CORBETT SAYS NO POLITICS.

The Oregonian's Small-Minded Partisan Efforts Over the Big Fair Refuted.

Portland, Oregon, May 22, 1902.

To the Editor:

A number of persons have called upon me in reference to the Lewis & Clarke Centennial Fair, and have asked me to designate any of the various candidates for certain positions, in my judgment would best serve the interests of the fair, if they should be elected to the respective positions.

I have in all instances informed the gentlemen that I, being chairman of the state commission, and also chairman of the organization in Portland, for the successful promotion of this enterprise, I have declined in every instance to express my preference for any candidate for these respective positions, and have always informed the gentlemen that we wanted the help of every class of citizens, democrats, republicans, and every other shade of politics, to act and co-operate with us in promoting the success of the fair.

The request from the board of directors, to those who have been selected to visit the various towns and cities in the state, was that they should avoid in every way, any indication of political preference for any candidate, where meeting to create an interest and ask aid and cooperation for the Lewis & Clarke Centennial.

The board of directors would regard it very unfortunate if politics should enter into this laudable enterprise. It is the desire of the directors to avoid in every way any political significance of this event. It is wholly with a view of honoring President Jefferson and Lewis and Clark, who conceived the idea of an expedition to the Pacific Coast for the purpose of more firmly establishing our rights to the great Northwest, called the Oregon country, that people might inherit and enjoy its vast region irrespective of political predilections, and certainly in commonmanner, this 100th anniversary we should not by any act of ours allow our political preference to enter into the consideration of this great event.

I therefore desire to say, as chairman of the organization for the promotion of the fair, that we wish to declare that this enterprise, in no way, will be used to influence the votes for any particular candidate, for any position for which he may be nominated by either party. I make this statement as I have had frequent calls to know whether this fair was to be a republican partisan fair or otherwise. I have always declared that there was no politics in the matter and that we expected the support of both parties who have both endorsed the fair, and I understand whoever is elected mayor, whether democrat or republican, whoever is elected governor, whether democrat or republican, will give their hearty support and co-operation, otherwise it would be futile for us to attempt to hold an exposition of this great event.

We expect when the matter of appropriation comes before congress, that we shall have the co-operation of the senators and representatives from the democratic state of Missouri in the same cordial manner as extended by our representatives on the Pacific coast to them for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

H. W. CORBETT.

Whoooping Cough.

A woman who has had experience with this disease, tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it.

Says: Our three children took whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents did not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops—JESSIE PINNEY HALL, Springfield, Ala. This Remedy is for sale by all druggists.

The Great Scourge

of modern times is consumption. Many cures and discoveries from time to time are published but Foley's Honey and Tar does truthfully claim to cure all cases in the early stages and always affords comfort and relief in the worst cases. Take no substitutes.—T. K. Bolton.

A dispatch to the New York Sun from Washington says that on account of the damage done in the diplomatic reception-room of the state department by riot-busting vandals, the secretary of state has been obliged to order that visitors shall be admitted to the apartments only on application, and that in viewing them they shall be accompanied by an attendant. The big oblong treaty table, at which many important international arrangements were signed, has been badly mutilated. Vandals have twisted from it pieces of half a dozen ornamental knobs. Another handsome ebony table was chipped, and pieces were cut from an expensive rug.

If you are sick all over and don't know just what ails you, it's ten to one your kidneys are out of order. Foley's Kidney Cure will bring you health and energy. T. K. Bolton.

Mayor Schmitt of San Francisco has issued a communication to the effect that no further contributions are to be provided for his heroic, disinterested sufferer in Martinique and St. Vincent. The sum of $5,000 has already been forwarded from San Francisco.

William McCormick, a well-known horse trainer, who shot and killed Francis Chinn, a groom at the Haggin ranch, was arraigned in the superior court at Sacramento before Judge E. C. Hart and pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter. He was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary, which is the maximum penalty for manslaughter.

When William Holl, a pawnbroker, whose office is on an upper floor of the Washington building, Portland, returned after half an hour's absence at luncheon, he found that his safe had been opened and robbed of $1,000 worth of jewelry and money. It is evident that the robbery was committed by some one familiar with the place.

James Brown, who belongs to the Browns' professional baseball team of Albuquerque, N. M., in a fit of rage at his sweetheart, Cora Miller, because she threatened to quit him, cut her wrist with a pocket-knife, severing her wind pipe, and then, throwing the knife against himself, slashed his own throat from ear to ear. The woman is still alive, but cannot recover. There is some chance for Brown.

