

VALLEY RECORD

ASHLAND, OREGON, TUESDAY, JUNE 29, 1909

'Boss' Buckley of San Francisco was married Sunday at a Boston Catholic church to Miss Annie Hurley.

'Men whose opinions have the weakest foundations are least open to conviction. Swampy land is not liable to earthquakes.'

Portland will celebrate the Fourth of July. The Mercury bespeaks a very liberal contribution from the Hon. Dennis P. Thompson.

The farmer who thinks he will be benefited by the McKinley bill wants the public to understand that the fools are not all dead yet.—Ex.

Gen. E. L. Applegate of Klamath Agency, speaking of the chopped up condition of Oregon politics this year, remarked: "Both parties were beaten."

A Maine young woman who was asked the place of her nativity, replied that she wasn't born anywhere in particular, as she was the daughter of a Methodist minister.

California modestly announces that she needs ten acres for her display at the world's fair. At this rate of demand the lake front site committee in Chicago will have to fill up Lake Michigan half-way to the straits of Mackinac.

The established church of England is unquestionably in danger. Speaking at the annual meeting of the church defense institution, Lord Selborne confessed that disestablishment had come "within the range of practical politics."

The total amount raised for the Coos Bay railroad at Marshfield for this week is $49,930; Coquille City, $40,500; at Myrtle Point, $11,377; Bandon, $12,000, making a grand total of $73,807. There is no question, says the Coos Bay News, but what the necessary bonds of $75,000 will be raised before the end of the week, and the work of grading the roadbed will be commenced immediately.

The committee on temperance of the Reformed Presbyterian synod the other day made a report strongly censuring Vice-President Morton for permitting the sale of liquor in his new hotel, and President Harrison for serving wine on the table at state dinners.

The vice-president has become pretty well handicapped to this sort of thing; but it must be a novel sensation to the Presbyterian Sunday school superintendent from Indianapolis to be held up by a temperance committee as a horrid example of alcoholic excess.—Oregonian.

Congressman Cutcheon, a Republican and a distinguished veteran of Michigan, confesses that as a class the old soldiers are better off than any other class in the community, and the Milwaukee Sentinel (Rep.) bears testimony that "a large number of the veterans are men who would not be classed as needy; that is, they are men as fortunately situated with respect to pecuniary matters as the average of the community." Of course it must be so. The veterans who have survived to this hour in good health must be men who self-support without a service pension.—(Oregonian (Rep.))

New York, June 15.—The Times' Pittsburg special says rumors are in circulation that Senator Quay has a surprise in store for the republican convention; that he intends to drop Delamater as a candidate for Governor and have Postmaster General Wanamaker nominated. How true the rumors are nobody can say. It is certain, however, that the two are in close alliance and that the practicability of nominating Wanamaker has been discussed. Wanamaker's friends argue that his large business interests would secure him the support of the business men, his prominence in church work would bring the religious element to his support, while his position as postmaster general would insure him the support of all postmasters and other federal officers. It is shown that he has his agents throughout the state gathering information regarding the coming contest, and the inference is drawn by knowing ones that he will be trotted out as a dark and successful horse before the convention.

The republican press has gone into the wholesale claiming business. Besides claiming that Herrmann's big majority was an endorsement of the McKinley tariff, when the fact is that thousands of democrats voted for Blaine for non-political reasons, the following paragraph from an esteemed contemporary, the Roseburg Plaindealer, sounds a little comical:

Hurray for Jackson county! That erstwhile banner county of democracy has gone republican almost solidly. Truly the world were wiser.

The democratic majorities on the seven different offices was as follows: 142, 149, 217, 221, 302, 321, 339. This does not seem a just case for republican jubilation. The county offices were placed temporarily in the hands of the republicans on the basis of disaffection, and the prospects for doing the same next time are considered decidedly slim.

A son of Judge Lorenzo Sawyer has been stalling and ponding a man much smaller than himself, in consequence of a quarrel about half a dollar or so. As the ruffian's father is a judge of the Neade-protecting gang, no doubt he will protect his son in murdering anybody he may like to murder. If he were a poor man he would at this moment be in prison on a charge of assault to murder or else under heavy bail. Being the son of the great Judge Lorenzo Sawyer, he has not even been arrested. The United States courts in this city are a safe refuge for murderers. Young Sawyer can plead that he is under the exclusive jurisdiction of the United States, and then his father will let him out on bail, and Judge Stephen J. Field will make him a present of a gold watch and chain.—(S. F. Star.)

The vote thrown in Oregon two weeks ago seems to have been a little over 71,000. The gain is about 10,000 in two years, a larger gain than ever before known in that length of time.

The Humfrey started on the 4th with his mutton sheep, or Neiraks. Mr. Humfrey has been in Harney county and vicinity for about two months, and has bought in that time 13,500 mutton sheep.—(Burns Herald.)

The stock inspector of Crook county has inspected the sheep in the northern part of the county, and reports the loss there to be $1,000, out of a little more than 100,000 head.—(Burns Herald.)

They Don't Quit Commenting.

East Oregon Herald, June 24th. E. J. Koller, editor of the Ashland Herald, has been rebuffed by the supreme court from paying a fine of $50 and serving fifteen days in the county jail for criticizing the acts of the circuit court over which Judge Webster presided.

