

CATARRH: FORERUNNER OF CONSUMPTION.

Few realize what a deep-seated, obstinate disease Catarrh is, regarding it as a simple inflammation of the nose and throat, little or no attention is given it. But, however insignificant it may seem at first, it is serious and far-reaching in its results.

The foul secretions entering the circulation poison the entire system. The stomach, kidneys—in fact all the organs—feel the effect of this catarrhal poison, and when the lungs are reached its progress is rapid and destructive, and finally ends in consumption.

It frequently happens that the senses of hearing and smell are in part or entirely lost, the soft bones of the nose eaten into and destroyed, causing intense suffering and greatly disfiguring the face. While sprays, washes and salves may give temporary relief, no permanent benefit can be expected from such treatment.

CATARRH IS A CONSTITUTIONAL OR BLOOD DISEASE,

and far beyond the reach of mere local remedies. Those who rely upon them for a cure lose valuable time, meet with disappointment and allow the disease to take firmer hold. Only a real blood remedy can reach this troublesome and dangerous disease. S. S. S. cures Catarrh because it first cleanses and builds up the blood, purifies it, makes it rich and healthy, stimulates and puts new life into the sluggish worn-out organs, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous accumulations.

Mrs. Josephine Pollard, of Due West, S. C., writes: "I had Catarrh, which became so deep-seated that I was entirely deaf in one ear, and all inside of my nose, including part of the throat, was inflamed. When the disease had gone this far the physician gave me up as incurable. I determined to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and began to improve at once. It seemed to get at the seat of the disease, and after a few weeks' treatment I was entirely cured, and for more than seven years have had no sign of the disease."

S. S. S. is made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful tonic and purifying properties. It is the only vegetable blood purifier known, and a certain and safe cure for all blood troubles. Send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases, and at the same time write our physicians about your case. They will cheerfully give you any information or advice wanted. We make no charge for this.

A FAMOUS PRISON.

The celebrated Mamertine prison furnishes an important scene in Sienkiewicz's story "Quo Vadis." It is located on the slope of the Capitoline in Rome, and, according to tradition, it was begun by Ancus Marcius and later enlarged by Servius Tullius. Jugurtha is said to have been starved to death here, the accomplices of Catiline strangled by command of Cicero and Seneca, the minister and favorite of Tiberius, executed. Church tradition has consecrated this prison as the place where St. Peter and St. Paul were confined by order of Nero. Historian Hilliard says of it:

"The Mamertine prison is a hideous ruin divided into an upper and lower portion scooped out of the solid rock and lined with massive blocks in the Etruscan style of architecture. A more heart-breaking scene of confinement it is not easy to imagine. According to the traditions of the church, St. Peter was imprisoned here by order of Nero, and the pillar to which he was bound and a fountain which sprang up miraculously to furnish the water of baptism to his jailers, whom he converted, are shown to the visitor. There is no reason to doubt that Jugurtha was starved to death in these pitiless vaults. Here, too, the companions of Catiline were strangled. It is a curious fact that the chambers of literature and history should have carried two such names as those of Sallust and Cicero on these Cyclopean walls."

In India, the land of famine, thousands die because they cannot obtain food. In America the land of plenty, many suffer and die because they cannot digest the food they eat. Kodol, a powerful laxative, makes you eat. It instantly relieves and radically cures a stomach trouble. E. A. STEWART.

A FREAKY THING IS LUCK

"WOULDN'T that bump you?" murmured the favor dealer reflectively, as a thin, pock-marked man passed the corner of Broadway and Thirty-eighth street.

"What's that?" asked the race follower.

"Seem' you throw the frapped conner, 'e been divided into an upper and lower portion scooped out of the solid rock and lined with massive blocks in the Etruscan style of architecture. A more heart-breaking scene of confinement it is not easy to imagine. According to the traditions of the church, St. Peter was imprisoned here by order of Nero, and the pillar to which he was bound and a fountain which sprang up miraculously to furnish the water of baptism to his jailers, whom he converted, are shown to the visitor. There is no reason to doubt that Jugurtha was starved to death in these pitiless vaults. Here, too, the companions of Catiline were strangled. It is a curious fact that the chambers of literature and history should have carried two such names as those of Sallust and Cicero on these Cyclopean walls."

