

VOL. VII. ASHLAND, JACKSON COUNTY, OREGON, THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1895. NO. 46.

How's Your Liver? Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy liver. When the liver is torpid the bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmonds Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy. NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED. As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc. I hardly ever see anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Liver.

JACKSONVILLE, MARCH 28.—SAM LAWRENCE.

of Galia creek, recently discovered a ledge about half a mile from the mouth of Watson ledge, from which the rich discovery was reported a short time since. The Lawrence discovery is in the direction of the Galia ledge, and is believed to be an extension of it. Seven tons of the late discovery were taken to the Lindsey stamp mill, on Sardinia creek, and crushed. They yielded 4800 lbs. of interest is manifested in this handsome working test, and development work will be prosecuted with all possible vigor on the ledge.

on the Kuhl and Watson ledge, with the most satisfactory results. The company has 100 tons of rock on the dump, and estimates from actual working tests with an arrastra, that it will average 500 per ton. Tim Dungan, of this place, has just uncovered two veins, located four miles from Jacksonville, in the divide between Jackson and Galia creeks, running parallel with each other, with only a thin partition between them, from which he has obtained the most interesting prospects. Seven pounds of the ore reduced in a hand mortar weighed at the bank $11. He will commence to develop the ledge at once, and other locations on extensions will also test their holdings.

More than usual interest is being taken in the mining industry this year, and a larger number of men are prospecting than ever before. Many new discoveries will no doubt be made.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral. SAVED HIS LIFE.

So says Mr. T. M. Reed, a highly-respected Merchant of Middletown, Ill., of a Young Man who was supposed to be in Consumption.

"One of my customers, some years ago, had a son who had all the symptoms of consumption. The usual medicines afforded him no relief, and he steadily failed until he was unable to leave his bed. His mother applied to me for some remedy and I recommended Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The young man took it according to directions, and soon began to improve until he became well and strong."—T. M. REED, Middletown, Ill.

"Some time ago, I caught a severe cold, my throat and lungs were badly inflamed, and I had a terrible cough. It was supposed that I was a victim of consumption, and my friends had little hope of recovery. But I bought a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, took it, and was entirely cured. No doubt, it saved my life."—J. JONES, Emerts Cove, Tenn.

A MODOC WAR INCIDENT.

Death of Edward Fox, who secured an interview with Capt. Jack for the N. Y. Herald.

Edward Fox, who will be remembered by the old-timers of Klamath county as the correspondent of the New York Herald during the Modoc war, was drowned on March 4th in the Swan river, Perth, West Australia.

The name of Edward Fox became well known on both sides of the Atlantic during the Coleman Drayton-Barrowe scandal in 1892. Fox acted as one of the seconds in the duel that did not come off in Paris and furnished the famous correspondence to a prominent New York paper. Fox claimed that the publication of the letter was under the sanction of Barrowe, which the latter denied.

The duel was a bloodless one between Fox and Barrowe on a Spanish resort near Oyster Bay, N. Y. The two men exchanged twelve paces they retired without striking hands or passing the compliments usual on such occasions. Fox's first shot was a dud. Barrowe's shot was a big round shot that pierced Fox's coat in three different places and grazing his trousers over the hip.

Fox was not, as he has been described an Englishman and ex-officer of the sea, but a young man, who was an officer of an English line regiment. The original family name was O'Shanagan, which means son of or descendant of the word, and the clan was located in County Cavan. He was educated in England, and entered the army as an ensign at 18 years of age, spending most of his time in the East Indies.

He was a big, broad-shouldered, deep-chested man fully six feet tall. His father not being rich, and he being a young man, he was almost entirely dependent on his pay as a subaltern, and his tastes being expensive, he soon accumulated a very creditable salary of $400 a month. Life became a burden to him and he was obliged to "sell out," the purchase system being then in vogue in the British army. He was offered $10,000, which he said to have brought to America, where he came after leaving the army, was the few hundred pounds sterling realized by the sale of his company. He went straight to Wall street, where he lost every penny of it and bought a very valuable experience in the stock market.

He had to do something for a living and having met James Gordon Bennett, Jr., then a young man, and having some literary ability, he accepted the position of a sub-editor on the New York Herald, and got the best assignment on the paper, both in New York and out of town. Although a bon vivant, and having the entire staff of the Herald newspaper man, and got the best assignment on the paper, both in New York and out of town.

His principal feat in journalism was when he was correspondent of the Herald in the Modoc war. He was with the army, and he was always in need of money.
