The case of Catalina S. Ames against the city of San Diego has just been decided in the superior court, quieting the title to certain property in Old Town. The question at issue was whether a municipal corporation could be deprived of its title by five years' adverse possession, or, in other words, whether the statute of limitations runs against a city. The property has been in posses-sion of Mrs. Ames or her family since the time when the United States acquired California, but the title from Mexico had never been confirmed by the United States court of claims, as provided by law, and the suit was brought to secure to Mrs. Ames a title of record, which was given in the decision ren-

He worked in his grandfather's office out of school hours and was a constant reader of newspapers. At the beginning of the misunderstanding with Chile, being intensely interested in the history of the country, he watched the progress of the difficulty with the closest attention. The comments of the English papers aroused his patriotism and he determined to write to the Times, resenting the criticisms of the English press.