We venture to say that the country would be getting rather despotically and tyrannical when the press would be deprived of the right to criticize, or call the attention of the public to any judicial act it believed to be wrong.

He Was Missed. Salem Statesman (Rep.). It is fortunate for Col. John P. Irish, of San Francisco, that he left out of Oregon politics during the last canvass. Herrmann's increased majority would have utterly ruined the colored politician, and the consequences might have been fatal to him.

The apparent result of his visit two years ago, when he stumped the state in the interests of democracy and free trade, was a majority of 7407 for Herrmann and protection. What it would have been this time can only be conjectured. However, the gallant colonel's eloquent addresses imparted a pleasant flavor to the canvass, and were missed all the same.

COL. ROBERT A. MILLER. (Portland World). Though Col. Robert A. Miller has been defeated, the democracy has just cause to feel proud of her young standard-bearer.

He made a most active and earnest canvass of the state, and did all in his power to win success. This he did in the face of a known opposition majority, and against an opponent from three to four thousand votes stronger than his party. Yet Col. Miller never lost faith in the justice of his cause, and went into the fight to do the best he could under adverse circumstances. He did his duty nobly, and though defeated, the democratic party of Oregon has good reason to be justly proud in her young candidate for congress.

A TARIFF POEM. He sat in his door at noonday, lonely and gloomy and sad; brooding over the price of his corn crop and figuring how much he had. He had worked from early spring time, early and late and hard, and he was counting his assets and figuring out his reward. He figured that it took two acres to lay his two boys new boots, and ten acres more on top of this to buy them out with new ones. He had a protected dress coat, ten bushels more, while five acres went in a solid lump for the carpet on the floor.

His taxes and his grocery bill absorbed his crop, and he had no interest in his farm mortgage took all his fattest hounds. The shingles on his cowshed and the timber for his barn had eaten up his best steers and the balance of his corn. So he sat in his door at noonday, lonely and gloomy and sore, as he figured up his wealth a little less than it was the year before. "By gum, they're getting me protected, but I know there's something wrong; I've been deceived and gulled and hoodwinked by this high protection song. They told of rebellious traitors, and held up the bloody rag, and I followed along like a pumpkin, and now I see nothing but the lag. But from this time on I'll investigate, and get to the bottom of facts, and then at least the tariff will be a tax.—(Kingman, Kan. Democrat.)

The respectable Democrats of San Francisco are preparing a revolt against the rule of Boss Buckley.

No man knows what he can do till he tries. A Southern farmer who had got away with a pint and a half of whiskey many a time succeeded in gulping down a quart the other day. His wild is taking out letters of administration.

July 1st has been selected as the day for unveiling the statue of Indiana's favorite son, Thos. A. Hendricks. The occasion is proper, will be entirely free from partisan demonstrations. Nevertheless the heart of many a Hoosier democrat will quicken its beats, as Senator Turpie tells of the virtues and good deeds of the greatest democrat that has come out of the West since the days of Douglass.

General John M. Palmer, who is the democratic aspirant for the United States Senatorship in Illinois, says that state can be carried by democrats next fall if the campaign is vigorously conducted. He regards the paramount issues of the hour as essentially economic. What the country demands, General Palmer says, is a reasonable economy in place of extravagance in public expenditures; a reduction of the revenues, which when excessive, irretrievably tend to prodigality; a reduction of tariff taxes to a revenue basis, which means a radical departure from the policy of legislation for the enrichment of classes out of the earnings of the millions.

Senator Carlisle is the latest democratic statesman to 'ive the Farmers' Alliance some good advice. In reply to a letter from a gentleman in Alabama asking his views of the bill, which has been reported adversely by the house committee on ways and means to provide for the establishment of sub-treasuries for the storage of agricultural products, Mr. Carlisle says: "The farmers have been taxed so long for the benefit of their classes and have seen so much legislation for the aggrandizement of corporations and syndicates that they are exhausted, and finding it impossible, for the time being at least, to abolish the system which has oppressed and despoiled the republicans, they are naturally inclined to find it impossible, for the time being at least, to reverse the policy, which they have heretofore denounced as unjust and ruinous shall be applied to them, or rather that they, for no scheme has yet been suggested that will operate alike on all farmers. But no evil can be corrected, no wrong can be righted by increasing its magnitude and extending the scope of its operation. There is but one effectual remedy for the evil which undoubtedly exists, and that is to reverse the policy which produced it."

The Alta thinks it knows and says that Prince Albert, Victor, second husband of the Princess of Wales, when at school was often heard to and would write to his grandmother for interest. The old lady would sometimes send money, but often a letter of good advice. These letters the Prince would read and put up at attention among his classmates, knowing that down to the highest bidder for the Queen's autograph. In this way the young royal always got money out of his granny.

Coos Bay and Coquille Rivers. San Francisco, June 13.—Information was received to-day that Elijah Smith first associate classmate, known king them of a standard gauge railroad to connect Coos Bay with the Coquille river, in the Coquille river valley, which has heretofore been partially isolated because of the difficulty of crossing the bar at the mouth of the river, and by means of this railroad to secure connection with the weekly steamship service to San Francisco. The ultimate destination of this road at the eastern and western ends has not been definitely determined.
