, he