"I had a running sore on my breast for over a year," says Henry R. Richards of Willitsville, N. Y., "and tried a great many remedies, but got no relief until I used Bannan's Salve. After using one-half box, I was perfectly cured. I cannot recommend it too highly." T. K. Bolton.

THE MISFIT GOVERNOR.

W. J. Furnish as he would appear wearing the garments of Governor Geer.

One of the biggest drives of the Boer war has just wound up against the Bechuanaland blockades, says a Vryburg dispatch. General Hamilton and other commanders have gathered in 400 prisoners, including 100 rebels and recalcitrant Boers who have caused much trouble in the past. Among the prisoners are a brother of General Dlamane and several other commanders. The movement was remarkable for the lack of resistance by the Boers, most of whom surrendered, after aimless dodging, without fighting. There were no British casualties. Five hundred Boers managed to escape in the earlier stages of the drive.

Peculiar Will Case.

An interesting will case was tried in the Kings county surrogate's court, and was decided in favor of the will, says a New York dispatch. The plaintiffs were the niece and husband of Susan S. Allen, who died leaving all her money to her friend and boarding mistress, and who it was attempted to prove was insane at the time the will was drawn. Mrs. Allen imagined she was called to convert the beaten Chinese, and began operations on one Fong Gui. She converted him and gave him a laundry, which prospered. Mrs. Allen wanted Gui to marry a white girl, who could accompany her China as maid. When approached on the subject Gui said, "I'll do it on Melian Gui and Fong Gui, mally diam quick."

Mrs. Allen found the girl, but a month was enough for Gui, and he quietly sold the laundry and went to the States. Mrs. Allen became convinced that she had made a mistake as to her being called to convert the heathen, made her will and died. The court followed.

THE OREGONIAN'S WALE.

The Oregonian's Fight Against Scott & Co.'s Machine.

Portland Journal, Rep.]

The Oregonian of yesterday says that "Oregon may go democratic in June, and if it does the blame will rest upon the business men and working men." They will try to endorse the disapprobation of the Oregonian. The idea that the election of a governor who announces his purpose to cut off illegal fees in the state department, that the election of a city "ticket" in this county, that will cut off the influence of Jack Matthews in local administration, is going to send the whole country to the "democratic boys' rows," does not appear to common sense. Nobody seriously believes that such a result will injuriously affect property or adversely influence national politics in the slightest degree. On the other hand a reform in the methods of state administration that have become fixed by long usage may reasonably be expected to bring a man who has had the perspicacity to see them and the courage to point them out. In country and city affairs both business men and working men believe that local affairs will be better administered by the elimination of a machine that is working for its own benefit rather than for the public welfare. So the average man of sense is not moved by such appeals. He sees plainly enough that what the Oregonian really fears and seeks to prevent is not any public detriment or disaster, but the defeat of its machine made ticket. It is a cry of distress, but the apprehension is not for the business men or working men. It is for the ring, and only for the ring. But the defeat of the ring ticket might otherwise be of some positive benefit to Oregon. Certain it is that the republican leaders have not reflected public or even republican sentiment in Oregon on some important measures. We do not believe in the ship subsidy bill, bills for the benefit of trusts, the discrimination against this state in Federal business and appropriations—all of which have been pointed out from time to time by the Oregonian. Mr. Hanna, who is the responsible leader, asks for a republican victory here to endorse these measures. If they should not be endorsed perhaps the republican leaders might lend a listening ear in the next two years to appeals which have hitherto been in vain. It's worth an experiment.

Scott on Mitchell.

Not many years ago, in 1886, H. W. Scott opposed the election of Colonel Cornelius, the republican candidate for governor on the ground that Cornelius was a supporter of John H. Mitchell, whom he denounced as a "man of vile politics and of still viler personal character." Mr. Scott returned from the east yesterday and in his leading editorial this morning he calls upon republicans to elect Banker Furnish governor because it would please Senator Mitchell. The editor of the Oregonian, after bitterly denouncing John H. Mitchell for nearly 30 years, invading even the privacy of Senator Mitchell's home and embittering his whole life, now practically admits that all he has printed, or uttered against the public and personal character of Senator Mitchell was untrue; either that or else the Oregonian was wrong then or is wrong now. The influence of the Oregonian cannot prevent a sound election of republicans in the state of Oregon from entering a protest against surrendering control of their party into the hands of Jack Matthews and H. W. Scott in the most effective way, and that way will be to vote against Banker Furnish and elect George Chamberlain governor.

Sciatic Rheumatism Cured After Fourteen Years of Suffering.

