

NO MONOPOLY PRICES!
Give us your order for Letterheads, Statements,
Envelopes, etc.

Professional Cards

DR. J. S. HERRNDON,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office—In Townside Building on Oak Street, Opposite Hotel Oregon.

A. HINMAN, D. P. S.
DENTIST.
In the Masonic Building up stair,
over Post Office.

DR. S. T. SONGER,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Novelty Block, Opposite Hotel Oregon,
ASHLAND, OREGON.

DR. C. W. BARR,
Dental Parlors in Odd Fellows Hall,
ASHLAND, OREGON.

D. M. BROWER, M. D.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Office—At Residence, Intersection of Mechanic, Laurel and Main Streets.

SOCIETY DIRECTORIES.
G. A. R.
BURNSIDE POST NO. 23.
Meet in Masonic Hall, on the 1st and 3rd Saturday of each month. Visiting Comrades cordially welcomed.

W. R. C.
BURNSIDE AUXILIARY CO. NO. 34
Meets in Odd Fellows Hall at 2 o'clock p.
m. on the second and fourth Fridays
of each month. Mrs. J. C. CROCKER,
Mrs. L. V. GIBSON, Secy.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.
GRANITE LODGE, NO. 23, Knights of Pythias, Ashland, Oregon, meets every Friday evening. Visiting Knights in good standing are cordially invited to attend.
W. E. WADE, C. C. S. G. ROGERS, K. of R. & S.

MASONIC.
SEKIYU CHAPTER, NO. 21, R. A. M.
Regular convocations on the Thursday
next after the full moon.
E. A. SHERWIN, Secretary.

ASHLAND LODGE, NO. 23, A. F. & A. M.
Stated communications on the Thursday of or before the full moon.
E. A. SHERWIN, W. M. C. H. VAUPEL, Secretary.

ALPHA CHAPTER NO. 1, O. E. S.
Stated meetings on 1st & 2nd Tuesdays of each month.
Mrs. L. M. CALDWELL, W. M. Mrs. S. C. CHANDLER, Secretary.

I. O. O. F.
ASHLAND LODGE, NO. 45.
Hold regular meetings every Thursday evening at their hall in Ashland. Brethren in good standing are cordially invited to attend.
F. M. DRAKE, N. G. H. S. EVANS, Secy, P. O. Box 102.

FILOT ROY ENCAMPMENT, NO. 16.
Meets in Odd Fellows Hall every 1st and 4th Monday of each month. Members in good standing cordially invited to attend.
H. S. EVANS, C. P.

HOPE REBECCA DEGREE LODGE, NO. 24.
Meets on the 2d and 4th Tuesday of each month in Odd Fellows Hall, Ashland.
Mrs. E. A. STRANDBERG, N. G. Miss NINA EMBRY, Secy.

A. O. U. W.
ASHLAND LODGE, NO. 66.
Meets in lodge room in Masonic Hall every second and fourth Wednesday of each month. All brethren in good standing are cordially invited to attend.
M. R. MOORE, M. W. J. R. CASKY, Recorder.

K. O. T. M.
GRANITE TENT NO. 1, KNIGHTS OF THE MACCABEES.
Meet in regular review on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at Odd Fellows Hall, Ashland. Visiting
Knights cordially invited.
G. W. CHOWSON, Com. H. S. GILLETTE, R. K.

Contracting & Building and Moving.
All work entrusted to my care done with dispatch, and on terms to suit the times. See the undersigned before letting contracts and save money.
Oak Street, Ashland. D. ALLEN.

J. B. RUSSELL,
Dealer in
Granite, Marble,
Freestone Monuments
and Copings.
Also agents for IRON FENCES.
Satisfaction guaranteed.
P. O. Address: YREKA, Siskiyou Co.,
Cal.

YOUNG MEN
The Specific A. No. 1
Cures Gonorrhea, Syphilis, all cases of venereal disease, restores vitality, builds up the system, and cures all diseases of the blood. It is the only medicine that cures the disease, and restores the system to its normal condition.
PRICE $3.00
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

SHOOTING AFFAIR IN LAKE COUNTY.

Will Sherlock shot Clint J. Walker through the body with a Winchester rifle late Sunday afternoon, Sept. 19th in Lake County. Sherlock gave himself up and is in the Lakeview jail. Walker was herding for George Winkelman, and both Winkelman and the Sherlocks run their sheep on the rim-rock west of Stamer Lake, in close proximity. It seems that Sherlock has a piece of deeded land on this disputed range, and that Walker had been requested to keep his sheep off this land. It was concerning this particular tract that the quarrel occurred.

The participants were the only eyewitnesses. Walker was unarmed, Sherlock, though silent as to details, claims Weiker attacked him with a rock before he shot Walker. Walker's ante-mortem statement differs very materially from the few facts given by Sherlock's friends.

A Million Gold Dollars.

Would not bring happiness to the person suffering with dyspepsia, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured many thousands of such cases, and puts all the machinery of the system in good working order. It gives a good appetite and gives health, strength and happiness.

Hood's Pills act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Cure all liver ills. Col. Frank V. Drake's Speech.

