VALLEY RECORD.

Lost Cabin Mine.

Baker City Democrat. Mr. A. Looney, of Boise City, the other day received a letter from his brother at Ft. Klamath, Or., stating that it was believed there was the old original Lost Cabin had been discovered at a point called Diamond Peak, thirty or forty miles distant. Three hundred men had rushed in, and more going, including nearly all the people in Klamath and Lincolnville. Rich gold quartz had been found in several places taken up. It was supposed that the Lost Cabin had at last been discovered. The remains of two men who had been burned had been found. Also pieces of pack saddles, shoe boxes, and a quarter of a mile of a mining ditch.

Rich Point Mines at Merlin.

Grant's Pass Courier, July 16. The point mines of Louis McAllister are shortly to be developed in a manner commensurate with their importance. Wm. McAllister, a brother from Tacoma, a gentleman of ample means, has taken hold of the enterprise and will put in a mine costing $15,000 or $20,000 for the purpose of preparing those many-colored pigments for market. Experts claim that there never was such a variety of colors discovered in a point mine before, there being no less than 500 individual tints. These mines are situated nine miles west of Grants Pass and about six miles from Merlin, and when in operation they will be a big thing for the entire community as instead of importing pigments from out of the Northwest will be able to produce them here. Mr. McAllister was offered $25,000 for a fourth interest in these valuable mineral deposits. The following frank statement from J. E. Hare, of Trenton, Texas, will be of interest to many of our citizens. "My little boy was very bad off for two months. I used fine string of walleyed pike when I found myself with my two ponies and cart between two fires. The wind was blowing a hurricane, and I thought my time had come. I was lying in bed, back to the lake, as escape that way was cut off. My only chance was to get to the wide creek, but in order to reach it I would have to drive the horse under a tree. The distance of 100 yards I did not have much time to debate the matter, and was soon dashing through the flames, applying the whip freely to the ponies. "Talker most horses they did not hesitate when the burning underbrush was reached, but dashed madly on. I held my handkerchief over my mouth and nostrils, not daring to inhale the smoke and heat. Finally the smoke cleared away and the ponies plunged into the stream, and as I was minus eyebrows, hair and whiskers, and my clothing being on fire, I, too, threw myself into the water. For withered up chap, with one foot in a brace, stare too long. You never should like it by the way the pink deep in her cheeks and the white teeth shined in the full red lower lip. Finally she looked up at him, with that grave, steady light in her eyes, as only a good woman can look when she doesn't want any nonsense. That kind of a rebuke usually makes a man so ashamed of himself he can't look himself in the face for a week. But the individual returned the look with a bold, insulting glance, before which the steady eyes faltered and fell and the red flamed up in her cheeks. Feeling his eyes still upon her, suddenly she looked up again at the man's face, which was fairly good to see, but coolly over her extremities, as much as to say: "You poor wretch, who are you, with your miserable collection of manhood, to think a woman should flirt with you? What a mistake you are, anyway!" Well, the fellow was pretty lame, but all Mercury, with his winged sandals, couldn't have hustled out of that car any quicker than he did, and at the first station sneaked off the platform. And the girl—well, in a minute she was sitting up very straight, with lips that looked as if they wanted to quiver and bright, shining eyes, and on the corners in her lap were two round, wet spots. Girls are the queerest creatures in the world, anyway. It was a wicked thing, of course, but she had to do it. And the