"Well, how about it?" asked the favor dealer.

"It was after the season closed at Brighton Beach in '27, Hennessy had been up against it for four long, warm, weary months. He'd been playin' everythin' in the business from favorites to 100 to 1 shots, an' he couldn't win breakfast money. I'd been follin' the western circuit all summer an' had nursed up quite a wad, an' when I come back to New York the first man I run against is Hennessy. He was comin' out of a Sixth avenue beauty, where they sell coffee for two cents a cup, an' his ever any man looked like a bad nickel, it was Hennessy. I'd seen him when he was rollin' high out in California, an' I had a few drinks with him then, an' some guy had told me Hennessy was a man 'at never staid with his friends. But say, I was sorry to see a man down on his luck, an' I says to myself, 'I'll help him to take a race. So I fits him out from feet to bright an' then I pronounces him as a day for two weeks to play the ponies—me layin' off awhile to rest.

"Well, after a few days Hennessy begins to do business again, and inside of a month had nursed together a little wad of about three hundred dollars.

"Now, says I, 'we're off to New Orleans.' An' we went an' started into the game the next day. But Hennessy's luck had changed again, and there wasn't anything he could win. Neither of us could make it out. Hennessy said he's gone into the theater with his umbrella up, an' I guess 'rhaps that's what it was, but anyway, he was a dead one from that on, and in two days he didn't have but $50 in the world. Then I told him to stick to me and follow my plays, and he did, and in two days I had lost $17,000 and all of Hennessy's $50 was gone. So I gave Hennessy $10 to start fresh on, and told him to lay his own money an' keep away from me. So he did and lost every nickel of it by the next night.

"Well, it was up to me to take care of him. So he goes off and gets a little more somewhere, and every mornin' he's 'round to my room for breakfast money and I'm givin' him $5 to feed himself and play with. That kept up the whole winter through, 'cause he comes 'round one mornin' and says 'I'll stake him to a little roll he'll quit me and try his luck on the western circuit. So I gave him $500 and he started for Chicago. It wasn't long before we heard of his luck, and my five hundred begins to come back.

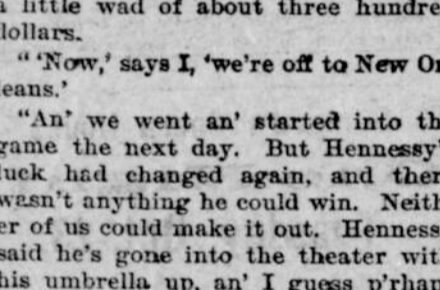

"Good? Why things just swam his way. It was glad of it, although I wasn't doing so well myself. As Hennessy's stock went up mine started to fall.

"I wish to express my thanks to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, for having put on the market such a wonderful medicine," says W. W. Maseingill of Beaumont, Texas. "There are many thousands of mothers who have been saved from attacks of dysentery and cholera infantum who must feel thankful. It is for sale by ELY'S BROTHERS."

THE PEOPLE'S PAPER.

ASHLAND, Or., Thursday, Oct. 18, 1900

to slump, and pretty soon I was in the hole up to my neck. When the meeting closed it left me stone broke, with only one suit of clothes left and livin' in a hall room near the corner of Ninth avenue and Thirty-second street. Then I began playin' the poolrooms with what money I could borrow here and there, but I couldn't get enough ahead to make any kind of a play, and I began to think if things didn't come my way I'd have to quit the game and go to work.

"Say, wouldn't that bump you?" said the favor man.

"Well, about this time one day," resumed the race follower, "I was comin' down Broadway, feelin' pretty good and mean and raggy. I'd had nothing for breakfast but butter cakes and coffee, and I didn't just know who was going to stake me for dinner, let alone a dollar or so just to try if my luck had begun to change. Well, while I was feelin' this way, not exactly sure if I wouldn't chuck the whole business and chase a job, who do I run against but Hennessy. He was just coming out of Martin's with a lookin' like he had lost out of his jaw and a look on his face like he was full up to the chin with green turtle soup and baked trout and roasted canvasback and nesselrode pudding, with a pint of champagne and a pousse cafe at the end of all. He made me hungry just to look at his mug, and he was wearin' a hot silken an' a long coat and a diamond lamp fit to knock an eye out of the prince of Wales, and say, when I saw Hennessy that way I thought it was like findin' a mine. There was ready money all over him."