The Chautauque Auditorium contained almost as many people Tuesday night assembled to hear the silver Republican speaker, Col. Frank V. Drake of Portland, as appeared in the same place in the afternoon to listen to Senator Mitchell. There were many voters present and many ladies.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

Col. Drake was introduced by M. F. Eggleston as a man who had always been a Republican and a good silver man, and was still so. He was one of probably a million men who had walked out of the old Republican organization with that grand old man, Henry M. Teller. Col. Drake was given a cordial greeting. He talked for an hour and a half, and his address was purely a domestic affair. The Colonel gave a brief resume of the history of a Republican party, showing that it had abandoned its honorable traditions, principles and character and had become a party of new leaders. It was charged that the Democratic party had done nothing to restore the old principles, but was utilizing every resource in the interest of gold monometalism, he could not forget the silver coins always in the saddle and on pocket duty to amuse the people of the approach of the emergency and that which is practicable. The inconsistency of republican leaders who had heretofore stood for independent mineral and silver, now crying out for McKinley was thoroughly exposed and interpreted with occasional telling humorous stories which threw the crowd into roars of laughter. Some of the points he made were: The interest of the money question and in the course of his remarks he pointed out the fact that the issue between labor and capital which he well understood, not failing to point out that Lincoln's views as to labor and capital had been reversed. Lincoln had put labor before capital as labor was the creator but now the gold-bugs held the upper hand. He was the parent and dictator of labor. The silver was devalued and the gold was the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages. The closing of the day's debate feeling that they had lost nothing and probably had gained substantial advantages.

PREPARED BRICKS.

Dr. Barr, dentist I. O. O. F. block. Fletcher Linn of Portland was here Saturday. Levi Sutton of Big Butte recently lost his home by fire.

John McDonough was in from Klamath county fair week. Hot and cold baths at Storey's barber-shop. Opposite town hall.

J. M. Luark is visiting San Francisco and other points in California. Wm. Charley and son of Annapolis were in town Saturday evening.

The Congregationalists have organized at Klamath Falls and will build a church. All kinds of road grading and repairing at the gem barber shop, opposite town hall.

Mrs. Garber of Wyoming, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Loucks, started for home Friday.

J. F. Willis has purchased the Electric Store at Klamath Falls conducted by V. A. Dunlap, and is running the same.

Mrs. Chas. L. Lange has gone to Colorado to join her husband, who is superintendent of a mine in San Juan county.

A continued lecture at the Baptist church next Sunday night, subject, "The Lord's Day as the Bible and History Records it."

Henry Applegate and family of this place and Peter Applegate and family of Central Point have returned from a trip to Crater Lake.

T. J. Kenney and James Cronmiller and their families of Jacksonville returned last week from a sojourn at the Crescent City ocean.

Table Rock is to have a store. G. K. Walker, recently of Washington is putting a stock of goods in a building just completed.

For first-class dental work see Dr. A. Hinman, Masonic block.

Prof. J. H. Head, of Medford, representing the Wiley H. Allen Co. of Portland, is doing Klamath county selling pianos and organs.

John Cooley the pioneer farmer of Willow creek, came over from Siskiyou county Monday to visit the Mathes family at Phoenix.

Hillock, a Harney Valley stock man, is in the valley purchasing yearlings and two-year-olds for his ranch. He wants 1000 head.

Mrs. Schroeder and child, wife of Geo. T. Schroeder, the creamery man, arrived last week from Coos county to make their home here.

Miss Mary Tongie, daughter of Hon. Thos. H. Tongie is out from Hillsboro visiting Gen. G. T. Reames' family at Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Parlow, who have been spending a month at their farm in Linn county, returned home Monday from a pleasant visit.

Larson makes Cartes de Visite photographs for $1.00 per dozen. For 30 days only.

J. Carroll McAffrey, a Portland real estate dealer who several years ago resided in this county, died recently in Philadelphia, all broke up.

The Siskiyou county republicans reorganized. Secy for superior justice and Chas. Haight, Henry W. Walbridge and Arthur Simon for supervisors.

A late number of Harper's Weekly contained a sketch of Crater Lake by Geo. W. Kirkman, U. S. A. and an engraving from a drawing of the lake by Chas. G. Tramm.

Grand Jury Report.

We, the grand jury of the September term, beg to report as follows: We have carefully examined all matters brought before us and have returned true bills in all cases where the evidence warranted. We have visited the office of county assessor, clerk, sheriff and treasurer, and in each case we find the books neat, clean and well kept; but owing to the limited time at our command we made no examination of accounts. We have visited the county jail and find the same in a fairly clean condition, and consider it perfectly safe for the care of prisoners. We would however recommend the repair of the roof to stop the leaks now existing. We have visited the county hospital, and after careful examination we believe it to be well kept and the inmates well fed and cared for.

DR. DARRIN.

The Celebrated Specialist Coming to Medford and Ashland. Dr. Darrin, after a sojourn in Portland of nine years, have closed their offices in the city, and one of them will be at Medford, Oregon, at the Hotel Nevada, Sept. 19 to Oct. 3rd and at Ashland, Oct. 4th to 17th, at the Hotel Oregon, where he can be consulted.

