Reciprocity doesn't seem to be crowding Great Britain out of the Brazilian market. The imports from England for the first four months of 1891 show a general increase of cotton goods from $3,700,000 in 1890 to $7,600,000 in 1891, with a decided increase in linen and woolen stuffs and railroad material. Reciprocity doesn't decrease the selling price of American goods or increase the price of British wares. The cheapest vender takes the market. There is no sentiment in trade. Pittsburg Post.
