Co. "D" Attention!!! From the Oregonian, Sept. 13. London, Sept. 12.—(Copyright, 1896, by the Associated Press.)—London newspapers are now more fully realizing the importance of the presidential election in the United States to Great Britain and the continent.

The Daily Telegraph says that the American department of the stock exchange is a veritable sick-room, because "English capitalists will never take their interests from the United States in depreciated currency and it goes on to say that "the adoption of bimetalism, or as it would become later, the silver standard, in America, would practically mean the repudiation of their debts, and it is of this sort of thing which leads to the withdrawal of envoys and declarations of war."

Hon. James Applegate died at Monrovia, Cal., Aug. 31, 1896, presumably from cancer of the liver. For some time his life had been despaired of by physicians, many being able to make his sufferings easier to bear. He was the oldest son of Charles Applegate, the first settler in Astoria, Oregon, and was about 62 years of age at the time of his death. He was a man of ability and of blameless life and made a host of friends wherever known. He is buried in Douglas county, Oregon, he successfully occupied the positions of County Judge, Representative and Senator. From Douglas county he removed to Lake county, Oregon, in search of a more healthful home for his family, and Lake to his home in California where he died. In his demise, his many friends in both states and the Misses of Eugene natives noblemen, an honest man.—Klamath Falls Republican.