Electricity and medicines has become so popular with the afflicted that their patients do not seek in vain for relief from the ills that flesh is heir to, it is proof of the superiority of their electrical treatment over all other methods of cure. As a further proof we give the names of some recent cures: Volna Webster, Weston, Oregon, catarrh cured; H. A. Tucker, president of the Bank of Eugene, Clatsop county, 15 years cured; Judge O. P. Mason, Portland, deafness 20 years from paralysis of the nerve, restored; Truman Butler, The Dalles, Or., chronic rheumatism and contracted joints, and impoverished blood of years standing, given up by all treatment until Dr. Darrin cured him; Wm. M. Colwell Skamokawa, Wash., sciatic rheumatism and liver complaint, cured; also his brother, George L. Colwell, Skamokawa, Wash., sciatic rheumatism, cured permanently.

Paralysis on one side permanently cured in 15 days. Mary McConnell, Genese, Idaho, cross eye straightened; also her brother, W. K. Duncan, Health's Addition, Spokane, Wash., large scrofulous swelling and tumor in the neck; W. Hays, engineer on the Southern Pacific, 914 Fifth street, East Portland, Or., inflammation neck of bladder and sciatic rheumatism cured on crutches to the doctor's office.

J. A. Lindner, news agent, 1140 Broadway, residence Albany, Or., consumption, bronchitis and catarrh, cured and gained fifteen pounds; J. W. Kenney, Long Creek, Grant county, Or., kidney complaint and pain in back and down the sciatic nerves, restored. Dr. Darrin can be consulted free. Hours 10 a m to 5 p m and 7 to 8 in the evening.

A Cure for Diseases of Men. Scientific investigation, supplemented by experience, has shown that urinary diseases are more prevalent and destructive to life, health and happiness than any other class known to the medical fraternity. They are not confined to the low and degraded portions of humanity, as many suppose, but are to be found among the pure in heart, the innocent, the truly pious and wealthy.

Many of them are transmitted from parents to children, from generation to generation. Thousands of people suffer untold agonies from their ravaging effects, and meet an early and untimely death, often ignorant of the cause. Though transmitted innocently, the effects of these diseases are not less terrible. It is a sad truth that the innocent often suffer more than the guilty.

Of all the organs of the body few are more important than those engaged in the urinary functions. In perfect health, that great blessing which so few enjoy, one will scarcely direct a moment's thought to these important organs, and at the first unpleasant symptoms good advice, such as may be easily obtained, should be immediately solicited.

Among the chief and most common of diseases is renal weakness, and various degrees, or loss of nerve power, due to debility and venal excesses. Thousands of young and middle aged men suffer with nervous diseases for years and may be ignorant of the cause, when a little timely advice would make life's pathway full of cheer and happiness.

When the first symptoms of seminal weakness manifest themselves the sufferer is not to be discouraged, and nervous and troubled with indigestion, though the appetite may remain good. But the strength vanishes and the sufferer grows thin. He becomes indolent and debilitated, and loses of memory and all vigor of the sexual organs may follow. In time he may fall into a complete state of impotency—total loss of sexual power.

Among its terrible effects may be mentioned weakness of memory, and nervous ideas, nervous despondency and general weakness. It needs no mirror; it reflects itself. The pale face, the sunken eye, the downcast countenance, the stooping gait, all serve to announce the sufferer's troubles. It will kill of itself, but it opens the gate to other diseases, such as consumption and diseases of the heart. The unfortunate sufferer cannot sleep. The intermediate state, between life and death, is prolonged for a moment of the mind and body, he can have no rest, for his dreams are dark and foreboding, and the constant drain upon his system robs it of its vital fluid. This affliction may be the consequence of self abuse or the result of excesses in mature years. As "man is but a bundle of habits," how essential that he should start right in life; that his mind should be free of sublime thoughts and occupations. All who suffer from these diseases should lose no time in consulting Dr. Darrin for the time may come when you will be beyond the aid of all medical skill.

No matter who you have taken, or who has failed to cure you, call and see the doctor, as he can permanently, safely and privately cure you in one-third the time and at one-half the expense required by others. Consultation free.

Dr. Darrin can be seen at the Hotel Nevada, Medford, Sept. 19th to Oct. 3rd and Ashland, Hotel Oregon, Oct. 4th to 17th.

Job printing at $50.00 O. B. S.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

Royal Baking Powder
ABSOLUTELY PURE

GETTING IT IN CIRCULATION

Under Free Coinage, Silver Would Go into the Hands of the Poor. Many correspondents ask for information on this point, and a brief answer will be given.

Under free coinage the owner of silver bullion would take it to the mint and have it coined into dollars. With these dollars he would pay his employees, purchase his supplies, pay his taxes, debts and all other expenses. The persons thus receiving them would in like manner pay theirs. Thus it would make its rounds and find its way through the entire community.

Not only would it at once enter into circulation, but it would have the effect of bringing a large amount of money into use that is now lying idle. As silver floated