Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 21, 1892. The entertainment given by the Chicago Lady Quartette this evening was by far the best of that character that I ever heard, and the audience was highly pleased. Yours, D. N. LEWIS. Eagle Point. April 16, 1894

Last Saturday night the members of the g.o. p met at the school house (the third meeting) and perfected the organization by electing Dr. Stanfield president, A. J Dalev vice-president, J. A. Jones secretary, and b. B. Hubbard treasurer. There were four or five democrats present and the pub's were apparently afraid to make a move for fear the horrid traitors would capture the meeting, and the democrats were afraid to make a move toward organizing a club for fear the pub's would place some of their men in office, but everything went off smoothly and that irrepressible, logical and gifted orator, Guss Newbury, was on hand to make a speech. (I was not able to be there, but his friends say that his speech was not as long as he is himself.) He opened by telling the audience that the rewas not as long as he is himself.) He opened by telling the audience (hat the re-publican party freed the slaves and conse-quently they should be kept in power; that he did not expect to make a political speech and—and—well—he was not much of a politician, etc., and closed. A good re-publican friend of his said he thought that he down or thought that he was out looking to see his chances to get the office of school superintendent, but others say that he belongs to that ring and they are afraid that if he is elected he might be influenced by so we member of the ring to the detriment of some of the rural dis-tricts-we will wait and see. As an evidence of the interest some of the members of the g. . p. take in the matter I will re-mark that Mr. Lungate and Chris. Beal, of Mt. Pitt precinct, came out too attend a meeting of the club,