"An', of course, he staked you good and plenty?" said the favor man.

"Did I say that Hennessy had a pile?" asked the race follower. "Well, maybe it was two of them and maybe it was three. Anyway, Hennessy had a little stake on. It wasn't enough to excuse him and it was just enough to make a mean man nasy."

"Hello, Hennessy, says I. You stole my neck," says Hennessy.

"And I saw then and there that my gold mine was a frost. Hennessy was givin' me the go-by. But I was too hard up to be haughty, so I stops him.

"Say, Hennessy, says I, 'are you goin' to walk past a man like that? Don't you know me?'

"Yes, says Hennessy, with a kind of an ugly grin, 'I know you well enough.' 'I've been in hard luck since I saw you, Hennessy, says I. 'I'm on the hog for fair—stone broke, old man!'

"That don't surprise me," says Hennessy, "not a little bit."

"It don't," says I, and you can bet I was surprised, if he wasn't.

"Not a particle," says Hennessy, "you went broke when I quit you, because I was your mascot. You stole my neck, and I staked that you owe me about $5,000. The minute I left you things came my way."

"Well, I tried to laugh. 'Why, Hennessy, old man, says I, 'you're stringin' me. Dye take me for a hoodlum?'

"That's what I do," he says, "the worst hoodlum this side of the Rocky mountains."

"Well, say, Hennessy," says I, "stake me for a hundred and let it go at that?"

"Not a nickel," says Hennessy. "You got my luck ones, but you don't get it again, see!"

"Then he turned back into the cafe, and I could see him through the window ordering a new quart."

"That wouldn't that bump you?" said the favor man.

"Say, isn't that the queerest thing on earth?" continued the race man philosophically. "Here was Hennessy a tramp only a year before, when I was a high rider. Now, I'm on my papers, and Hennessy's gettin' rich, and yet at that very minute my luck was on the turn. I walked around the corner where I could curse Hennessy on the quiet and there in a little heap of wet dirt by the curbstone I found something shinin'. I picked it up. It was a five-dollar gold piece, and there was a hole in it. Say, do you remember me coming into your bank with it?"

"Sure," said the favor man.

"Say, it needed a lot of nerve to lay the throw five on me, and me and me hungry, too, but I was afraid if I'd break the five I'd break my luck, see?"

The favor man saw.

"So I laid it in one bet, and won ten times running. Then I called the turn, and Hennessy was a winner. Say, that was about the dizziest game I ever played, and when I cashed in I went and ate the best dinner that the Tenderloin afforded.

"Well, I didn't see anything more of Hennessy until January, when I went to New Orleans again with a small interest in a string of good ones and another interest in a combination book that a guy named Sixty was running. Hennessy was riding high again, and Hennessy wasn't. It did seem queer, but it looked like we both couldn't do business at the same time. I ran against him several times and made as if I'd forgotten the throw five on me in front of Martin's, and at last one day he came sweatin' around to my rooms, lookin' for a tip. One of our horses was entered for seven furlongs on the next day, with about one chance in a million of winning, but Hennessy had a skin in his hat that the race was to be fixed. He didn't know I was interested in the nag, but he did know that I had an inside track with the stable and came to find out which way the cat was goin' to jump.

"Say, old pal," he said, "I've only got $1,000 left and I want to make a big play to-morrow so to get even again and I can't take any chances. Can't you put me wise?"

"Say," said the favor man, "wouldn't that bump you?"

"So I told him to see me an hour before the race," the race follower went on, "and he went away. Say, o' my word, it was up to me to give him any straight tip."

YOUR BODIES ARE TEMPLES

You believe that statement? But you only realize in part the obligations implied by it. Do you keep that temple of the body clean? If not, the defilement attaches to every service of the temple. Disordered stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, affects the mind as well as the body. The mind must be healthy if the body is to be healthy. It is a strictly temperance medicine and does not contain alcohol or whisky, neither opium, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

I had suffered from indigestion and those who know me will tell you that I had been afflicted with cold hands and cold feet, everything I was doing was going wrong, and I was growing very thin and nervous. I cannot help expressing my appreciation of the fact that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I purchased and used, has cured me of all these troubles and has put me back into health. My friends often speak of it.