"I have been afflicted with sciatic rheumatism for fourteen years," says Josh. Edgar, of Germantown, Cal. "I was unable to be around but constantly suffered, I tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured, and I am happy to say it has not since returned." Why not use this liniment and get well? It is for sale by all druggists.

H. E. Huntington said recently that Long Beach was going to be one of the greatest seaside resorts on the southern California coast, and many improvements now in progress testify to this assertion. The latest is a bathhouse which is to cost $200,000. The Long Beach Bathing company, with that amount of capital, was incorporated at Los Angeles recently.

Charles H. Baker, proprietor of the Pacific Lithographic company, at 537 Washington street, San Francisco, who was arrested recently for aiming and shooting a bullet into the window of a police station, pleaded guilty to the charge in Judge Cabanis's court and was fined $100. His two assistants, Charles Holbrook and B. B. Cline, pleaded that they were merely employees, and the charges against them were dismissed.

G. R. Brookman, a printer, who disappeared recently from Los Angeles, was found dead near Santa Monica. Brookman had been riding a bicycle between Santa Monica and the ocean, when, by some means he was thrown, with his wheel, over the bluff, falling more than 100 feet on the rocks below, and was instantly killed.

J. S. Doble, son of a minister, employee of a tract society and a member in good standing in a church, was arrested at an early hour while making his third burglary trip to the office of the California Tract society, in the Reliance club building, on San Pablo avenue, Oakland, Cal. Doble walked into the arms of a policeman, who had been stationed there by Chief of Police Hodgkins to capture the burglar, who had visited the tract society twice, and was expected to do so a third time. The prisoner made a complete confession.

Judge Mortimer Smith of the Oakland (Cal.) police court declared invalid the city sign-license ordinance, on the ground that it imposed a tax for revenue, not for the regulation of a business, and in the particular being unconstitutional. F. G. Lea, a merchant, declined to pay the tax, and this was made a test case. Since the ordinance went into effect in July of last year the sum of $5,800 has been collected in licenses. Many vendors of grocers, but Judge Smith is of the opinion that these cannot recover.

Work has begun on the Barrett dam at the place where it was stopped some months ago, says a San Diego dispatch. This dam—which will be of solid masonry—when completed will be the highest of a series of three reservoirs connecting the mountain rain regions with the bay at a point where an unfailing large area of land. The dam and reservoir will form a part of the system of the Southern California Mountain Water company, and the water there impounded will be released into the watershed which collects the supply for the Lower Ojai reservoir.

Leslie M. Shaw, the newly appointed secretary of the treasury, has issued instructions from Washington that when the contents of trunks and bags are "man handled" on the docks by his customers, the men who handle the goods must wear white gloves. He instructs the inspectors further to repack carefully all articles that have been taken from the personal baggage of passengers from abroad, instead of being handed over to the customs. The inspectors are to check the dock or steamer deck, that the curious man not take notes while the ragging tonist does the repacking himself. It is evident from this that the complaints of the long-suffering tourist have not been heeded by the government.

A dispatch from Birmingham, Ala., states that the proposed trust of jobbing hardware firms has fallen through.

Robert A. Williams, who was chief of the Chicago fire department at the time of the great fire of October, 1871, and who at that time distinguished himself by his heroic and self-sacrificing conduct, died at Chicago, aged 77 years. Williams came to Chicago in 1847 from Canada, where he was born in 1825.

Former Policeman John E. Fay of Los Angeles pleaded guilty in the police court of that city to a charge of stealing eggs, for which he was fined $60, with the alternative of 60 days in jail. Fay paid the fine. A firm of grocers, who trusted Fay with a key to their store so that he could use their telephone at night, informed the chief of police that Fay was systematically pilfering. Chief of Police Elton hid himself behind a screen in the grocery and waited till Fay came in to report off duty by telephone. Fay then filled his pocket with eggs, when he was confronted by the chief, who made him disgorge. Fay immediately tendered his resignation and wrote a check for $85 in favor of the grocers to reimburse them for his pilfering. The police commissioners then presented him for petty larceny.

One man, possibly two, drowned, two others rescued from the waves, and 200 persons for several hours in peril of going to the bottom of the sea is the record of the voyage of the Wilmington Transportation company's tug Warrior from Avalon, Santa Catalina island, to San Pedro. The man who lost his life was E. S. Knight of Highland Park, conductor on the Salt Lake road. He was washed from the upper deck in midchannel and was drowned in full view of 200 panic-stricken passengers. The storm was the severest experienced in the channel for years. Knight was 35 years old and survived by a wife and child, who were with him. He was also accompanied by a brother and his wife's parents, all of whom saw him drown. It is said that another man went over with Knight.
