All that is is now divided into force and matter, mutually acting upon each other. The one central or universal energy manifests itself in different ways under different conditions. Thus one universal ether, pervading all things. Through vibrations, slow or rapid, of this ether the universal energy acts. It is likely that the science of vibrations will receive greater attention in the immediate future than it has ever done. The vibrations of a universal ether seem to explain many things. The question the scientists cannot an-
