VALLEY RECORD.

ASHLAND, OR. Thursday, April 17, 1902.

A social sensation has been created in Los Angeles by the sequel to an "April fool" joke that has just come to light. Invitations were sent out on the 1st of April to the friends of Mrs. Agnes Phelps and George E. Karstens, to attend their wedding. Mrs. Phelps is a widow, aged 35, and Karstens, who is 26 years of age, is employed as a proof-reader. The guests reported the home of Mrs. Phelps on the hour appointed for the marriage ceremony, which was performed by a man named R. Amos, who was garbed as an Episcopal clergyman. It has now been learned that the ceremony was only an "April fool" joke, but the friends of the principals say they must be married in earnest or return their presents.

F. McLean attempted to cut the throat of Mrs. M. A. Dingwell, a dressmaker living at the residence of Mrs. J. Neal, at 519 East First street, Los Angeles, because she would not marry him. Later he stood off four policemen for a time with a carving knife, but was finally overpowered, handcuffed and taken to the station, where he was locked up on a charge of assault to commit murder. The officers found in McLean's pockets a bottle of laudanum and a note, which indicated that he meant to take his own life after killing the woman. The note read: "Tired of this life, will try the next. A Noobdy." Mrs. Dingwell was slightly cut and bruised in the struggle, but not seriously injured.
